1,000 Students Attack U.S. Legation in Budapest

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Nearly 1,000 Communist students attempted to storm the U.S. legation Saturday, smashing windows, shouting anti-American slogans and ripping down the U.S. seal above the entrance.

Some of the demonstrators broke into the basement and damaged a snack bar and movie theater. But they did not reach the protected third-floor apartment of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty, who has been a refugee in the building since the collapse of the Hungarian revolution in 1956.

In Washington, the State Department called the attack "intolerable" and summoned the Hungarian charge d'affaires. A department spokesman disputed the explanation of Hungarian sources that the attack was a spontaneous act by students to protest U.S. raids on North Viet Nam.

"It was clear that the demonstrators were well organized and that it was a staged affair," said press officer Marshall Wright.

In Budapest, informants said the demonstration apparently had not been authorized by Hungarian officials. They said the Hungarian Foreign Ministry had telephoned the legation to warn of the students and promised police protection for the building. However, the students arrived before police.

Elim O'Shaughnessy, charge d'affaires, called on the Hungarian foreign ministry to protest the failure of police to halt the 45-minute attack. Compensation for all damages to American property will be claimed, legation sources said.

'Viet' Demonstrators At U.N., Other Areas

NEW YORK (AP) — Five persons were arrested Saturday at a series of protest demonstrations over Viet Nam at the United Nations.

Three girls and a young man belonging to a group called "Youth against War and Fascism" were taken into custody when they tried to break through police lines that confined their demonstration to the U.N. Plaza.

About 20 minutes later, another youth scuffled with police and was arrested when he failed to obey orders to keep moving.

The demonstrators had been parading back and forth along the plaza inside lines of wooden barricades set up by police.

Earlier, a long line of demonstrators sponsored by the Women's Strike for Peace marched for two hours without incident after holding an hour-long "peace vigil" in the plaza.

The marchers delivered letters to the United States, Soviet, British and French missions to the United Nations.

The letters were signed by Mrs. Dagmar Wilson, founder of the Women's Strike for Peace. They said in part:

"The grave situation in Viet Nam threatens the peace of the entire world . . We condemn and fear the recent events of this week, which substitutes military force for constructive diplomatic policy."

Other demonstrations were carried on outside New York. Rival groups of about 40 members each picketed at the University of Cincinnati, in Ohio. One called itself "Students Against the War in Viet Nam," while the other was "Students for a Strong Stand."

In Cleveland, about two dozen Oberlin College students picketed in the public square. Five persons marched at Ohio University, in Athens, Ohio, protesting the U. S. retaliatory actions. One carried a sign reading: "This Week World War III

Walsky Resigns As Security Water Chief

Officials agree that Herman Walsky resigned as president of the Security Water and Sanitation District boards.

But they tell different stories.

Everyone agreed it happened Jan. 21, after the regular meeting of the two boards — when the press and large crowd of attending citizens had left.

Thomas Remple, manager of the district, said Friday that Walsky did not submit a formal resignation, but simply told his fellow board members he would quit. He resigned because he had too far to drive, Remple said.

Alfred Cooke Jr. temporary president of the board, said Saturday that a formal, written resignation was submitted.

Childless Couple Will Get Quads

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — After nearly five years of childless marriage, the doctor had news for Mr. and Mrs. Gary W. Gwillim—quadruplets.

"I was stunned," said Mrs. Gwillim. "My husband and I just looked at each other, and there was a moment of silence before either of us spoke."

Doctors say that the chance of quadruplets being born is one in a million. The Gwillims' quads are due in midMay.

Mrs. Gwillim is 23. Her husband, a Ventura County deputy district attorney, is 27.

Fielden Quitting Hospital for National Post

By JOHN KUGLIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

C. Franklin Fielden Jr. said Saturday he would resign as executive director of Memorial Hospital and Mayor Harry Hoth said closer cooperation was needed between trustees of the hospital and the City Council.

His resignation, effective Monday, was accepted by Robert W. Hendee, chairman of the hospital board of trustees.

Hendee said there was no connection between Fielden's resignation and the City Council's recent interest in the hospital's operations.

A week ago Mayor Hoth said the council felt "it should concern itself more with affairs of the hospital, including the nursing school." The city-operated hospital received tax money over the past several years for bond retirement and some capital outlay. A new nursing class was not admitted last year.

Fielden said he resigned after an offer "by an organization of national scope which is in the process of developing a new concept in hospital and health care . . . to head their staff". He termed the program "one of the great humanitarian efforts of our generation" but said he could not say what the program was until March 15 when the organization has scheduled a press release.

He thanked the hospital trus-

Red China Pledges to Support Soviets in Anti-U.S. Struggle

TOKYO (AP) — Red China pledged Saturday its people will stand by the Soviet people in combating "U. S. imperialism" and called for world Communist unity to give "resolute support of the armed anti-U.S. struggles of the Vietnamese."

Tass reported that the Kremlin sent a similar "unity" message to Peking, but that it did not mention the United States as the foe. The Soviet message, signed by Communist party chief Leonid I Brezhnev, President Anastas Mikoyan and Premier Alexei Kosygin, spoke only of "aggressive imperialist quarters."

In Communist North Korea, Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin boasted that Communist forces are strong enough to stop "the aggression in Viet Nam" and predicted "victory will be ours." He toasted unity in the Communist world.

The Chinese pledge, in a message to Kosygin and other Soviet leaders, followed a Peking condemnation of U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam Thursday and a warning to the United States that the people will "advance wave upon wave" against any expansion of the war in Viet Nam.

"You have been taught a lesson on this score in the Korean War," an official Peking statement said. "Do you want to have the lesson repeated in Indochina?"

The Chinese pledge to remain at the side of the "great Soviet people" was signed by Communist party Chairman Mao Tze-tung, President Liu Shao-chi, Premier Chou En-lai and Marshal Chu Teh. It was sent to Moscow in connection with the 15th anniversary of the Chinese-Soviet treaty of friendship, alliance and mutual assistance and was addressed to Kosygin, Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and President Anastas I. Mikoyan.

The Soviet Union, Red China and all other Communist countries must unite to fight against "U.S.-led imperialism until final victory is won," the Chinese message said.

"This is the unshirkable international duty of each and every Socialist country," the message

Viet 'Peace Talks' May Be Launched in Moscow

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP) — A British cabinet minister will meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko here Monday and diplomats speculate he may act as a go-between for U.N. Secretary-General U Thant's call for peace talks on Viet Nam.

A British embassy spokesman said today an appointment with Gromyko has been arranged for George Thomson, British minister of state for foreign affairs. He will fly back to London after the meeting.

Thomson, the No. 2 man in the British Foreign Office, came to Moscow Friday to sign a cultural agreement.

Diplomats at the United Nations speculated the British minister may discuss Thant's proposal that both sides in the Vietnamese conflict get together over a conference table.

The U. N. secretary - general said in a statement Friday the main parties in the dispute should arrange for talks before the crisis explodes into a major war. But he played down prospects of the United Nations taking any direct role.

Thant repeated a statement he made in Paris last July that the only way to solve the Viet Nam problem was to reconvene the 1954 Geneva conference on the partitioning of French Indochina.

Britain and the Soviet Union were co-chairmen of the conference.

Thant said there would be too many snags to a solution involving the United Nations directly because North Viet Nam and Communist China are not members of the world body.

Britain, which has diplomatic relations with Peking, was con-

Reason Will Prevail, De Gaulle Declares

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle Saturday called anew for a negotiated settlement of the Vietnamese war.

"I am convinced that after many obstacles and difficulties, peace and reason will prevail," in Southeast Asia, de Gaulle said.

De Gaulle commented as he received credentials from Cambodia's new ambassador to Paris, Sonn Voeunsai. He reiterated his proposal for a negotiated settlement of the war in the former French colony.

De Gaulle told Voeunsai that "France and Cambodia fully agree on the means which shall allow a reestablishment of peace."

(In Phnom Penh, Cambodian chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk warned Saturday that his nation would declare war on the United States and South Viet Nam if Cambodian territory were subjected to air strikes similar to the punitive raids on North Viet Nam.)

Meanwhile U.S. Ambassador to France Charles E. Bohlen left by plane Saturday for Washington to prepare for high-level American-French consultations in Washington next Wednesday.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk is scheduled to confer with French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville. Diplomatic sources said the tense situation in Southeast Asia will be high on the agenda.

Power Position Must Be Kept, Ike Declares

PALM DESERT, Calif. (UPI) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said Saturday that the United States must maintain its powerful position if it plans to negotiate in the Viet Nam situation.

Eisenhower and his house guest, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, played 18 holes of golf at Eldorado Country Club and then spoke briefly with newsmen.

"It's a free-wheeling situation," the former Chief Executive said of Viet Nam. "We can't negotiate from a weakened position. We can only negotiate when we are strong."

Nixon said he agreed with Eisenhower's position regarding Viet Nam and said that a similar situation — the islands of Quemoy and Matsu — had developed during the Eisenhower administration.

Nixon arrived here about midnight Friday night for his visit with Eisenhower. He said he would remain "a day or so."

Anti-Castroites Bomb Cuban Sugar Mill

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A Cuban anti-Castro action group said that it bombed a Pinar del Rio Province sugar mill at dawn Saturday.

The Insurrectional Revolutionary Recovery Movement—MIRR—said the plane that carried out the mission "with positive results" returned to its base "somewhere in the Caribbean."

The announcement said fire bombs and explosives were dumped on the central Bahia Honda by a two-engined plane.

Orlando Bosch, Miami coordinator of the MIRR, said it was the organization's ninth air assault on Communist Cuba. The MIRR also has been active in the past in raids and infiltrations carried out by small boats.

No mention of any attack was carried by the Cuban radio.

Scouts Foster American Heritage, Grant Declares

There is no such thing as an easy way to raise a boy, said the speaker at the Annual Recognition Dinner of the Pikes Pak Council, Boy Scouts of America.

He was Kirby Grant, the man who plays the lead role in the "Sky King" television series. Grant spoke to about 2,200 people who filled the Broadmoor's International Center to the extent that the stage had to be used.

However, the challenge is worth the effort, said Grant.

"When the flower blooms, you will forget the work it was to cultivate it," he explained.

Making his message direct and specific in a comparatively short speech, Grant pointed out that the primary object of the Boy Scout movement is to pass on the American Heritage to the lads in the program.

He pointed out that his parents moved to Montana from Ohio by the way of Missouri, and that he was born and raised in the mining areas of that state. He began Scouting at the age of 12, he said.

Grant contrasted that background with the background of a man with whom he works. That man is a descendant of early Maine settlers who first set foot in America in 1620, and who was a Scout and now is active in adult Scout work.

While the two men came from different backgrounds, one mining and western, the other eastern and sea-faring, both have the common American Heritage, Grant stated.

The two men have many common elements in their background, but others who do not have these elements also share the American Heritage, he said.

"The Negro boy, the Jewish lad, the child of the first generation Italian-American, the young Russian, the Oriental youngster, all can share in the American Heritage and have pride in America," he said.

One of the ways this heritage is passed onto these youngsters of diverse background as they are molded into Americans is the Scout movement, Grant stated.

He said that as of the end of last year, the country reported 1,982,280 Cub Scouts, 1,823,303 Boy Scouts, and 317,614 Explorer and other advanced Scouts, and 140,191 leaders.

Grant said the people in Scouting could not be giving their time to a more important effort.

"All of us are helping raise our sons and our neighbor's sons the right way. The lads now in scouting are the ones who will be the men of tomorrow and who run this world when we are gone," he said.

Speaking more directly to the leaders he said that Americans must understand their heritage before they can pass it on.

"If we are to strengthen our heritage, we must understand it America is no better or worse than the people who live in it." he declared.

While society has changed greatly, individual responsibility remains the same as in the past, said Grant.

"To give the young citizen—the Scout—a feeling of responsibility, he must be given a reason for pride and faith. This the job of the Scout leaders.

Giving this to the young men is the job of the Scout leaders, who then hold the future of America and the world in their hands, he said.

Mrs. Wickersham, Ruth's Oven Founder, Dies

Mrs. Ruth Wickersham, formerly a resident of Colorado Springs and the founder of Ruth's Oven, died Saturday in San Diego, Calif. She was 85.

Mrs. Wickersham was born in a sod home in Osborne, Kan., in 1882, the daughter of a Methodist Minister. Her father was one of the early day circuit riders in Kansas.

She was a member of the official board of the First Methodist Church for over 40 years.

She received most of her formal education in Kansas and Iowa schools, and received her degree from Denver University.

Her husband, Lincoln Wickersham, died in 1918, after which she supervised music in various Denver schools.

In 1934 Mrs. Wickersham founded Ruth's Oven in Colorado Springs, which she operated successfully for 28 years. She sold the restaurant in 1962 and moved to San Diego to live with her son.

She is survived by her son, Sumner Wickersham, of San Diego, and five grandchildren.

Funeral Services will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday in Greenwood Memorial Park, San Diego, where burial will follow.

Monkeys Lose Their Tails In Russia

LONDON, Sunday (UPI) — Communist China has massed about 200,000 troops on the direct rail line to North Viet Nam, it was reported today by the London Sunday Times.

The newspaper reported from Saigon and Hong Kong that two battalions of Communist Chinese troops have been sighted on the China - North Viet Nam border.

The report was based on U.S. air reconnaissance flights over South China, the Sunday Times said. The troops are concentrated in the Nanning area along the rail line to Hanoi.

Freight trucks and troop carriers were reported in large numbers in the Nanning staging area.

The newspaper said the Red Chinese battalions were sighted moving toward North Viet Nam along a highway through the Munan pass in South China which opens into the valley of the Red River in North Viet Nam.

Charter Group Will Question City Candidates

Candidates for the City Council in the April election will be questioned by the Colorado Springs Charter Association at a public meeting.

The meeting is planned for March 22, the Rev. Harold Knudsen, recently-elected association president, said Saturday.

Robert C. Forman, 2212 McArthur, refused to devulge who he took two petitions out for. He would not say if they were for one or two candidates. "We'll let everybody know if we get enough signatures," he said Saturday.

"I'm running," Watson said. "My only desire is to serve the people of Colorado Springs. I feel I have the time to devote to the job of councilman."

His activity in civic affairs has included the presidency of the local chapter of the Association of the United States Army (AUSA).

The Gazette Telegraph Friday reported that Rupp Daniels, who is associated with a car dealer, would take out Watson's petition. This was done Friday by Daniels and Samuel Robinson, 2035 Oriole Ave.

"I feel the military establishment is very important to the community, particularly to its economy," Watson added. "It is also very important to have continued growth of the city."

Lake Mead to Be Filled Up Following Snowfall

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) —The Bureau of Reclamation said Friday there is enough snow on the mountains of the Upper Colorado River Basin to make certain refilling of Lake Mead to its critical rated power head level of 1,123 feet by July.

The bureau said the snow pack also will make it possible to hold Lake Powell above the 3,490-foot level, and to fill Flaming Gorge and Navajo reservoirs "to assure minimum levels for recreational use during the summer months of 1965."

F. M. Clinton, director of the Reclamation Bureau's Region 4, said the predictions were based on a Feb. 1 forecast of runoff of 9,000,000 acre feet of water into the Colorado River between April and July.

Lake Mead, behind Hoover Dam in Nevada and Arizona, dropped below its most efficient level for electric power production last year. Water was held back to fill Lake Powell in Arizona and Utah to a point sufficient to enable start of power production at Glen Canyon Dam.

Flaming Gorge Dam is on the Green River in northeastern Utah, and backs up a lake reaching into Wyoming. Navajo Dam and Lake is in New Mexico on the San Juan River.

Clinton said Flaming Gorge Lake will drop to its lowest level with 645,000 acre feet of storage by April 1. It is then expected to fill rapidly to more than one million acre feet by July, and remain there through the summer.

All generators ready for service at Glen Canyon Dam will be kept in operation, but Clinton said about one-half the inflow to Lake Powell will have to be bypassed downstream to Lake Mead during April, May and June.

President Pays Tribute to Lincoln

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson paid tribute to Abraham Lincoln Friday, saying, "His challenge to us sounds clearly across the years: love justice, extend liberty, remember you may be wrong, but act when you believe you are right."

Johnson visited the Lincoln Memorial and spoke at a White House luncheon observing the 156th anniversary of Lincoln's birth.

Johnson also told the luncheon guests: "Sometimes at night, as I struggle with terrible problems his presence in the dark corridors seems almost real.

"It is then I remember his greatest lesson. He loved the people and drew his strength from them. Though he is gone, the people are there. And they will give me strength, as they have to all those who have lived in this house."

The Eagle to Hit American Ports Under Miles of Sail This Summer

This year it will be "See America First" for the U. S. Coast Guard's famous cadet training ship, "Eagle" which will visit North American ports during her 1965 summer training cruise. For the first time in her 19-year career as a Coast Guard Academy training ship, the sleek, beautiful, three-masted barque will depart from her usual custom of visiting European ports.

The 1965 change of itinerary has been made as part of the Coast Guard's observance of its 17th anniversary of its founding on August 4, 1790 under the sponsorship of Alexander Hamilton, First Secretary of the Treasury.

During June, 1965, the Eagle, accompanied by the Coast Guard cutters Castle Rock and Rockaway, will leave New London, Conn., and head for Miami, Fla.; Acapulco, Mexico, and Long Beach, Calif. via the Panama Canal. At Long Beach the accompanying cutters will break off and return to New London, making enroute stops at Kingston, Jamaica, and Nassau. The Eagle, however, will continue up the west coast to Seattle, Washington, where she will be present during that city's annual Sea Fair held early in August and will take part in the local observance of the Coast Guard's 175th birthday. She will terminate her cruise in San Francisco. The Eagle will be open to the public during her post visits.

Since the Eagle will be unable to return in time to meet the academic schedule her cadets will be airlifted from San Francisco to New London. She will sail back to New London with a maintenance crew.

For the 1965 cruise, the Eagle will carry a complement of 189 cadets, 18 officers and 45 enlisted men. She will serve as the flagship of the three-cutter squadron.

The present Eagle is the sixth to bear that name in the Coast Guard.

The Eagle displaces 1,816 tons fully loaded. Her masts support 21,350.8 feet of sail and 20 miles of rigging. Eighty per cent of the time she operates under sail power which can develop the equivalent of several thousand shaft horsepower at a maximum speed of 16 knots. She is equipped with a 740 h.p. auxiliary diesel engine for use in emergency or when entering port. Under power her speed is no more than 10 knots.

The wind-jammer has been the Coast Guard Cadets' training ship since 1946 when the United States acquired her from Germany as part of war reparations. Built of steel in 1936 by the German Navy to accommodate 200 cadets, she was then known as the Horst Wessel and operated as a school ship until early in World War II. During the war she served in the Baltic as a passenger and supply carrier between East Prussian ports and Germany proper.

Coast Guard officials went to Bremerhaven in January 1946 to arrange the details of taking over the bark. She arrived at her new home, the Coast Guard Academy in July of 1946.

The Coast Guard considers the Eagle a valuable training tool for the future officers. Not only does such training give cadets a deeper respect for the sea, weather and the art of navigation, but it also gives them an opportunity to direct sizeable groups in complex operations.

In this highly technological age, the Eagle still suggests the grace and beauty of the bygone era of sailing ships.

Teton Range Subject for Audubon Film

A panorama of the past, present, and future of the Teton Range comprises Charles T. Hotchkiss' Audubon Wildlife Film to be presented Feb. 20, at the Fine Arts Center. The program will begin at 8 p.m.

"Teton Trails" goes back to the first trails in this western territory, made by animals and Indian tribes, which were followed by mountain men,, gold miners and settlers. Today's trails lure those seeking solitude and adventure of the back country wilderness, and the film concludes with the climbing of the Grand Teton, highest peak of the range and a climb that requires about 2,000 feet of rope work.

The main trails of the Teton Range are preserved and maintained in the Grand Teton National Park. Hotchkiss documented on film the lives and habits of various birds and other animals in the wilderness area while holding the position of seasonal ranger and seasonal ranger-naturalist with the National Park Service. He also has worked with the National Park Service at Mt. McKinley and the Everglades National Parks.

Hotchkiss has produced numerous outstanding wildlife films. He studied forestry and wildlife management at the University of Connecticut, served in the military service, and then received a graduate degree from the University of Illinois in physical education. He later attended Colorado State University to take additional courses in park recreation, which led him into the National Park Service. Hotchkiss and his wife now live

D. C. WASH

By GERRY VAN DER HEUVEL

WASHINGTON — Last year we danced with the President and reported in awe about our moment in history. Last week history almost repeated itself. We danced with the Vice President. While a dance combo from the Marine Band played, we twirled and kicked our heels in the White House foyer — Hubert Horatio and me.

The occasion was the President's dinner for the Vice President, the Speaker of the House and the Chief Justice.

I won the Vice President as a dancing partner when he and Russell Long (D-La.), the new Senate whip, exchanged partners. Long, who was having himself a fine time on the dance floor, had exchanged his previous partner for me about five steps and a whirl back.

What to Talk About? Dancing With a VP?

Now, I admitted last year, with some professional embarrassment, that I hadn't even thought to ask the President any profound questions while we were danceing. Well—Let's face it — I didn't interview the Vice President, either.

I can say, unequivocally, however — and the country will be relieved to learn this — that the Vice President can step into the President's dancing shoes anytime.

Ever since Ramsey Clark was appointed assistant attorney general last week we have wanted to tak someone about a legend in the Justice Department. When Ramsey's father, Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark, was appointed Attorney General in 1945, he put up a suggestion box, the story goes. The one that got his dander up was one that suggested that he "stop wearing those awful bow ties." (They were his trade mark tehn, and have been ever since) Clark didn't take kindly to the suggestion and since investigation is the Justice Department's stock in trade, he started a search for the impertinent employe. A few days later the sleuthing G-men turned up the culprit — not an employe, but Clark's teen-age son.

Spotting the Justice and Mrs. Clark in the White House foyer, we asked if this was the same son who is now the assistant attorney general. Chuckling, Clark said it was.

Then he added, "I'll tell you something. There's not a word of truth to the story. I made the whole thing up myself."

Perle Mesta left a dinner last year prediciting "a very gay" social life under the Johnson Administration. These Perles of wisdom can't be disputed — if you are privy to the White House social scene.

As a reporter, I fall in the category of a necessary nuisance, but what are the chances of rank and file Americans being invited to a party at the White House?

Considering there are some 190 million Americans, they may not be very good, but they are better than they have ever been. In the first place, the Johnsons entertain more than any other First Family in modern times. They also like to see to it that their guests represent a good cross - section of the country.

What Helps to Swing An LBJ Invitation

If you have distinguished yourself in your field, you are quite likely to be invited to the White House. The guest lists always include top people in the arts, sciences, business, labor and education. It helps to be a relative or friend of the guest of honor, or to be allied with his field. And, of course, if you are a big democratic contributor you are in, or if you are a personal friend or relative of the Johnsons. Anybody else will just have to sit back and hope he's the one the gregarious LBJ points to next and says, "Y'all come."

Johnson has a unique rapport with the business community for a Democratic President, but he hasn't caught on that time is one of their rarest commodities. He recently granted a private audience to one of the leaders. The man had a few economic matters to discuss and figured the conference wouldn't take more than 15 minutes of the President's valuable time. The huddle lasted more than an hour. When the visitor left the White House grounds he confided to a colleague: "This is the first President I ever met who wastes other people's time."

Mrs. Johnson will find that she has a hornet's nest to clean out before her plans for a more beautiful capital city can get under way. Congressmen from the big granite and marble producing states are working themselves into a lather over the decision of the Fine Arts Commission and the General Services Administration to build four new government buildings out of concrete.

Sen. George Aiken (R-Vt.) and Rep. Phillip Landrum (D-Ga.) are two who are preparing for battle to see that their state's products are not slighted.

Fear Concrete Will Spoil BEauty of the Capital

Both claim that the trend to use concrete exclusively will result in a permanent defacement of the city.

"This is far too important a matter," Landrum said, "to be decided behind closed doors by any federal commission whose architectural whims all Americans will have to live with for generations to come.

Aiken said it reminded him of the "bleak, cold construction" he saw in Soviet Russia, where "these concrete buildings were chacking and pealing even before they were completed."

"I just can't conceive of the government being so short-sighted as to permit all the new federal buildings to be constructed for contemporary taste instead of lasting beauty," he said. "I wonder if anyone in the White House, and especially Mrs. Johnson, knows about this."

The Fine Arts Commission, a small group of artists, architects and just plain laymen appointed by the President, has broad veto powers over all the construction in downtown Washington.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D.,Ph.D.

Don't minimize the sound ideas that children often evolve. And never wait till your child is in Senior High School to give him his moral tutelage. Our skyscraper Chicago Temple is a monument to a 12-year-old's early wisecrack and a smart coal mine superintendent's diagnosis of youthful talent.

"Some parents, however, argue that children are too young to make up their minds about religion before they are 18.

"But isn't that too late to start molding their moral outlook."

Actually, it is wise to start bending the twig as soon as a child is born if you wish it to speak correct English, like good music and appreciate moral idealism.

And by the age of 12, many youngsters have already made up their minds.

Jesus was only 12 years old when he argued with the theologians in the Temple at Jerusalem.

And the tallest church in the world, namely our Chicago Temple, in the heart of Chicago's Loop, is an indirect monument to a clergyman who started at the age of 12 on the road to success.

There were no laws against child labor in those days so he put in 12 hours in the mine, six days per week.

Since he lived a couple of miles away, he had to get up by 5 A.M. and trudge the two miles to the mine carrying his dinner pail.

Then he spent 12 hours at work, after which he had to hike the two miles back home.

In that mine, the coal cars were pulled along their tracks by small horses.

So at 5 o'clock, the horses were unhitched from the coal cars to be curried, watered and fed for the night.

The miners laughed uproariously at this witticism and passed it along to their co-workers.

The Assistant Superintendent finally heard it and became incensed at such insurrection, as he deemed it.

So he tried to trace it down to its source. Finally, he pin-pointed it on John Thompson and immediately fired him, saying the mine would not put up with such insurrection.

But at that very moment the Superintendent himself strolled along and saw the men gathered around young John, trying to plead his case and prevent his being discharged.

When the Superintendent asked the cause of the trouble, and learned of John's wisecrack, he laughed it off.

"John," said the Superintendent, "you are not fired. In fact, we need more men with brains around here."

Then he walked off, but thereafter he must have kept his eye on John, for a few weeks later he told John to enroll in night school, after his 12-hour day!

Therein John won a scholarship to Oxford; graduated with honors; came to Canada and thence to America, where he finally persuaded his church board to O.K. our downtown skyscraper Temple.

Bill May Halt New Junior Colleges

DENVER (AP)—A bill to halt formation of any new public junior colleges in Colorado for nearly two and a half years has been offered in the Colorado Senate by Sen. John R. Bermingham, R-Denver.

The measure, offered Friday noon, would stop voters of any county from forming a new junior college district until July 1, 1967.

Tests Fail to Show Heiress' Illness

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Laboratory tests, nearly completed, show "there appears to be nothing organically wrong", with Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton,, a spokesman for Presbyterian Medical Center said Friday.

The 52-year-old heiress was taken to the hospital complaining of abdominal pains, after she and her seventh husband flew in from Mexico on Monday.

The internationally famous EVELYN WOOD Reading Dynamics Institute
INVITES YOU TO ATTEND A FREE
DEMONSTRATION OF THIS UNIQUE METHOD

Where you will:
- See an amazing documented film about Reading Dynamics.
- Learn how Reading Dynamics can help you to faster reading, improved comprehension, greater retention.

HOW DID IT START?

Eighteen years ago Mrs. Wood made a startling discovery that led to the founding of Reading Dynamics. While working toward her masters degree, she handed a term paper to a professor and watched him read the 80 pages at 6,000 words per minute—with outstanding recall and comprehension.

Determined to find the secret behind such rapid reading, she spent the next two years tracking down 50 people who could read from 1,500 to 6,000 words per minute. She studied their techniques, taught herself to read at these faster rates. Now, after years of testing, you can benefit from this great discovery.

DOES IT HAVE PROVEN RESULTS?

Results have been reported in Time, Newsweek, Business Week, and Esquire. Demonstrators have appeared on television with Jack Paar, Garry Moore, and Art Linkletter.

Senator Proxmire, Wisconsin: "I must say that this is one of the most useful education experiences I have ever had. It certainly compares favorably with the experiences I've had at Yale and Harvard."

Senator Symington, Missouri: "I can read most material at speeds above 3000 W.P.M. and technical material in the 2000 W.P.M. range."

Our most recent Reading Dynamics class in Denver had an average beginning speed of 332 words per minute, an ending speed of 2,610 words per minute, with equal comprehension.

HOW IS IT DIFFERENT FROM OTHER COURSES?

No machines are used. You learn, instead, to use your hand as a pacer—a tool you always have with you.

Conventional rapid reading courses aspire to 450-600 words per minute. Most Reading Dynamics graduates can read between 1,500 and 3,000 words per minute, and many go even higher.

GUARANTEE

We guarantee to increase the reading efficiency of each student by at least three times with equal or better comprehension. We will refund the entire tuition of any student who does not triple his reading efficiency as measured by the beginning and subsequent tests, or the student may retake the course free of charge. A refund is conditional upon the student attending all classes or having made up missed sessions with the teacher. The student must also have practiced the required number of hours, following the assignments as outlined by the teacher. The average student may expect a five-time increase in reading speed, and an improvement in comprehension and recall. Any student who must withdraw from the course for any reason may re-enter any subsequent courses at any future time, at no additional cost.

MSU Organizes Counterguerrilla ROTC Platoon

The Mississippi State University Counterguerrilla Platoon was organized by Colonel John W. Thames, Professor of Military Science. This elite unit is one of the activities offered in the Army ROTC program.

The mission of the Counterguerrilla Platoon is to provide selected ROTC cadets with the opportunity to receive training in counterinsurgency and counterguerrilla warfare and to develop proficiency in small unit tactics. Emphasis is placed on maintaining physical fitness and developing leadership.

"Accept responsibility" is the motto of the platoon and the cadets have displayed great enthusiasm in accepting the challenge of this new cold war dimension — guerrilla warfare.

During the first semester, the cadets receive training to prepare them for small unit field exercises which comprise the program for the second semester. The patrol is used as a teaching vehicle. The cadets participate both as individual members and leaders of patrols. In this way, confidence to lead is developed and the cadet learns to take as well as receive orders requiring immediate obedience and reaction.

The Counterguerrilla Platoon is one of the highlights of the Army ROTC program at Mississippi State University and contributes to the development of responsible leaders and citizens of the future.

South Viet Company Deserts to Commies

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — All but five mountain tribesmen and four American advisers in a 140-man South Vietnamese company deserted on call of Communist guerrillas in a fight for a hill last Wednesday and three Americans were killed, reliable U.S. military sources said today.

They added that the fourth American adviser, identified as Spec. 4 James H. McLean of Los Angeles, is believed to have been captured.

The U.S. informants said the Communists approached the hill at Duc Phong, 85 miles northeast of Saigon, with loudspeakers.

"We only want to kill the Americans," the Communists called out. "All the rest can go free if they leave their weapons behind."

The three Americans and the five Vietnamese mountaineers were found dead the next day.

U.S. authorities said they are investigating the report that 97 per cent of the popular forces company — a sort of home guard force — left the camp without their weapons.

THWARTED CALLING

CHICAGO (AP)—"The average pastor is frustrated," says Dr. Charles W. Steward, director of research at the Institute for Advanced Pastoral Studies, Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

On the basis of studies by the Institute, he reports in the magazine, Christian Advocate, that the clergy's troubles result mainly from the fact that they consider themselves counselers, teachers and preachers but are forced by practical circumstances to be administrative "organization men."

Pennsylvanian First Recipient Of Spaatz Award

The first winner is Gerald R. Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Johnston. Gerald is presently a student at the Marion Institute, Marion, Ala.

It pays tribute to the man who became the first chief of staff when the Air Force was established as a separate military service in 1947. Gen. Spaatz has been a member of the board of directors of Litton since 1955.

Young Johnston stands among the top 10 per cent of his class scholastically and is active in several school activities.

The Falcon Foundation was founded in 1958 in Dallas by a group of prominent men formerly on active duty with the Air Force. The group provides a sustaining program of annual scholarship grants for young men interested in preparing for the Academy.

"SMILE YOU'RE IN COLORADO" — Joe Reich Sr. told Naval Aviation Recruters Lt. Cmdr. Richard J. Inman and Chief Joe Brown, who maintain "neither rain nor snow" can keep them from telling the Fly-Navy Story to young men of Eastern Colorado colleges and universities. Commander Inman was the guest speaker, Friday, at the Colorado Springs Navy League Council where he spoke on the problems and successes of recruiting college students as flying officers. This 1965 Chrysler, one of 18 automobiles purchased by the Navy League of the United States, is used by aviation recruiters to carry-out their mission.

9th Aero Loses Its Only Flying Lieutenant

Darrell J. Spinler of the 9th Aerospace Defense Division was recently promoted to captain and lost the distinction of being the only lieutenant with pilot's wings in the entire 9th Division.

Captain Spinler, Aide-de-Camp to Major General Horace A. Hanes, 9th Commander, has more than 1100 flying hours and is current in T-33 and the T-39 jet aircraft.

The captain, a native of Browns Valley, Minn., holds a Bachelor of Science degree from South Dakota State College. He received his commission through the ROTC program and entered active duty in August 1960.

Captain Spinler was previously assigned to the 437th Fighter Interceptor Squadron at Oxnard Air Force Base, Calif. as an F-101 interceptor pilot. He arrived at the Ninth in September 1964.

He is married to the former Darlene Rose Keupp of Custer, South Dakota. The couple and their two children reside at 228 South Garo.

Mystery Fire Seen On Blanca Peak

BLANCA, Colo. (AP)—Searchers probed the slopes of 14,317-foot Blanca Peak Thursday night and Friday, but were unsuccessful in efforts to find the origin of a reported fire.

Costilla County sheriff's officers on jeep and horseback and pilots from the Silver State Aviation Company at Alamosa combed an area about five miles upslope from the town of Blanca, 21 miles east of Alamosa.

A Frontier Airlines pilot en route to Pueblo from Albuquerque, N.M., had reported seeing the fire shortly before midnight Thursday.

The Federal Aviation Agency at Trinidad said it had received no missing plane reports in the area recently.

Personal, Family Survival Classes Set in Schools

In cooperation with the vocational and adult education division of the Colorado Springs Public Schools, the City-County Civil Defense Agency has set up free classes in personal and family survival.

Civil Defense Director C. W. Willoughby said the classes will start at 7 p.m. Feb. 23 at Palmer High School.

The 12-hour course will be given in two-hour sessions. Instructors will be public school teachers who have completed the instructors course conducted by the State Board of Eduation.

Willoughby said the purpose of the course is to teach basic information needed in order to prepare for natural, man made or enemy caused disasters. Seven films and several colored film strips will be shown during the six weeks course.

Belknap Will Be Series Speaker Here Thursday

Sociologist Daniel Belknap, executive director of the Community Planning and Research Council, will give the fourth in a series of lectures at Colorado College's Rastall Center Thursday night.

Belknap will speak on "Sociological Disorders" at 7:30 p.m. in the West Room of the center. His discussion will include drug addiction, alcoholism, delinquency and over dependency.

A lecture by Dr. Gordon S. Riegel and Dr. Michael J. McNally on "Physical Causation of Mental Illness" will be scheduled at a later date. Their talk was cancelled Wednesday because of the weather.

Belknap, a graduate of Cornell, New York and Columbia Universities, arrived here in August, 1964, after serving as executive director of the Welfare Planning Council in Santa Barbara, Calif.

His experience includes work on the Flint, Mich. County Area Staff, child welfare worker, New Hampshire; street club worker, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mental Hygiene Clinic, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.; Westchester County Public Welfare, N. Y., and Y. M. C. A. and boys club work, N. Y.

Balknap was a lecturer in social welfare for two years at the University of California and an instructor in sociology at Santa Barbara City College.

The educational series is cosponsored by the Colorado Springs Junior League, Inc. and the El Paso County Association for Mental Health. The course is available by reservation only and no more are being taken at this time.

Slaying Suspect Turns Out to Be Spy

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A man held as a suspect in the slaying of his wife turned out to be a spy for Communist East Germany, the Interior Ministry said Friday night.

The announcement said the espionage activities of Johann Austerhuber, 40, an Austrian mechanic, came to light while he was questioned about the death last December of his wife.

Colorado, Wyoming Engineers Set To Kickoff Conference at Boulder

a three-day Boulder-Denver meeting of Colorado and Wyoming highway engineers will be held Feb. 25, at the University of Colorado.

The 38th annual CU Highway Engineers' Conference — to be held in Boulder — will begin the series of meetings to be held as part of the Colorado Engineers Convention. The full convention sessions will be held Friday and Saturday, Feb. 26 and 27, at the Cosmopolitan Hotel in Denver.

The CU conference, after one day in Boulder, will move to Denver for a concluding session the morning of Feb. 26 and then will merge with the overall convention activities.

The University also is taking part in arrangements for a convention program to look into the possibilities of providing more post-graduate instruction for Colorado engineers.

The Boulder meeting will feature speeches and discussions regarding the methods and reasoning that go into building Colorado highways. Various state engineers, including Colorado Chief Engineer Charles E. Shumate, will speak.

Dr. Edward Sampson, CU professor of civil engineering, will speak on "A Method of Predicting the Heave of a Pavement over a Colorado Swelling Soil." Sampson and other CU researchers recently worked out the formula after a two-year study of the problem of bumpy roads.

During the second-day session of the CU-sponsored conference in Denver, Robert S. Ayre, chairman-elect of the CU Department of Civil Engineering, will discuss "Education for Civil Engineering."

Other sessions of the CU conference will deal with detailed talks on technical problems of highway engineering by various state and federal engineers.

The second program, "Continuing Education for Technological Growth in Colorado," will be presented at the Cosmopolitan Hotel and is sponsored by the Colorado unit of the American Society for Engineering Education (ASEE).

Dr. K. D. Timmerhaus, associate dean of the CU College of Engineering and director of the college's Engineering Research Center, said, "It is recognized that there is no well-structured and really effective continuing education program to meet the needs of the engineering industry in Colorado."

Therefore, he said, the program has been planned to "gain appreciation of the successful continuing education programs that could work in Colorado, to allow an audience from the state to question and consider them as models for such programs here and to encourage a united decision for implementation of the best possible continuing education for Colorado."

Timmerhaus said guest speakers, well-informed on successful continuing education programs around the United States, would participate on panel discussions and be available to answer questions from the Colorado engineers.

Among speakers and panel participants at the meetings will be Dean A. C. Ingersoll of the University of Southern California and chairman of the ASEE's industry relations division; Dr. E. J. Thielen, director of continuing professional studies at Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn; Dean L. M. K. Boelter, University of California at Los Angeles; A. J. Kullas, director of research and engineering at Denver's Martin Co. plant, and J. G. Welles, head of industrial economics at Denver University's Research Institute.

Both Candidates Claim Victory In Steel Vote

support growing speculation that the election will mushroom into a court fight.

Abel, secretary-treasurer of the United Steelworkers Union, ran for union president Tuesday in a move to end McDonald's 12-year control of the 980,000-member union.

The Abel statement, the first issued by him since the election, predicted victory for him by at least 10,000 votes, adding: "In addition, we are in the process of collecting information on voting irregularities in a number of places and we believe that as a result of the protests which will be filed, the incumbent president will lose many thousands of additional votes.'

Abel was not available for elaboration on the nature of the alleged irregularities.

McDonald could not be reached for comment, but an aide at his headquarters labeled the Abel statement "ballyhoo and speculation."

Friday, McDonald predicted victory for himself.

An unofficial tabulation by The Associated Press showed Abel ahead by a slim margin. The returns were not complete as some votes were still unreported.

Under the union's constitution, a member may file a vote protest to the USW's three international tellers. The tellers' report would go to the union's executive board for final decision.

A member could file a protest directly to the board if he feels he did not receive proper consideration from the tellers.

If the board decides that a protest is justified, it must toss out all votes from the complaining member's local. In some locals, this would amount to several thousand votes.

A union member could carry his protest to the U.S. secretary of labor under the Landrum-Griffin Act. The secretary could file suit if his investigation turned up a violation which could have a bearing on the outcome of the election.

The statement by Abel also issued a call to union members to come forward with any information they may have on voting irregularities.

The election has interrupted basic steel contract negotiations. Both sides had said they hoped to resume talks around the middle of February.

But Friday, when asked whether the negotiators would get back to bargaining by then, McDonald replied: "I don't know."

No Injuries In Four-Car Accident Here

A spectacular four-vehicle accident Friday on Colorado 115, ten miles south of Colorado Springs, miraculously resulted in no injuries, the State Patrol reported today.

The accident, which occurred at 1:05 p.m. Friday, took place when three cars northbound on Colorado 115 were involved in a chain-reaction accident, and a southbound car collided with one of the northbound cars.

Barbara Isbell, 23 Colorado Springs, Louie Vanloo, 53, Canon City, and James Wheeler, 55, Canon City, were all northbound on the highway. Isbell stopped on the highway to make a left-hand turn onto another road, and the Vanloo car was unable to stop, ramming into the back of the Isbell vehicle and knocking it into the path of the southbound car driven by Doris Hopper, 22, Canon City.

Wheeler was unable to avoid the Vanloo car, and the two vehicles collided, according to the patrol.

The Isbell vehicle, a Willys truck, had $500 damage, while the Hopper and Vanloo cars had $300 damage. The Wheeler automobile had $200 damage, according to the patrol.

Hike in Denver Bus Fares Being Sought

DENVER (AP)—The Denver Tramway Corp. asked the Colorado Public Utilities Commission Saturday for authority to increase the basic fare for city buses from 25 cents to 30 cents and to reduce its service.

It also asked for a five-cent charge for transfers and a 20 cent fee for school children instead of the present 15 cents.

The company said it wants to [illegible] operations nights, Sundays and holidays on certain [illegible] which produce less revenue than the cost of operation.

Professor Sees Crossroads In Education

Colorado stands at a crossroads in education, a University of Denver professor said here Thursday night.

He was Dr. Michael McGiffert, an associate professor of history, who gave the second of four lectures in the annual lecture series sponsored by the local University of Colorado Center and Colorado College.

The third lecture will be given next Thursday by Dr. William Milnek of the University of Colorado on "The Colorado Economy." Topic of McGiffert's lecture was "Scaling the Peaks of Excellence: The Problems of Higher Education."

Although the state now faces the problem of making some basic decisions, this is nothing new, for the problems in some ways are just as they always were, the professor said.

McGiffert said the state has not scaled the heights in education, but it has "established itself on the foothills, and the next order of business is to mount an assault on the peaks."

One of the problems facing the state is that "excellence is getting more excellent all of the time, so you have to run just to keep up," he said.

The problem of higher education has always been with the state, even before it was a state. "Basic decisions were made during the time Colorado was a territory," he said.

The earliest citizens did not feel the need for any colleges, thinking that if anyone wanted to go to school he could go east. This idea persisted through the years and still has vestiges in Colorado, McGiffert said.

When the miners and other early settlers talked of higher education, they thought maybe a school of mines would be all right, were very doubtful about a school of agriculture and had no need at all for a general state university of Colorado, the professor pointed out.

When the mountain communities and other settlers got together on an agreement for schools, they adopted the principle of decentralization and that principle has been built in ever since, he pointed out.

Boulder got Colorado University, Ft. Collins got the agricultural school, Golden got the mining school, Greeley got the first normal school, Denver got the capitol, and Canon City, which didn't want a school, took the penitentiary instead, McGiffert said.

Not only were the schools distributed around the east slope, but each school also was given its own board of control, thus fragmenting control and planning, he explained.

Critics pointed out that a union of the schools would save money, and that the state should have one good school and not a number of weak ones.

However, the pattern was set and has pretty well persisted since then.

This has made it difficult for the state to finance higher education, as the state's economy has always been colonial —financed from outside for outsider's profits.

The state's economy could not afford to support higher education with the affluence that some other states could, especially since the people who took the fortunes out of the mountains in minerals were not interested in giving any of that to education.

Colorado Springs' own Winfield Stratton was the first of the gold and silver millionaires to give money to education when he donated $50,000 to Colorado College and $25,000 to the Colorado School of Mines.

The problems facing the state now are:

—What to do about the great number of students now on hand and the even greater number expected in the coming years. "Expansion, a radical expansion, seems necessary and inevitable," he said.

—How to establish a more effective coordination of educational policies in the state's public schools of higher education.

"Does the state need more planning at the state level for all schools and this will bring more state control to every school?" he asked.

To point out the problem of today in so far as controls of schools is concerned, he said that the state has its first three schools, Colorado University, Colorado State University, the Colorado School of Mines, five senior four-year colleges and five junior colleges, with nine different boards of control.

No one is sure what the junior colleges ought to do: be vocational schools? Prep schools for the four-year schools? Be the 13th and 14th grades of the public school system?

Financing junior colleges also is not settled, with different views being held as to who ought to pay how much, he said.

McGiffert pointed out that recent studies have shown that about 15 per cent of the students in Colorado junior colleges are studying vocational subjects, and the other 85 per cent have indicated they intend to go on to further education.

The professor pointed out that the Metropolitan State College that was approved in 1963 by the legislature for Denver has not yet come into being because no money has been appropriated.

Clyde T. Lookhart Dies Here Saturday

Mr. Clyde T. Lookhart, 435 E. Willamette St., died Saturday at a local nursing home. Mr. Lookhart was 76.

He was born on June 26, 1888, in Hildreth, Neb., and came to Colorado Springs in 1935.

Mr. Lookhart was a retired Carpenter, and was a member of the Methodist Church.

Three Held By Police For Break-Ins

Two men and a 17-year old youth were being held by police Saturday for investigation of breaking into several paper racks all over Colorado Springs.

The men are Joseph Phillip Martinez, 19, 1128 W. Colorado Ave., and Eugene Paul Marfuez, 19, 311 W. Portland Ave.

Cpl. W. Finstrom and Patrolman Neal Stratton spotted the trio in a car early Saturday morning which matched the description of one seen by some paper racks which had been forced.

The officers investigated and at first all three denied the incidents, but when a hammer bearing paint similar to that on a Gazette Telegraph rack was found in the rear of their car the three were brought to police headquarters.

The 17-year old admitted his participation in the acts and later the other two also confessed, the report said.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, Gloria's Mother, Dies at Age 60

LOS ANGELES (AP) —Mrs. Gloria M. Vanderbilt, the mother of heiress Gloria Vander died of cancer Saturday at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, a spokesman said. She was 60.

The hospital spokesman said she was admitted to the hospi-

Mrs. Vanderbilt first entered Cedars of Lebanon Hospital for surgery last Dec. 8.

Her physician at that time said surgery was performed upon her aorta — the major artery carrying blood from the heart to other organs. Her physician did not expand upon the nature of the disorder, or the corrective measures.

She was later discharged from the hospital and was readmitted on Feb. 2.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was the widow of Reginald C. Vanderbilt.

Following his death, she and other members of her family were involved in a custody battle over her daughter Gloria.

Group Protests Viet War in Denver March

DENVER (AP) — About 20 persons carrying signs protesting the role of the United States in the war in Viet Nam paraded through downtown Denver Saturday afternoon.

As they walked, they were joined by about an equal number of counter-demonstrators, mostly teen-agers, who paraded on the opposite sides of the streets. Police kept an eye on the demonstration but aside from heckling from both sides there were no incidents.

'Monkey College' Foiled By Six 'Space Monkeys'

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP) — Six female monkeys have used their "college education" and well-padded derrieres to foil their trainers and cause a space flight experiment to be canceled.

The monkeys had been scheduled for tests in which their performance in a simulated space capsule while under exposure to radiation was studied. Scientists at the Atomic Energy Commission's Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory wanted to learn what effects solar radiation would have on astronauts during manned Gemini flights.

But the monkey wrench went into the works when the "astromonks" discovered how to avoid — and thus ignore — electrical shocks.

The monkeys had been trained at the "monkey college" at Holloman Air Force Base, N.M., to operate the panels. If they responded properly to lights on the panels, they were rewarded with food or water. If not, they got a shock through the metal.

But being Macaca speciosa monkeys, they are gifted with thick callous where they sit. After a little experimentation, the monkeys began to wedge their hands and feet against the plastic walls of the capsules, thus leaving only the callous exposed to the floor and avoiding effects of the current.

"There was no alternative but to cancel," a Los Alamos radiobiologist, said, explaining that the shocks were necessary for keeping the animals' behavior predictable.

These monkeys will be retrained for other experiments. Twelve rhesus monkeys, which aren't so well padded, will be trained as their replacements in the space capsules.

The text of the 550-word message was broadcast in Chinese by Radio Peking.

Although it comes at a time when the Kremlin and Peking are at odds over how to spread communism throughout the world, there was no mention of this ideolgoical dispute in the broadcast.

The Chinese message went beyond the crisis in Viet nam.

It called for unity of the Communist nations in giving "resolute support of the armed anti-U.S. struggles of the Vietnamese and other Indochinese people i.e. in Laos and Cambodia, the struggles of the Japanese and German peoples against the arming of Japanese and West German militarism by the United States, the struggles of the people of Cuba and the Congo (Leopoldville) against U.S. armed intervention, and the struggle of the people throughout the world against U.S.-led imperialism's policies of aggression and war and for world peace, national liberation, people's democracy and socialism, until final victory is won."

tees for their "leadership, guidance and counsel."

Fielden was named Memorial superintendent in February, 1952, after resigning as head of Surgical Supplies Inc., Knoxville, Tenn. Prior to this he was superintendent of Northwest Texas Hospital, Amarillo, Tex.

Said Hendee, "Finding an administrator for this type of institution will be a difficult assignment because of the magnitude and complexities of a modern hospital operation."

He said the board will meet this week to determine policies for management of Memorial until another executive director can be selected.

Mayor Hoth expanded his views of last week with another statement Saturday: "If the city is to continue its hospital operation it will be necessary to solve many and complex problems to meet the rapidly increasing population.

"These problems require even closer cooperation and coordination between the board of trustees and the city council. These problems will require re-evaluation and reappraisement of policies and procedures in the hospital operation."

The mayor said he would ask the council to increase the number of trustees from the present five and said the council would begin discussing the nursing school.

Walsky was unavailable for comment Saturday.

Cooke said the vacancy on the boards will probably be filled at the next regular meeting Thursday.

Left on the board are Gene Hagans, 1100 Main St.; Jack Frazee, 205 Rose Dr.; John H. McMinn, 324 Davie Dr.; and Cook.

The large citizens' turnout at the Jan. 21 meeting was to protest watering hours. Customers complained that former evening and morning hours allowed garden hoses to freeze.

The board differed, in a two to three vote, on whether the district manager or the board should have the power to set watering hours. Previously it was felt that this was a "political decision" which should not be up to the manager.

However Manager Rempie was given the power to change hours and he did, giving most of the citizens the hours they wanted.

Anti-Government Rioting Rocks Malaysia Capital

By TONY ESCODA

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Communists and Indonesia were blamed for a four hour antigovernment riot Saturday that also saw windows smashed at the U.S. Information Agency library.

Police announced the disorders were under control in this Malaysian capital. Troops and police patrolled streets. More than 100 persons were arrested, and a curfew was imposed.

The rioting began at 10 a.m. at a rally called to demand the overthrow of Prime Minister Abdul Rahman. The crowd called for release of arrested leftist Socialist Front leaders.

Troops in battle gear and police carrying wicker shields and batons hurled tear gas into the crowds, which scurried down side streets. Other bands of about 250 demonstrators each were broken up in the downtown area.

A mob of 200 broke the plate glass windows of the U.S. library. These were believed to be from the 500 who were blocked in their march on Socialist Front headquarters.

The windows were smashed with poles and rocks. A bicycle was hurled into the building. Despite the damage, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said the library would open Monday as usual.

Witnesses said the demonstrators appeared to be well-organized.

Police Hold Man In Auto Theft

Police said Friday they were holding a man for investigation of grand larceny after he was caught fleeing from a car that had been reported as stolen.

Bob Foss, of Bob Foss Motors, 324 E. Pikes Peak Ave., saw a car being driven down south Wahsatch Avenue Friday night, and told police that at first he thought it was being driven by a salesman. A check, however, revealed that the car had been stolen.

Patrolman Marvin Sykes later saw the car being driven down E. Cache La Poudre Street and gave chase in a patrol car.

After the man realized he was being followed, he apparently stopped the car and fled, and Patrolman Sykes then gave chase on foot. The man was apprehended in the 700 block of N. Tejon Street, and a witness to the footrace said the fleeing man had thrown a gun away just prior to being apprehended.

The gun was found, and police later discovered it was loaded.

The man told police that someone he didn't know had loaned him the car, and also said he was buying the gun from another party. He denied stealing the car.

The man was identified as Charles E. Williams, 38, 730 E. Platte Ave., and he was being held in City Jail for investigation of grand larceny, according to police.

In Philadelphia, some 300 persons marched from Independence Hall to City Hall protesting the war in Viet Nam.

At City Hall, the estimated 300 were met by some 75 other counterdemonstrators carrying signs proclaiming: "Support Viet Nam," and "Fight Communism."

Police made demonstrators from both sides surrender the sticks on which they carried their signs. They said they took the action as a "precautionary measure."

Viet 'Peace Talks' May Be Launched in Moscow

sidered the logical power to act as liaison in any effort to get a Viet Nam conference under way.

Both French President Charles de Gaulle and Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India have called for another Geneva conference. India is a member of the International Truce Commission on Indochina, charged with preserving the statutes of the 1954 conference.

(The British ambassador to the United States said Friday night in a speech in Williamsburg, Va., that his country may "play a larger and more active role" in support of the U.S. commitment to South Viet Nam.

(But he added military force could play only a limited role "in the great struggle for the hearts and minds of men in which we are now engaged.")

The Johnson Administration was officially silent about proposals for a negotiated settlement on Viet Nam. But officials in Washington said privately the United States had never ruled out peace talks and that it was up to North Viet Nam and Communist China to halt guerrilla attacks on South Viet Nam.

Senate Republican leader Everett Dirksen predicted in Chicago that military action in Viet Nam may be increased soon. He spoke in a taped radio broadcast and said nothing about negotiations.

The United States should meet increased Viet Cong attacks on U.S. military bases with "equal if not greater intensity and with more weapons and greater firepower," Dirksen said.

Sen. J W.. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, praised Thant's suggestion for a conference.

"Personally, I think it is always wiser to talk than to fight when you can get the parties together," Fulbright told a newsman.

Husband, Wife Both Are Mail Carriers

"I have a lot more in common with my husband than many wives," the red-haired mother of two children remarks. "We can compare notes and talk about the business."

A former bank teller and office worker, Janice decided on a government job for security. In October 1963 she began toting around a mail bag weighing 30 to 35 pounds.

One of the annoyances to a woman carrier, she said, is wolf whistles.

"I don't mind the whistles," she said. "I usually consider the source and just go on about my business."

The wisecracks are getting fewer, but some people still refer to her as Aunt Sam.

"I don't have a weight problem," she said. "Although, just like my husband, I eat more now, I walk it off. Right now I have on three pairs of slacks to keep me warm. I guess that makes me look a little bigger."

Selma Sheriff Is Recovering At Hospital

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Sheriff James G. Clark, symbol of resistance to the Dallas County Negro civil rights drive but also the subject of a Negro prayer meeting, was recovering in a Selma hospital today from an attack of chest pains.

The 42-year-old sheriff was hospitalized Friday. He was reported "doing fine" by officials of Vaughn Memorial Hospital, who added he probably will remain there for several days.

Clark was admitted for observation and a rest. His office reported that he was "worn out."

On learning that the man who had arrested more than 3,000 of their number during the four-week rights campaign was ill, 200 placard-carrying Negroes marched from Brown's Chapel church Friday afternoon to the Dallas County Courthouse.

But instead of protest messages, the placards this time read: "Get well Jim Clark in mind and body," and "Speedy recovery Jim Clark."

The Negroes held a prayer meeting for the sheriff, kneeling on the sidewalk outside his office in a heavy rain. Police made no effort to remove them.

In another development, U.S. District Court Judge Daniel H. Thomas ordered Dallas County authorities to turn over to federal marshals custody of 26 civil rights workers held in contempt of court by Circuit Court Judge James Hare. The 26 were arrested on Feb. 1 and Feb. 2 during the voter registration drive.

Annie Velma Gillis Dies Here Saturday

Mrs. Annie Velma Gillis, 644 La Salle St., died Saturday at a local hospital. She was 79.

Mrs. Gillis was born Aug. 6, 1885, in Starkville, Miss., and came to Colorado Springs in 1963.

She was a member of the Pleasant Ridge Baptist Church in Starkville.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Ruth Bohannon, Albuquerque, N. M., Mrs. Virginia Murphy, Brooksville, Miss., and Mrs. Maude Wright, Colorado Springs; a son, Albert Gillis, Albuquerque, N. M.; a brother, Grady Heflin, Starkville, Miss.; five grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The concluding services and burial are in care of the Martin and Sons Funeral Home in Starkville.

Three Receive Silver Beaver Awards Here

Three Boy Scout leaders were given Silver Beaver Awards and two women, also hard-working Scout leaders, were given Lyle Norton Arrowhead Awards Saturday night at the Annual Recognition Dinner of the Pikes Peak Scout Council.

The three Silver Beaver Awards went to:

—Floyd Wohlgemuth of 820 N. Logan St., Scoutmaster of Troop 63, sponsored by the East Side Rotary Club.

—Leslie C. Herman, 149 Rose Dr., Security, district commissioner of Ute Scout District.

—Rev. A. G. Edstrom, 526 Solano Dr., pastor of Bethany Lutheran Church and district chairman for Ute District.

The two winners of the Lyle Norton Arrowhead Award were:

—Mrs. Dorothy Burgess, den mother of Limon, Colo., who won the award for distinguished Den Mother. She has three sons, all in Scouting, and a daughter.

—Mrs. Earl Leonard, office secretary for the Pikes Peak Council, who received an honorary award for 20 years of service as a den mother and contributions to the local Scouting program.

Demo Vice Chairman To Seek Reelection

BOULDER (AP) — Mrs. Virgeen Hedgecock of Boulder announced Saturday that she will seek re-election as state Democratic vice chairman at the March 20 central committee meeting.

Mrs. Hedgehock was appointed to the position Jan. 6 when Mrs. Evelyn Davidson resigned to become chief clerk of the Colorado House of Representatives.

She has served as campaign coordinator, registration coordinator and headquarters chairman in Boulder County. She is a member of the central committee.

"The Clown," by Heinrich Boll (McGraw-Hill $5): The underdogs and outcasts, the failures and the fall guys — these are the anti-heroes, stock in trade of contemporary novelists. Their settings range from the trim cottages of suburbia to the grim ghettos of Brooklyn. But nowhere is the story told more sympathetically than in this brilliant import from post-war Germany.

Hans Schnier, son of a Bonn coal magnate, is a professional pantomimist. He keeps cognac in the refrigerator, can smell a woman's perfume over the telephone, and has a child's ineptitude in dealing with the world. We meet him at the low point of his career, without money, his last performance flubbed, deserted by the only woman he feels he can love.

One by one, anti-hero Schnier telephones his friends to ask for money or simply to let off steam. With each call his situation becomes more hopeless.

In lesser hands, the writing might have collapsed into morbidity or bathos. But the author has an existentialist's — and a clown's — keen sense of the absurb. His hummor saves him.

The immediate conflicts — German politicis, a heritage of war-guilt, Roman Catholic ethics — probably fall outside the reader's own experience. But the problem of alienation is a basic one. The author argues that the clown — cut off by his essential honesty from the ways of the world — is the only character with a feeling for human values. It's an argument worth listening to.

"Now, Hear This!" by Adm.. Daniel V. Gallery, U.S.N. Ret. (Norton $3.95): Come aboard the aircraft carrier Okinawa and meet the funniest crew of goldbricks ever to wear bell-bottomed trousers.

There is Fatso, the scheming bosum, who would sell the ship out from under the admiral if he could, and he thinks he can. Swinging from his perch below decks is Antonio, the silent parrot, who was worth his weight in feathers when an electronics-happy sailor wired him for sound. Throw in Beer Bottle and Satchelaft — two seagoing katzenjammer kids — and you have the start on the wildest crew to put to sea since Captain Kidd mustered all hands on deck.

The author himself has the makings of a legend. During World War II, he hatched and executed a plan that led to the capture of a German submarine on the high seas.

Gallery strings his anecdotes together with a skill and authenticity from his 43 years experience in uncovering the enlisted man's below-decks business schemes. Only the names are changed to protect the guilty.

If you admire a man with enough nerve to throw an entire naval maneuver into chaos to protect his job in the incinerator, or if you can relish a sailor's whacking an officer in the rear end with a bat, you'll like Gallery's version of naval-comics-I-have-known.

"The Complete Book of Outdoor Lore," by Clyde Ormond (Harper & Row, $4.95): The average reader will never find himself in a spot where he has to make fishing flies out of his shirttail and hair or dig up the roots of reeds or cattails to get enough to eat. This well-written little book contains instructions for such emergency situations, but it also deals with all sorts of woodland lore not connected with survival. The hiker or hunter will welcome these pages for the added pleasure they will give in the outdoors. They include concise descriptions of the main trees and animals of North America and a wealth of information on canoeing, camping and outdoor cooking. Armed with this book and only a basic knowledge of the woods, the ourdoorsman could build a raft or boat, make his own clock and soap, set up temporary or permanent shelters, trap, prepare and cook game, guard the camp from predators and, most important of all, have his eyes opened to the wonders of the woods, streams and mountains.

"The Brinkmanship of Galahad Threepwood," by P. G. Wodehouse (Simon & Schuster $4.50): This is another of the Blandings Castle tales told in the typical mode of Wodehouse comedy. Lord Emsworth's castle isn't exactly always his home — especially on Sundays when the "no-smoking" signs are put up and ropes stretched about to keep those in line who are willing to pay a halfcrown on visitors' days. And some of the pomp and decorum of a castle is a bit blemished by constables running about the castle grounds looking for one of the guests who is alleged to have snatched a watch in a pub. Out in the pigsty, Emsworth's sow, Empress of Blandings, has gotten a snoutful of whiskey which was accidentally spilled in her mash, resulting in a smashing hangover. But being a bleary-eyed pig isn't really so bad when she has a nurse who is a rather charming but well-muscled girl agriculture expert who is devoted to keeping the sty clear of intruders. Wodehouse is one of the very few writers who has succeeded in providing a transition between American and English comedy — possibly because he has lived in both countries and feels as much at home in one as the other. This is his 69th book.

CIVIL WAR BOOKS

Emory Upton was a complex character, a soldier who took his profession seriously, so seriously that it killed him, not on the battlefield, but at his desk and by his own hand.

Upton came out of West Point at the start of the Civil War. His record in the war was excellent and his rise rapid —he was a brevet major general before he was 26. But in addition to being a soldier he also was a reformer.

After the war he formulated a plan for the U.S. Army which never was accepted in full. He believed the defense of the country should be in the hands of a professional army and free from civilian control.

Upton's career and what made him the complex man he was is ably written by Stephen Ambrose in "Upton and the Army" (Louisiana State University Press $5) Ambrose is a professor of history at Johns Hopkins University.

Louis Moreau Gottschalk was a New Orleans concert pianist and composer who also could write. His "Notes of a Pianist" (Knopf $6.95) contains considerable interesting comment on the Civil War scene. During the war he played all over the North, braving snow and sleet to give concerts in the chief cities as well as out of the way places. Being Southern-born appears to have hampered him little, if any. His best known piece "The Banjo" still is played. But Gottschalk's chief charm was his notes in which he recorded his thoughts and experiences (and adventures) in great detail. Always a ladies' man, he left the United States suddenly after an escapade in San Francisco and died in Rio de Janeiro in 1869. The notes were edited by Jeanne Behrend, a concert pianist in her own right. She also wrote a prelude and postlude.

Viet Cong Flag Run Up in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Communist Viet Cong flag was run up the flagpole of the San Francisco federal building Friday by demonstrators protesting U.S. counterattacks in North Viet Nam.

The flag was swiftly hauled down by General Service Administration guards. Police said about 500 persons participated.

Legion Official Blasts Plans For VA Care

DENVER (AP) — An American Legion official Friday challenged statements that Denver Veterans Hospital is able to take in patients from the Grand Junction Hospital.

George H. Astler, commander of the Veterans Administration "to prove the ability to handle patients without the beds at Grand Junction."

Astler said that 25 patients were turned away by the Denver hospital Friday.

Dr. Paul M. Ireland, director of the Denver hospital, earlier said the institution could handle new patients "with our eyes closed." Ireland said that the planned May 1 closing of the Grand Junction hospital, "from a logical position, is the only thing that should be done."

Among the 24 attempted admissions rejected, Astler said, were "four neuro-psychiatric, eight medical and 12 surgical."

Astler said vacancies listed by the hospital are "limited by classification. . . if the patients for which the Grand Junction Hospital was built do not come under the classification open in Denver, they would have to remain at home or perhaps on top of one of our mountain passes.

"Right now a veteran is being forced from the Denver Veterans Administration Hospital on the ground that technically he should be in a nursing home."

AGREE ON EXCISE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., has introduced legislation to repeal the 10 per cent excise tax on jewelry, furs, toiletries and luggage.

The Illinois Republican submitted his bill Friday. He said Republicans have supported the repeal for years and that he was "glad the President' has seen the light.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Steelers Wednesday signed veteran offensive end Gary Ballman, the club's top receiver last season, and Southern California quarterback Craig Fertig, the Steelers' 20th draft choice.

DRIVING AND DRINKING

In England and Wales last year, traffic accidents jumped 50 per cent during the four-day period from Dec. 23 to 26. The rate was so high the minister of transport asked the road research laboratory to investigate the circumstances under which the mishaps took place. The amount of traffic was found to be the same as on other days in December or less. The weather did not play a role, even though it was bad in some districts.

Use of alcohol headed the list of causes. One-third of all pedestrians killed had been imbibing. The same applied to one-third of the drivers involved and one-quarter of all riders of motorcycles or bicycles.

In addition, alcohol played a role in 48 per cent of the accidents and in nearly three-quarters of the single vehicle, non-pedestrian injuries. A somewhat similar study was done in Illinois during a previous season and 57 per cent of the traffic fatalities involved someone who had been drinking.

The road research laboratory had no way of determining how many people who had indulged were not involved in accidents and, in this respect, a statistical study of this type is incomplete. Several years ago the police stopped every motorist entering Evanston, Ill., on a Saturday evening and asked whether they had been drinking. A high percentage admitted to one or more cocktails. We assume that the same situation exists elsewhere and that the majority of drinkers get home safely.

"Happy driving" also entered the picture. A few drinks at a party may be worse than enough to make a person too inebriated to drive. Even an expert may fumble at the wheel when his judgment and usual caution are dissolved by two or three martinis.

There is no such thing as safety in numbers when it comes to holiday motoring. Imagine what a busy highway is like when four out of five drivers have been swigging at a Christmas party. There is a general tendency to drive too fast.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

TEETH AND SINUS

M.. S. writes: Could sinus disease cause toothache?

RPELY

Yes. The roots of the upper teeth are quite close to the bottom of the maxillary sinuses on each side of the nose. Now and then an infection in these sinuses is associated with painful teeth.

MUTE FOR DAYS

O. J. H. writes: I live alone and sometimes do not talk to anyone for three or four days. Will this affect my power of speech?

REPLY

No, and you always can talk to yourself and sing in the bathtube if you are concerned about your vocal cords.

STOMACH IRRITATION

A. A. G. writes: Is gastritis caused by the type of food eaten?

REPLY

Hot foods and overindulgence in alcohol may irritate the lining of the stomach.

Mrs. M. writes: Can a child be injured internally by a severe pounding on the buttocks by a man?

REPLY

OBESITY AND PREGNANCY

E. D. writes: Are fat women less likely to have children than those of normal weight?

REPLY

Capacity Crowd Expected To Hear Florence Speaker

A capacity crowd is anticipated Wednesday evening at the Florence Elks club to hear Dr. William A. Albrecht, emeritus professor of soils and chairman of the department of soils at the University of Missouri's college of agriculture, who has been invited to Florence to speak at a banquet sponsored by the Florence Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. Albrecht was invited to the Florence meeting to help introduce both a new product and a new industry, Vital-Earth Products, Inc., which is producing a new soil conditioner and fertilizer.

Invitations were mailed last week by the chamber's board of directors to scores of farmers and ranchers throughout Colorado and especially in the Arkansas valley.

The dinner and meeting has been called for 7 p.m. at the Elks club and will be followed by an address by Dr. Albrecht, who has been a member of the Missouri staff since 1916. He holds four degrees from the University of Illinois and has traveled and studied soils in Great Britain and Australia.

Born on a farm in central Illinois, in an area of highly fertile soil typical of the Cornbelt, and educated in his native state, Dr. Albrecht grew up with an intense interest in the soil and all the things agricultural. These were approached, however, through the avenues of basic sciences and liberal arts and not primarily through applied practices. Some teaching experience after completing the liberal arts course, as well as an assistantship in botany, gave an early vision of the interrelationships that enrich the facts acquired in various fields when viewed as parts of a master design.

These experiences led Dr. Albrecht into additional undergraduate and graduate work that was encouraged by scholarships and fellowships until he received his doctor's degree in 1919, having in the meantime joined the research and teaching staff at the University of Missouri.

Dr. Albrecht's studies in soils have dealt with the functional viewpoint or the soil's service in nourishing microbes, plants, animal and all life. Research in nitrogen fixation has developed the technique of using colloidal clay as a nourishing medium for plants, and as a means of bringing plant-soil relations under more careful control and better understanding. This has been the basis for his interpretations of soils in their broader implications.

Dr. Albrecht is the author of many scientific and popular articles on soil and soil fertility. With unremitting zeal, his contributions emphasize the fundamental necessity of feeding plants, animals and humankind through ministrations to the soil itself, correcting the deficiencies of diet at their point of origin—in soils that have been assayed and found wanting.

Both as a writer and speaker, Dr. Albrecht serves tirelessly as an interpreter of scientific truth to inquiring minds in every group and institution that would implement this knowledge in service to mankind.

Dr. Albrecht was asked to speak at the banquet by Charles Krause, secretary of the Vital-Earth corporation and its president, Roy Burkett.

RECORD

BOULDER (AP) — A record total of 21,276 students is enrolled at the University of Colorado's four campuses for the spring semester, according to David B. Muirhead, director of admissions and records.

The figure is up 6.7 per cent over last spring's enrollment of 19,926.

Two at AFA Have Articles Published

Two Air Force Academy faculty members are authors of recently published articles and two Academy authors have been named contributing editors to a national publication.

Maj. R. L. Able's article "Are We Missing the Boat In Management" has been added to the curricular offering of the Squadron Officers School at Maxwell AFB, Ala. The major is assigned to the Department of Economics and Geography.

"Samuel Johnson: A Layman's Religion", by Capt. J. B. Misenheimer Jr., Department of English, was published in a recent issue of "English Language Notes."

Lt. Col. J. C. Gatlin Jr. and Capt. Misenheimer have been appointed contributing editors to the "Annual Bibliography of English Language," published by the Modern Humanities Research Association.

A third member of the English Department, Maj. Paul L. Briand, has won a citation in the new edition of "Who's Who in the West," a national biographical reference book.

His subject is "The Disappearance of Amelia Earhart."

Montgomery Asked To Teach in Egypt

CAIRO (AP) — Britain's Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery has been invited to teach in Cairo's new Nasser Military Academy, the paper Al Missaa reported. The academy is to be opened March 3. U.S. Extremist Groups to Be Investigated

By EDMON DLEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Committee on Un-American Activities is looking into the possibility of investigating the Ku Klux Klan, the Black Muslims, George Lincoln Rockwell's American Nazi party and the Minutemen.

The action was authorized unanimously at a closed meeting of the committee several days ago.

A resolution, not yet made public, called on chairman Edwin E. Wallis, D-La., to continue preliminary inquiries into matters that had been brought to the committee's attention.

The resolution named no organizations, but, it was learned, discussion at the meeting left no doubt that the four organizations were the ones concerned.

A source familiar with the committee's rules said the resolution is significant because while the chairman has standing authority to assign staff to preliminary checks, a full investigation may be undertaken only by committee vote. The full membership of the committee, therefore, affirmatively associated itself with Willis' inquiries.

The same source cautioned, however, against assuming that the committee necessarily would order an actual investigation and said that hearings, even if agreed on, could not be held without long advance preparation.

Since World War II the committee has given practically all its attention to left-wing groups.

Among the questions to be considered during the preliminary stage are the extent of the committee's authority, the possibility of legislation that might result from an investigation and the religious issue that might be raised by a probe of the Black Muslims.

The Black Muslims assert they are a religious organization. This Negro group believes there never can be racial peace or integration and views whites as the embodiment of the devil.

The Klan, which has a history of anti-Negro and anti-Roman Catholic actions, is an organization of whites that dates back to reconstruction.

The Minutemen, a comparatively new group based in the Midwest, believe Communists will take over one day. They buy firearms conduct drills for what they believe is an inevitable show down.

Rockwell's Nazi party is segregationist and mirrors the anti-Jewish views of Hitler's Germany. The members affect the dress of the German Nazis of pre-World War II.

Beatle Fan Takes Too Many Aspirin Tablets

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A 14-year-old girl, who told police she was depressed by Beatle Ringo Starr's marriage, has been hospitalized here after taking 16 aspirin tablets.

Police said Janice Wise of Columbus told them she took the pills over a two-day period because "Ringo has gotten married." She was hospitalized after she became sick at school Friday.

'I Thought I Was Dead,' Says Viet Survivor

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — "I feel pretty good now, but believe me I thought I was dead after I was hit," said Spec. 4 Carl J. Clayton of Brown, W. Va.

"Viet Nam is not a fight — except to keep from being overrun," commented Sgt. Howard Jackson, 47, of Los Angeles, a veteran of the Korean War.

"Somebody has got to come up with something," said Sgt. Eddie Anderson of Columbus, Ga., as he arrived at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington, D.C.

Those were some of the comments of 46 soldiers wounded in Viet Nam fighting. They arrived Thursday in three planes for treatment in hospitals in different parts of the United States. Planes carrying about 230 dependents ordered out of Viet Nam also arrived here and at San Francisco.

Military transport that arrived on the West Coast Thursday carried nine dead.

Another went to Ft. Dix, N.J., and the third, carrying Clayton and Jackson, landed here.

Clayton, Jackson and Anderson all were wounded in last Sunday's Viet Cong attack at Pleiku.

Jackson's right leg was ripped by shrapnel from a mortar blast. Anderson got a bullet through the right shoulder. Clayton said only that his injuries weren't serious.

Many dependents said they were sorry to leave Viet Nam, but most agreed that the move was necessary.

Military wives are used to moves "but this one was a little sudden," remarked Jean Adams, wife of Air Force Maj. Gen. Milton B. Adams, stationed at Saigon.

Some 1,400 more dependents were due within the next several days.

Jackson, Clayton, and 27 other wounded arrived in the last plane Thursday. That plane came in on three engines after low oil pressure shut down one engine over Alaska on the polar circle route from Clark Field near Manila.

As the planes landed here, the Tactical Air Command at Langley AFB, Va., disclosed its U.S. units had been on increased alert since Sunday because of the Viet Nam situation.

Pacific Air Force spokesmen at Honolulu said that an "exercise" is in progress. Strategic Air Command headquarters at Omaha, Neb., said only that increased numbers of bombers were on an operational exercise.

San Francisco area residents noticed the incerased air activity all day Thursday.

Army Personnel End Anniversary With a Holiday

A three-day holiday weekend will climax celebration of the third anniversary of Ft. Carson's 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized), Friday.

A parade at noon and military balls at night will be of the anniversary event.

Something new will be the role of unit history, compiled recently in condensed form by Lt. Col. A. L. Belknap and Lt. Col. Mark M. Boatner III.

During the morning, commander's time will be devoted to a study of this history, plus beltline procedures and training.

The provisional battalion for the parade will be commanded by Lt. Col. Harold D. Pinney, assistant Chief of Staff for personnel. Reviewing officer will be Maj. Gen. Autrey J. Maroun, 5th Division and Carson commander.

In the parade will be the Honor Guard, 12th Cavalry's horse mounted color guard, an infantry company from the 3d Brigade, an armor company, one artillery battery and one medical company.

The event will be in the fieldhouse if weather is bad. For the troops a training holiday starts at 12:30. Monday is a legal holiday in celebration of George Washington's birthday.

TOGETHER

When forcing bulbs this winter, keep each variety together in the same clay pot, as expert Holland and U.S. growers do. A six-inch clay azalea pot will hold six tulip bulbs, three large daffodil bulbs or three hyacinths. Set each type of bulb so that at least half is covered with a proper garden soil mixture.

Ranks of State Department Reshuffled

By ENDRE MARTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson reshuffled the State Department's top ranks Friday, naming Thomas C. Mann, a fellow Texan, undersecretary of state for economic affairs.

Mann, 52, a career diplomat, will replace W. Averell Harriman, the 73-year-old international troubleshooter. Harriman was named ambassador at large, a job which will free him from administrative work.

Presidential press secretary George E. Reedy said in announcing the changes that Harriman "will handle specific high-level assignments in the department and abroad."

Harriman had the title of undersecretary for political affairs. In the past the No. 3 job at the department has been fille by undersecretaries for either political or economic affairs.

Mann's designation, Reedy said, underscores the President's great interest in international economic affairs. The new undersecretary is familiar he was assistant secretary of state for economic affairs in the late 1950s.

Mann will vacate the job of assistant secretary for inter-American affairs. Johnson named Jack Hood Vaughn, now ambassador to Panama, to replace Mann in that post. Mann, it is understood, will no longer act as special White House adviser on Latin America.

The changes caused no surprise at the State Department. It has been reported for some time that Harriman found his job taxing and would eventually be replaced by a confidante of the President. Mann is a long-time friend of Johnson.

In addition to his many other chores Harriman was also in over-all command of charting U.S. policy in Africa. It is not expected that Mann will take over this task.

The new undersecretary is only the third career diplomat to reach the No. 3 post at the State Department. The others were Robert Murphy and Livingston Merchant, both during the second term of President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The State Department now has only one major vacancy, the No. 4 post of deputy undersecretary for political affairs. Llewellyn Thompson, ambassador at large, is holding this post temporarily.

Mann was ambassador to Mexico when Johnson became president in November 1963. Soon after, he was named assistant secretary for inter-American affairs.

The former Texas lawyer grew up on the Mexican border and entered the foriegn service in 1942. Most of his assignments have been concerned with Latin-American affairs, either in the department or at one of the hemispheric embassies.

Harriman's career includes service as ambassador to the Soviet Union and Great Britain, secretary of commerce, and governor of New York. As undersecretary he negotiated with the Soviet Union the limited nuclear test-ban treaty of 1963.

Vaughn, 44, the new assistant secretary for Latin America, is a former Peace Corps regional director. He was born in Columbus, Mont., and educated at the University of Michigan, where he was the boxing coach.

Red Paint Smashes Against Russ Mission

Sweet Adelines Slate Special Benefit Concert

The Columbine Chapter of Sweet Adelines, Inc. is staging an hour and one half show on Tuesday, March 9th, 1965, for the benefit of the Rocky Mountain Rehabilitation Center Education Division of the Den at the City Auditorium beginning at 8:00 p.m. The Columbine Chapter will be aided by the Pikes Peak Chapter of S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A., Inc.

Theme of the show is "Harmony for Hope House" and the price of admission is a $1 donation plus any other amount individuals wish to contribute.

Both organizations are civic minded and are formed for the purpose of teaching and training their members in the art of four part harmony. The Columbine Chapter, for women, was chartered in May of 1959 and they have been active in this region ever since.

The Pikes Peak Chapter of SPEBSQSA for men, has been established since 1947 and they have been a great benefit to our community in many ways.

The program will consist of the Mens Chorus, two Sweet Adeline quartets, "The Snow Tones" and "The Imps"; a group from the mens chorus called the "Insominacs"; the Womens Chorus and the "Hi Chords," past District Champions of the Central States District of SPEBSQSA.

Tickets are available at North Murray Drug, 832 N. Tejon, Chamber of Commerce office, downtown, or from members of both the Columbine Chapter and the Pikes Peak Chapter. Tickets will also be available from other Civic and Service organizations of Colorado Springs.

Speaker Recalls Fountain Tragedy

Fountain was almost destroyed by an explosion in 1888, Dr. Lester, fire department physician, recalled Friday.

Only three chimneys were left standing in the town after 3,000 gallons of naphtha and 36,000 pounds of powder in railway cars blew up May 14.

"Pieces of cars and railroad were scattered for up to three-fourths of a mile," said Dr. Williams. "Car wheels were split in two and hurled 500 feet. One rail was torn from the ties, carried 200 feet and driven into the ground.

"To one observer the burning naphtha around the locomotive made it seem a magnificent fiery-iron horse."

Dr. Williams spoke at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club of Colorado Springs in the Acacia Hotel.

Avalanche Rescue Exercise Is Fatal

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — An Austrian army staff sergeant, Herbert Url, 22, preparing for an avalanche rescue exercise, crawled into a prepared hole and had another man heap snow on him. Freed after 30 minutes, by a rescue unit, he died in a hospital.

Florence Senior Trumpets Way To Scholarship

Karl Leason, senior student at Florence High School and son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Leason of Florence, has accepted a four - year music scholarship to Adams State College, it was announced this week by Cletus Hill, FHS band director.

Leason, one of several Florence High School students invited to play last weekend with the Adams State College "Top of the Nation First Chair Band," was offered the scholarship following an audition with the ASC wind faculty of the department of music.

In addition to the full tuition scholarship, Leason will also get his practice room fees and private trumpet instruction at the school.

Making the trip to Adams State for the Saturday night concert were Cathy Perrino, Linda Gilbert, John Sartoris, Jim Roberts, and Leason.

Three of the Florence students were picked to play first chairs including Miss Perrino, flute; Roberts, trombone; and Sartoris, trumpet.

The Florence students were among 138 youngsters from some 30 state high schools taking part in the concert, which was staged after practice sessions Friday and Saturday. Guest conductor was William H. Hill, former ASC director now teaching in Los Angeles.

Presidentiil Advisor To Dedicate CU Lab

Dr. Donald F. Hornig, special assistant to President Johnson for science and technology, will be in Boulder Feb. 25, to speak and participate in breaking ground for a new building at the University of Colorado.

Hornig will give a free public lecture at 8 p.m. in Macky Auditorium.

That afternoon he will help break ground for a new Joint Institute for Laboratory Astrophysics (JILA) building southwest of Folsum Stadium. The ground breaking will begin at 3:30 p.m., and other participants will include CU President Joseph R. Smiley and Dr. Lewis Branscomb, JILA chairman.

Hornig is expected to tour CU scientific facilities during his visit. In addition to serving as a special assistant to President Johnson, he is chairman of the Federal Council for Science and Technology and chairman of the President's Science Advisory Committee. He served on the latter committee under both Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy.

JILA is a collaborative effort of CU and the National Bureau of Standards devoted to research and advanced training of students in atomic physics, aerodynamics and stellar astrophysics.

The new $2 million building to house the institute will be located just east of the University's power plant. The National Science Foundation has given CU $800,000 to help build the structure. Remainder of the cost will come from a revolving fund of state monies to be replaced by income from research activities of JILA.

Questions and Answers On Alcoholism

Editor's Note: As a public service, the Gazette Telegraph will answer questions on Alcoholism and Problem Drinking in our region. Send all inquires to this newspaper. Answers will be supplied by G. L. McDougall, Director, Alcoholism Information Center, Out West Building, sponsored by the El Paso County Council on Alcholism.

1. Q. What can I find out if I have a drinking problem that might be alcoholism?

A. If you are really worried about becoming a problem drinker, a test recommended by the National Council on Alcoholism which will prove whether or not you are an alcoholic: FOR SIX MONTHS, STICK TO A CERTAIN NUMBER OF DRINKS A DAY, NOT LESS THAN ONE AND NOT MORE THAN THREE (Standard, one-ounce size). If you are not a daily drinker, then confine the test to the days when you do drink (such as Friday, Saturay and Sunday). UNDER NO CONDITIONS should you exceed the stated number, regardless of what kinds of special occasion arise. The NCA SAYS THAT EVEN A HEAVY DRINKER SHOULD HAVE NO TROUBLE PASSING THE TEST BUT THAT "THE CHANCES ARE A HUNDRED TO ONE, HOWEVER, AGAINST A TRUE ALCOHOLIC'S BEING EITHER WILLING OR ABLE TO UNDERTAKE THE TEST."

2. Q. What is the National Council of Alccoholism?

A. The National Council on Alcoholism is an independent voluntary health agency with its own program for fighting the disease of Alcoholism. It is neither "wet" nor "dry." It holds no brief either for or against social drinking. It does not engage in or encourage any activities to promote or prevent the sale or consumption of alcholic beverages. It is concerned solely with the control and prevention of Alcoholism as a disease. Local Councils are affiliates of the National to derive the benefits of latest research material available with the minimum of cost to each community.

3. Q. Is the local Alcoholism Information Center part of A.A?

A. No, the Alcoholism Information Center is the service arm of the local Council, a cross-section of the community whose members are volunteers. The Council does what A. A. cannot and A. A. Does what the Council does not. The Council promotes Alcohol Education and referral to a media of recovery. Alcholics Anonymous is one of the most successful in the treatment area through their sustaining program.

4. Q. My Mother and Father both had drinking problems and we tried to get them to go to A. A. They refused, but did go to the Alcoholism Information Center and then to A. A. How come they would not do it for us?

A. It may be possible after a professional consultation they had a better idea of the progression of the illness and a clearer understanding of all media of recovery, then made their choice of A. A. The Center arranged with A. A. to have a member call on them and take them to a meeting. Psychological choice and not duress is very important to the victim of an illness that carries so much stigma due to lack of understanding that it is a respectable disease that effects all strata of society. No one starts out to be an Alcoholic anymore than anyone starts out to be a diabetic, TB, Cancer or Mental Illness victim.

5. A. My wife has been drinking excessively for years and has been diagnosed an Alcoholic by a Doctor, yet refuses to believe it. What help is there for her?

A. She probably refuses to face reality, one of the very characteristics that produced Alcoholism. A better understanding of her attitude is explained by Dr. Harry M. Tiebout, "Surrender Versus Compliance in Therapy." Motivation through family crisis! The World Health Organization says in essence, when the hurt becomes greater than the pleasure and relief obtained, the victim will do something about it. She is probably backing off the realization that it has happened to her. If the disease has progressed to the point you and your Doctor feel she needs treatment in spite of her denial, you can get a hold and treat order.

6. Q. My husband has been drinking for years and getting worse but refuses help, although at one time he did get some Antabuse which he never took. Could I give it to him in his food or drinks?

A. Perhaps your husband needs hospitalization for the illness Alcoholism.

According to Dr. R. L. Conde, Associate Psychiatrist, Emory John Brady Hospital in their description of a 14 year administration of Antabuse to problem drinkers, "After at least 24 hours of complete sobriety, the patients are begun on a dosage calculated to build up a prompt, protective blood level. Antabuse should be administered under medical supervision.

50¢ PLUS TAX

MURRAY DRUG STORE CUSTOMERS TO GET POSITIVE PROOF OF TAX DEDUCTIONS

The five Murray Drug Stores in Colorado Springs, "prescription specialists in the Pikes Peak region for over 50 years," are introducing a new Free Tax Service to their valued credit, or charge-account customers.

This new Free Tax Service will make it feasible for all qualifying customers to save from 15% to 40%, and even more on their 1965 Federal and State Income Tax medical deductions.

Senior Citizens will save up to 100% on both Federal and State levels with this new Free Tax Service.

The 1965 Internal Revenue Service regulations DO NOT limit deductions to prescription drugs, but will allow all other medication. A partial listing would include:

Analgesics, (Aspirin, Bufferin, etc.)
Antiseptics, (Bactine, Lavoris, Listerine, etc.)
Cough and Cold Preparations.
Diabetic Needs.
First Aid Supplies.
Laxatives.
Liniments.
Supplies, (Supportive hose, Thermometers, Vaporizers, etc.)
Vitamins (when ordered by a physician.

However, the taxpayer must be able to show proof of purchases, sales slips, and substantiate their payments.

Murray's new Free Tax Service has been designed to do this and more with 30 - day charge accounts. Their new automatic equipment — not available previously — will enable them to record your deductible purchases and furnish separate monthly and year-to-date accumulative totals on regular statements if paid monthly. However, customers must retain the original or duplicate enclosed sales slip for insurance claims and/or other reasons.

Murray's sincerely hope their customers will show approval of this plan by using it to the fullest extent. It offers additional tax savings, and certainly makes "Money Worth Even More" at a Murray Drug Store.

The Murray Drug Store will be pleased to discuss the advantage of a charge account at Murray's with you, or any of your friends, interested in the above plan, or Murray's will mail them an application to open a charge account. (adv.)

Salvation Army Celebrates Its 100th Anniversary

The 100th Anniversary of the Salvation Army is being commemorated this year throughout the world-wide organization of 25,000 trained officers, 30,000 employees and a million volunteer workers, or soldiers.

William Booth founded the great humanitarian army in London, England, in 1865. It has grown to become known the world over as "good samaritan to all the world's abandoneo poor."

A report of the Salvation Army Social Services states, "In the year 1865, William Booth, led by a divine compulsion and compassion for the anchurched, the erring, the bewildered and the unfortunate, went out from home and salary to preach the gospel as he felt God had called him to do."

The first open air meeting was held on Mile-End Waste, London. Booth's first idea was simple to get people converted and sen them to churches, but he soon realized this was impossible. He discovered early that man, being a combination of mind and body as well as soul, needed more than words and faith. He also needed mental and physical help.

So the unique ministry of the Salvation Army was born through which people not only received spirital help, but aid in their struggle against poverty, illiteracy and pain.

How well British born William Booth's dream of helping people has been realized is best shown by the world wide scope of the Army's activities today. Seventy-one countries and geological areas of the world feel the impact of the Salvationists work.

Some 20,000 Salvation Army Centers and facilities serve the needs of the world. In Malaya, India, Rhodesia, Indonesia and Sumatra, modern facilities treat and care for 1301 patients suffering from Leprosy. Ten institutes for the blind are maintained in areas so remote that aid for the afflicted would not otherwise be available.

Schools in many underdeveloped nations are financed and staffed by the Army. The steady increase in literacy in many areas has been attributed to these schools. As an example of the determination and patience of these workers, the first written language in a primitive area of Africa was devised and taught to former tribes of head hunters by an early Salvation Army officer-teacher.

The Army knows no national borders. Its well known international Emergency Relief units operate the world* over. The Army's Missing Persons Bureau each year re-unites hundreds of family members, some of whom have been separated for many years.

Close to home, the Army provides daily, often undramatic, service which have made its blue uniformed officers so familiar. Most cities and towns are served by a Corps, a Shelter or a committee of the Salvation Army.

In Colorado Springs the church and welfare corps is under the direction of Captain and Mrs. Roger Malmberg, who supervise the organization's welfare work in El Paso County. By the nature of its ministry the corps' work is among the economically deprived, providing for their spiitual as well as emergency economic needs.

Captain Malmberg said, "All members and friends of the Salvation Army can look back with affectionate pride on the early years of struggle and determined efforts to bring us through a hundred years of ministry. Now a new century of service to God and man is beginning."

He said the purposes remain unchanged, though the approach to serving has changed with the times. Salvation Army street bands, whose stirring music was once closely associated with Salvationism are no longer heard on street corners, except on rare occasions in slum sections of larger cities.

"While the primary purpose of the organization is spiritual," he said, "An amplified system of ministering to physical and moral needs is also emphasized."

To serve Southern Colorado in a program of rehabilitation of homeless men, the Salvation Army maintains a Men's Social Service Center. It is operated separately from the corps and is financed by donations of discarded clothing, furniture, household items from Southern Colorado families.

The Center's main function is the rehabilitation of alcoholics and sufferers from other psychological problems. It offers more than just lodging and food for men who have lost their ability to fill a useful place in society. It is a program that provides a protective environment in which men live while undergoing therapy. The theme, "Help that works through work that helps," is the cornerstone of the work therapy program.

The men are given jobs of collecting, sorting, repairing, painting, restoring the items contributed, and making them ready for sale in the Salvation Army Thrift Stores such as the one at 17 W. Colorado Avenue. Proceeds from the stores provide funds for the program.

According to administrators, the work phase of the program is one of the most important steps in re-establishing a sense of usefulness in a man. Other treatment at the Center includes spiritual guidance, social reorientation, psychological therapy and recreational facilities.

The Center has facilities for aboug 40 men, and during a normal year 120 to 130 men are admitted. Each year the record shows complete rehabilitation for 20 to 25 per cent of the group.

The Center operates trucks for at-the-door pick up of usable and repairable discards of any type. Free pick up service can be arranged by calling 633-4697.

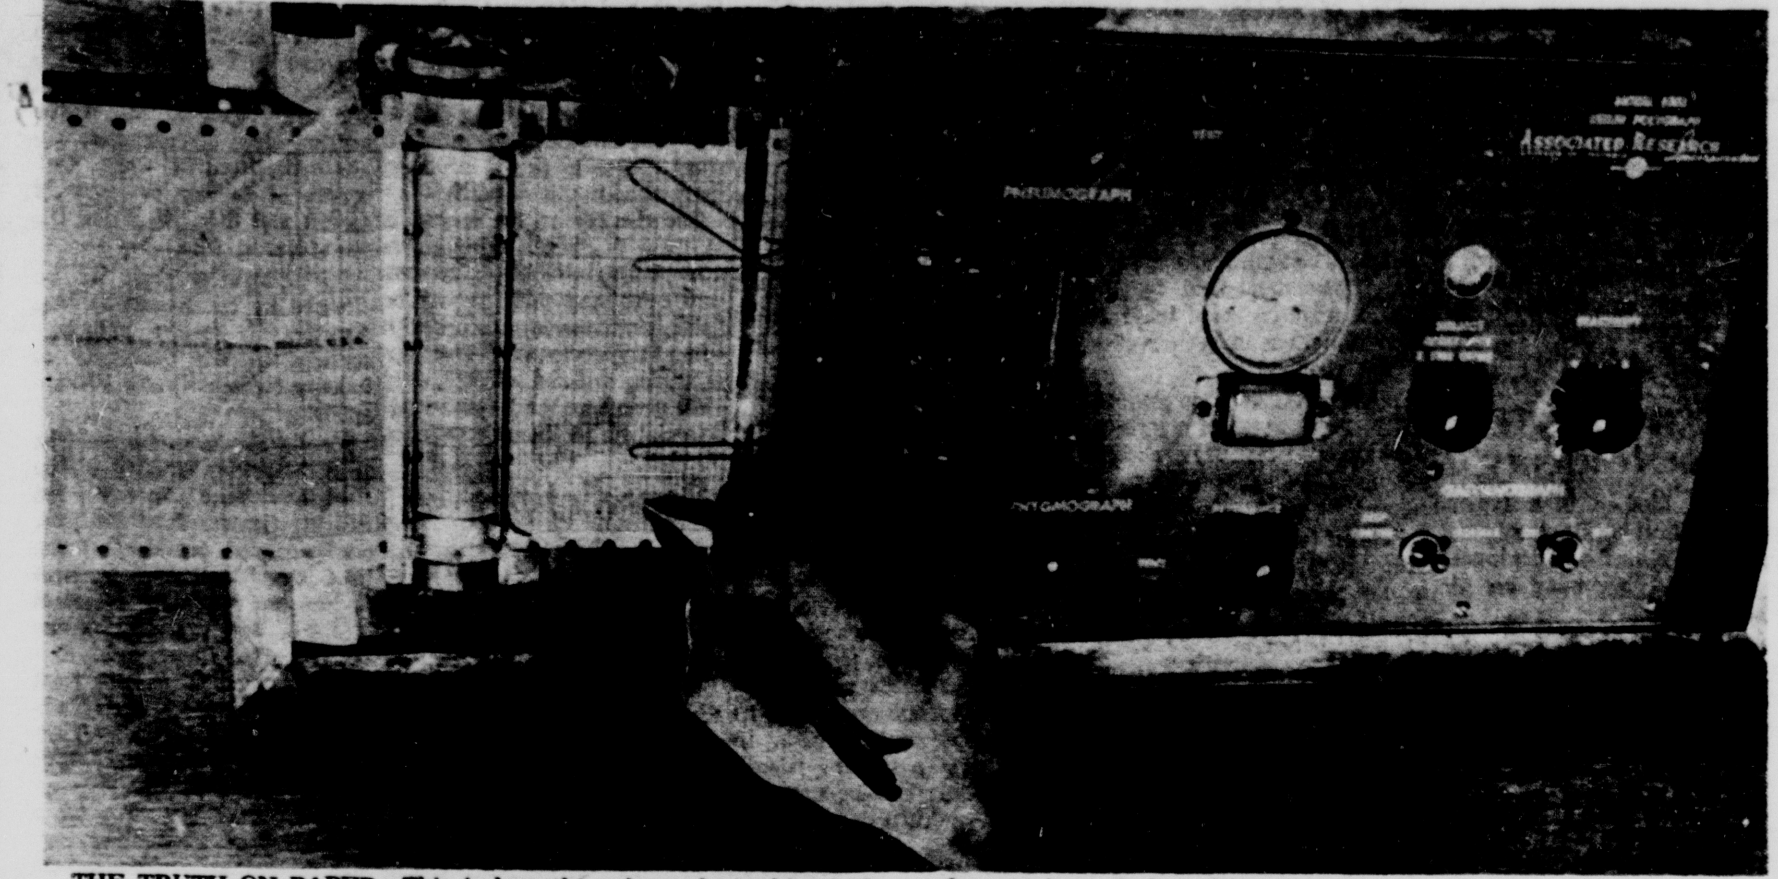
Chinese Used Rice, but the Polygraph Gets to the Truth Better Than Saliva



THE TRUTH ON PAPER—This is how the polygraph machine looks to the expert. As the subject is interrogated, the expert makes annotations on the edge of the graph paper. The three needles which record the reactions of the subject are opposite the point of the pen. When the test is completed, the experts use the graph to make a complete analysis of the questioning session. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Reporter Learns 'Lie Box' Needs Reliable Tester Too

By JIM GLEN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

"And now," said my interrogator softly, "do you have any objection to answering an extremely personal and very embarrassing question?"

I was taking a lie detector test, and replied uneasily, "No."

Privately I objected strenuously, and wondered what was coming next, recalling various unsavory episodes from my past. But nothing came next. It was the end of the test.

Sure enough one of the needles showed a spirited reaction to my response and almost shot off the graph paper. Police Cpl. Otis Kirkbride explained the tracing would have been the same had I answered yes. It was the result of emotional reaction he said.

Everyone has heard of the "lie detector" or "lie box," more accurately called the polygraph, but few of us know much about it.

Recently this reporter decided to find out a little more, and went to the police station to undergo a test conducted by the two police experts, Cpl. Kirkbride and Sgt. Charles Jensen.

Before the test they explained that during an interrogation an unexpected question is never asked. The subject is first shown a list of the questions and even the order in which they will come.

This was something new to me. Previously I had believed that an officer would suddenly rap out, "Where were you on the night John Smith died?" Nothing could be further from the procedure in the interrogation room.

At the outset the officers do their utmost to put the suspect at his ease. There is no shouting, no bullying. Perhaps they first discuss fishing, camping, anything of interest to the subject. Efforts are also made to get some insight into his personality and the interrogators are careful to use phraseology familiar to him.

No one is ever tested when he is overtired or suffering from any emotional disturbance Kirkbride said. He sits in an easy chair in a comfortable, unobtrusive room with wall-to-wall carpeting. He is facing the wall and must keep as still as possible, only replying yes or no to all questions.

At his side is a table with the polygraph, measuring about 15 inches by 10 set in a panel. It has a number of dials and knobs, and at one end a roll of graph paper which slowly unwinds during the questioning. On the paper three needles trace outlines in red ink.

The subject wears a rubber belt around the chest, a flat piece of metal is fastened to the hand and nestles in the palm and wrapped round the bared arm is a piece of material similar to that used by doctors to measure blood pressure.

All three objects are connected to the machine by wires which in turn are connected to three needles resting on the paper.

The chest belt records breathing and heart reaction, the metal in the palm, skin changes from the sweat glands, and the bandage round the arm, blood pressure and pulse changes.

The average criminal investigation lasts approximately two hours and physically the subject is perfectly comfortable. There is a mild feeling of swelling in the arm where the bandage has been filled with air and slightly impedes the circulation.

Each question will elicit a different physical response from the subject and those which seriously concern him, for example, "Do you know who took the money," will make a very distinct impression on the graph. At the conclusion of the test the examiner then analyzes the three outlines on the paper and reaches his conclusions.

It is at this point that the well trained and experienced polygraph operator is of the utmost importance.

Leonard Harrelson, president of Leonard Keeler Inc. of Chicago, one of the largest manufacturers of polygraphs in the world, has said, "The best polygraph in the world is scientifically worthless in the hands of the untrained or poorly trained operator . . . it is worse than useless."

Harrelson has also pointed out that he knows of no mechanical device which actually deects lies any more than it detects truth. It is the combination of man and machine which brings results in the interrogation room.

Qualified experts like Kirkbride and Jensen have undergone a six weeks course at the Keeler institute in Chicago, but that is not all.

Aftr they returned to Colorado Springs they had to submit at least 150 tests to the institute before they were accepted as experts in their field.

Lie detectors are not new although the highly sensitive instrument of today only came to fruition after World War II. Polygraph tests in the local police department have been made since 1956.

The ancient Chinese requested suspects to chew rice during an examination. If it was dry when spat out then the man was guilty. They believed the tension of guilt caused a cessation of all salivary glands excretion.

Galileo, more celebrated for his studies in gravity, used a pendulum and pulse rate of the individual to attempt to discover the truth in the 16th century.

Today's machine evolved from experiments conducted at the turn of the century and Leonard Keeler became interested in its potentialities around 1925. There is more than one brand of polygraph on the market but many experts prefer the Keeler.

One of the advantages of the polygraph is time saving. Assistant Chief of Police Oren E. Boling who called it a machine to be used "for the detection of deception" provided the writer with a good example.

There are six suspects in a crime and it takes a long, long time to interrogate six men let them take a lie detector test. The innocent will be cleared and the officers can concentrate on the remainder.

It is of importance to remember that no one can ever be forced to take the test. When a suspect agrees he signs a waiver showing it is purely voluntary.

Boling stressed that the polygraph also clears the innocent, adding that it was "a crutch" enabling to officers to continue investigating a man who knew more than he was willing to tell.

But how accurate is it and why is it inadmissable in a court of law, are the questions most often asked?

Some recent figures from Chief of Police Cecil McKissick are pertinent here.

Last year 447 persons were examined on the polygraph and only in three cases were the results "inconclusive." Deceptions were detected in 73 cases, the truth was revealed in 273 and there were 98 "admissions." It is not uncommon for a man to take the test and then admit later that he is guilty.

Officer Kirkbride said the machine is 97 per cent accurate. The other three per cent, they explained, was made up of mental defectives or people who were mentally ill.

As Jensen put it, "If a man is convinced he is Napoleon then no evidence to the contrary is likely to dissuade him." Similarly a psychotic subject who has killed at the command of "his voices" is unlikely to understand he has done any wrong.

If the polygraph is so accurate then why cannot it be admitted as evidence?

District Court Judge Pat Hinton said it was not yet "an accurate science or technique." Enlarging on this he explained that one had to allow error for the human element, the operator. As the writer mentioned earlier, the ill trained operator is worse than useless. For this reason the courts have been reluctant to utilize it.

Contrary to popular belief the polygraph is not used exclusively in criminal detection. More and more commercial firms are using it much to the growing indignation of the unions.

In Colorado Springs there is one commercial organization which is frequently consulted by industrial firms. The advantage to employers is obvious but the unions insist polygraph tests are an invasion of privacy, and anti-polygraph legislation has already been passed in five states, entirely due to agitation by the unions.

The future is uncertain and in the states where anti-polygraph laws have been passed, their constitutionality is already being challenged.

Nevertheless it is an indisputable fact that pre-employment tests have shown to be a most accurate, effective and efficient method of evaluating an applicant's honesty and integrity.

The tests have eliminated such undesirables as an undetected thief wanting to be a bank teller, an alcoholic applying for a job as an airline pilot or a child molestor seeking to be a school bus driver.

While 70 per cent of all persons tested for positions of trust pass their polygraph test and get the position, a critical 30 per cent are rejected. Of this 30 per cent, 90 per cent are rejected on their own admission of serious criminal behavior.

Wide Variety of Fine Arts Currently Showing at FAC

The Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center is offering an interesting variety of the fine arts — paintings, drawings, prints, watercolors and photography — to occupy any visitor on a winter afternoon.

Closing this week is the popular exhibition of watercolors by the well - known artist William Zorach. Perhaps better known for his sculpture, Zorach is also a sensitive painter of nature, mostly landscapes done in delicate and pleasing colors.

An example of Zorach's famous sculpture may also be seen in Colorado Springs outside the Columbia Savings Bank.

On view through Feb. 28 is an exhibition of photographs by Roy Rosen of Santa Fe. Rosen is a creative photographer who uses his camera not so much to record an event or tell a story as to capture a moment or a mood in the most unexpected places. The photographs are taken in all parts of the world and present a tremendous variety of subject matter.

Displaying the fine talent of one of the Fine Arts Center school art instructors is the one-man show by James Trissel. Trissel, who came here in 1963 as assistant professor of art at Colorado College, shows recent work in three mediums — painting, drawing and printmaking.

Trissel is primarily a literal artist who makes interesting use of color and detail in his work. Before coming to Colorado Springs, he taught at UCLA.

He has had a previous one-man show at Beloit College where he also taught. In 1959 he received the Wisconsin Salon of Art Purchase Prize.

Trissel's exhibition will be shown to March 3.

The next in the special series of members' programs exploring the Fine Arts Center as a center for all of the arts will be March 1 when Carlton Gamer of the Colorado College music department will discuss "New, New Music," at 8 p.m.

Those planning to attend the dessert and coffee serving at 7:30 p.m. should call the Fine Arts Center by Feb. 28.

Commerce Department Will Honor CU Prof.

The U.S. Department of Commerce will honor a University of Colorado assistant professor of applied mathematics with the department's Gold Medal Award for distinguished achievements in a ceremony Monday in Washington, D.C.

Dr. William B. Jones, who came to the University in September 1963, after working five years at the National Bureau of Standards (NBS) laboratories in Boulder, will receive the award.

Jones said the award will be presented with work, he and Roger Gallet, an NBS physicist, did on a special project on ionospheric mapping using digital computers and numerical methods.

CU Plans Third BUILD Session

The University of Colorado College of Engineering will host its third "Build Conference" of the year Feb. 18-20. About 40 educators from six institutions are expected to attend.

The three - day conference has been titled "Engineering Economics in Engineering Curriculum," and most of the conferees will be from the universities of Colorado and Illinois. Meetings will be held at the Harvest House Hotel.

The Bi - University Institutional Liaison for Development (BUILD) is a joint venture of the engineering colleges at CU and Illinois. It is designed to improve both institutions' educational programs by combining academic and research resources.

It Shouldn't Happen to a Dog--- Not With So Many Boys on Campus

By JOHN KUGLIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Neil has it made.

Between classes Neil was slogging across the turf in front of Cutler Hall, where the administration hangs out when they aren't sipping coffee in the student union.

Neil was accosted by two pretty coeds and overwhelmed with affection.

And who should pass but several deans, and a delegation from another independent liberal arts college. Not a word from them.

For Neil is a Saint Bernard, and everybody loves Saint Bernards. That's why Neil has it made.

Like most of his breed Neil has a large appetite. It takes a large hunk of horsemeat and two feet of weiners just to interest him.

Neil is usually well surfeited, however. He has many sources of food. He may woof like he's underfed, but he isn't. Neil has it made.

After Neil replaced the leering tigers around the flagpole as the school mascot, the girls were understandably alarmed last September when he didn't return with owner Colin Pease. Colin, who likes sports cars, had a Triumph at the time. There just wasn't enough room for Neil, Colin and Colin's luggage in the small car.

Neil remained in New Britain, Conn., and Colin was barraged with coeds' questions: "I just don't know what we'll do without Neil. "Where is good old Neil?" "Gee, you should have brought Neil."

The sisterhood of Delta Gamma decided to take action. They passed the word to the other sororities and a drive was started to send Neil back via air freight.

Now Neil is 180 pounds of dog and the going rate per 100 pounds of dog is $30 per hundredweight. There is no fare reduction for campus mascots.

"No," said Colin, after the money was almost raised. "impossible," he added. "Neil is too sensitive. He'll get all upset riding by himself in a crate."

Perhaps Neil could have gone first class. But Neil doesn't like to be left out of any type of fun, and he probably wouldn't have been served (even one martini).

The problem was solved when Colin went home last January and brought Neil back in a station wagon. Neil was bounding with joy — until the altitude hit him.

Now, approaching middle age at 5½ years, Neil waits for coeds in front of Rastall Center as they come trooping by to eat and return with things for him to eat. He looks half asleep but he's watching, and smiling.

Neil finds academic life stimulating and most CC professors welcome him to their lectures. The last class Neil audited was an advanced seminar in foreign policy. What were they saying: Neil left after 10 minutes. He has no use for the class attendance policy. Neil has it made.

Then there was Denali, another CC dog, named after one of the twin summits of Mt. McKinley, the highest spire on the North American Continent (20,320 feet).

Denali belonged to mathematics instructor Ronald Bierstedt and was fond of howling in the back yard and climbing mountains.

Science Fair Sponsorship Taken Over Here by IEEE

Young science and engineering students in the Colorado Springs and Pueblo areas participating in the annual local Science Fair will benefit substantially from a resolution endorsed by members of the Pikes-Peak Sub-Section, Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers at their January meeting.

Having already received encouragement and promises of financial support from local industry and professional groups, the members enthusiastically resolved to act as primary sponsors for the Science Fair, held annually on the Colorado College Campus, and pledged personal funds to assist in the project. Prior to this time, the local Science Fair has suffered seriously from lack of financial support. With incrased funds available, one or more local winners will be allowed to participate each year in the final competition at the National Science Fair.

The local fair, to be known as the "Colorado College-IEEE Science Fair," will be held in Olin Hall on March 12th and 13th and the winner will be sent to the National Science Fair in St. Louis on May 5th through 8th of this year.

The sub-section members will form a focal point for financial contributions from local industry, businessmen and others interested in assisting in the project. Major Carl F. Day is Chairman of the Pikes-Peak Sub-Section, IEEE, has requested interested persons or firms to contact Mr. Richard W. Hans, local attorney and patent counsel in Colorado Springs, for further information. Mr. Hanes has been primarily instrumental in organizing the project and has been designated Project Director for National Science Fair Activities, Pikes-Peak Sub-Section, IEEE.

Window, Door Firm Established in Denver

DENVER (AP)—Albritton Enginnering Corp., a Texas-based firm that manufacturs aluminum windows and doors, announced plans Saturday to build a plant in Denver.

Ford D. Albritton Jr., Bryan, Texas, the president, said the plant will employ 75 to 100 persons initially, and the number will grow "as the west grows."

Widefield High Windup

By LUCY PERKINS

The Widefield High School National Honor Society held an assembly Tuesday. Twenty - five new members were named. Sophomores were the largest group with 11 new members. Sophomores receiving this honor were: Johnny Roth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Recoy Roth; Vicki Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pierce; Juanona Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Morris; Stan Mathis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mathis; Lee Manning, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grier Manning; James McNabney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer McNabney; Terry Kashner, son of Mr. Arthur Kashner; Terry Hoffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hoffman; Linda Hammack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hammack; George Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Edwards; and Steven Cleveland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cleveland.

The Junior class was the next largest group with nine members: David Theiss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Theiss; Pamela Rains, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rains; Rodney Nyborg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arlin Nyborg; David Larsen, son of Mr. and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Larsen; Patricia Kueck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kueck; Rose Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hamilton; John Griffith, son of Mrs. Virginia Griffith; Lonis Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lonis Brown; and Mary Ashley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Ashley.

The Senior class contributed only five new members: Barry Zaiger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Zaiger; Gloria Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Schmidt; David Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Ross; Richard McNearny, son of Mrs. Sandra Beecher; and Donald Black, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Black.

Membership in the National Honor Society represents less than five per cent of the total student body. To be selected a student must have good scholastic standing and receive high recommendation from the faculty in leadership, character, and service.

The National Honor Society initiation and reception will be Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the high school.

County Smokers Taper Off Slightly, Reports Show

Just how much effect the campaign against cigarette smoking had on residents of El Paso County in the past year is now a matter of record.

Figures on cigarette sales in the local area show that the Surgeon General's report on the health hazards of smoking, released one year ago, caused few people to "kick the habit."

Temporarily, there was a drop in cigarette consumption. Millions of people, alarmed at the linking of smoking with lung cancer and heart disease, suddenly gave up cigarettes or cut down on them drastically.

It didn't last long, however. Within a few months they were puffing away at their usual rate and cigarette sales were back to normal.

Figures compiled by the Treasury Department and by the tobacco industry give the rate of consumption in each section of the country.

In El Paso County, an estimated 17,983,000 packs of cigarettes were smoked last year, according to a breakdown of these figures.

Related to the local population over age 18, this was equivalent to 157 packs a year per person. It compares with 160 packs the year before.

In other parts of the United States, the average was 207 packs per person for those over 18. The average was 181 packs in the Mountain States.

A new report by Surgeon General Luther L. Terry, issued last month, claims some success for the anti - smoking campaign. It states that 7 per cent of the nation's adult males and 3 per cent of the femaies have given up cigarettes since 1962.

Dr. Terry admits that it is difficult for people who have smoked for many years to discontinue overnight. It might take ten years or so to change America's smoking habits, he declared.

Meanwhile, he said, we will have to focus on the youngsters and keep them away from cigarettes. Such a drive is now taking form.

As to the cost of smoking, the 70 million smokers in the United States paid some $6.5 billion for cigarettes in 1964.

Residents of El Paso County spent $4,442,000, or approximately $39 per smoker.

Latin Air Force Officers Tour Academy

Lt. Lindley does, however, differ, from his counterparts at the Air Force Academy in several ways.

His full name and title are Alferez (2nd Lt.) Ernesto Robinson Lindley Mejia and he's a graduate of the Peruvian Air Force Academy.

Lt. Lindley and representatives of the academy's of Argentina, Bolivia, Chile, Colombia, and Ecuador will spend Feb. 15 and 16 in the Colorado Springs area as part of a joint USAF - Pan American - Grace Airways program to honor outstanding graduates of South American service academies.

Other officers include: Miguel Vincente Guerrero, Argentina; Jose Perez Reyes Ortez, Bolivia; Juan Carlos Delaunoy Loch, Chile; Jose Manuel Sandoval, Colombia; and Fernando Esteben Valdivieso Vintimilla, Ecuador.

Primary purpose of the visit is to acquaint future Latin American leaders with the North American way of life, both military and civilian, and to give them a "knowledge of how we work and live."

During their Academy stay, the graduates will be escorted by Spanish - speaking cadets and will receive briefings on the Academy mission.

All six of the young officers have outstanding scholastic and service records.

Lt. Lindley received practically all awards given at his graduation in 1964 and maintained number one status throughout the entire four - year course at the Peruvian Academy.

Following his graduation from high school, Lt. Guerrero spent five years with the Argentine Army completing the Liceo Militar "General Espejo." At the Escuelade Aviacion Militar he was selected as distinguished cadet and named three times to the honor roll.

In addition to graduating from the Ecuadorian Military Aviation School, Lt. Validivieso completed jet training with the U.S. Air Force was nemed outstanding man in his class. He is currently attending an intensive jet training course.

Lt. Sandoval, Colombia, graduated first in his class and has received many prizes for his accomplishments from Colombian military and civilian agencies as well as from representative of the U.S. Air Force, West Germany, and various Latin American countries.

South American Visitors Arrive Here on Monday

The landscape may seem cold but the welcome is guaranteed to be warm for six Air Force Academy visitors when they arrive at Peterson Field Monday afternoon.

The visitors, six honor graduates from South American service academies, will be escorted by Spanish speaking Academy personnel during their visit and Tuesday will be guests of cadets skilled in their native language for luncheon in Mitchell Hall, the cadet dining hall.

Luncheon hosts will include Cadets First Class B. D. Grossetta, E. B. Wages, R. S. Svob, J. W. Bonds, H. G. Hamby II. and J. J. Huetter, Jr.

Tuesday, the honor graduates will tour Fairchild Hall, the academic building, the Library, Chapel, and Gym prior to lunching in Mitchell Hall.

The visitors and the country they represent are: Miguel Vincente Guerrero, Argentina; Jose Juan Carlos Dlaunoy Loch, Chile; Jose Manuel Sandoval, Colombia; Ernesto Robinson Lindley Mejia ,Peru; and Fernando Esteban Valdivieso Vintimilla, Ecuador.

Parade Theme Contest Response Is Gratifying

The response to the Pageant Parade of the Rockes theme contest has been gratifying reports James Tuor, parade general chairman.

Elementary, junior high and senior high school students in the Pikes Peak Region have until midnight, March 1, to submit their theme idea in six words or less, said Tuor.

Winner of this contest will receive a special award trophy, ride in the parade, and be honored with his or her family as special guests of the Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo Association during the opening night.

Students should include their name, address, telephone number and name of school along with the suggested theme. Letters or post cards will be accepted. Students can enter as many times as they wish. In the event of a tie, the winner will be determined by the earlist post - marked date, according to Tuor.

Two Enter Pikes Peak Marathon

First and second entries for the 10th annual Pikes Peak Marathon, set for Sunday, Aug. 22, were received by Rudy Fahl, manager, Saturday.

The first to enter for the race was Curtis L. Gibson, 49, of South Ryegate, Vt., famous cross country runner, who in 1947 climbed Pikes Peak via the Cog Railroad right of way in two hours, 49 minutes. This, Fahl said, stands next to the record of Howard Robinson, who ascended the Peak via the Cog Road route in two hours, 31 minutes, in 1903.

Second to enter for the 1965 Marathon up Pikes Peak and back via the Barr Trail is Don R. McHahill Jr., 29, of Grand Island, Nebr. He was in last year's Pikes Peak Marathon, when his time was five hours, 27 minutes.

DU Gets Grant to Study Post-Laryngectomy Speech

The University of Denver Speech and Hearing Clinic has been awarded a $16,500 grant from the Vocational Rehabilitation Administration of the US. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to offer a short course in post - laryngectomy speech this summer.

The purpose of the course is to train 24 speech pathologists and laryngectomees (persons who have had their larynx or voice box removed) to work with other laryngectomees. The instructiion will be offered July 19-30 preceding the International Association of Laryngectomees (I.A.L.) annual convention Aug. 2-6 in Denver.

"Laryngectomees wishing to improve their speech, especially beginners, will be needed and are urged to attend the institute, free of charge, as pupils," Dr. Ruth M. Clark, University of Denver professor of speech and director of the DU short course, said.

The training program will be directed by Dr. James Shanks, director of speech pathology services at the University of Indiana Medical Center, Indianapolis.

Among the instructors will be John A. Irwin, director of the Memphis, Tenn., Speech and Hearing Center; John McClear, newly elected president of the I.A.L., and Bill Weber, 3126 S. Newport St., vice president of I.A.L. and president of the Colorado Lost Chord club.

Several medical doctors from the University of Colorado Medical Center will serve as visiting lecturers for the short course.

"The course will help fill a pressing need for trained persons to aid laryngectomees in learning to speak," Dr. Clark said.

Each year between two and three thousand persons in the U.S. have their larynxes removed primarily because of cancer, the DU professor observed.

Benedictines Hear Mass Sung In English Here

Benedictine Sisters from ten schools in Colorado were at Benet Hill Priory Saturday, Feb. 13, to offer with the Most Rev. Charles A. Buswell, Bishop of the Pueblo Diocese, a Mass honoring their patroness, St. Scholastica and to hear the bishop discuss some major issues of the recent Vatican Council.

His Excellency used a specially prepared English version of the Propers for the Mass and was assisted by Rev. Bonventure Schwinn, O.S.B., chaplain of the Academy, the Very Rev. Msgr. Peter Maas, pastor of Sacred Heart Parish, Pueblo, and the Rev. Charles Horne, also of Pueblo.

Later the Bishop was honored at a dinner served in the St. Anne Hall. Other dinner guests included the Rev. Bonaventure Schwinn, the Very Rev. Msgr. Peter Maas, the Rev. George Julian, O.M.I., pastor of Sacred Heart, Colorado Springs, and the Rev. Charles Horne.

Students of the Academy observed the feast on Feb. 10, its actual date, by singing a High Mass in Marian Hall. Rev. Bonaventure Schwinn offered the Mass.

Although the faculty had not planned a holiday for this Benedictine Day, snow took care of things in a definitely "Scholastica" way - just as rain did some 1400 year ago and Sister M. Liguori, principal, announced dismissal at 12:30 p.m..

Maytag Supports O'Rourke

DENVER (AP)—Robert Maytag, resigning in March as Colorado Democratic chairman, said Friday he is supporting the candidacy of William O'Rourke for the office.

Maytag also said he has no intentions of seeking public office himself in 1966.

"I have been honored and pleased by the many people over the state who have urged me to be a candidate for public office in 1966," Maytag said in a prepared statement. "Nevertheless, I have no intention of such a candidacy. This is not to say, however, that I am abandoning my great interest and enthusiasm for the Democratic Party, its philosophy and programs."

"As a matter of fact I feel so strongly about the continuance and furtherance of a harmonious, open, Democratic Party, full of equal involvement and integrity that I am actively supporting Bill O'Rourke for state chairman, he is fully capable of fulfilling these objectives for the party.

"The office of state chairman should be used for the furtherance of the Democratic Party and not as a stepping stone to political office.

"O'Rourke has the experience the knowledge and the talent necessary to broaden the party, to recruit the workers, raise the money and otherwise lead the party to victory in 1966."

Fountain-Carson High News

By LINDA LAUGHLIN

The cast of the Senior Class Play, "Terror in the Suburbs," by Frances Stuart, has been selected by Mr. Jerome Stratton, drama coach.

Members of the cast are Coretta Gollehon (who portrays Marcia Cloud), Cheryl Lyons (Mrs. Stanley Harrington), Linda Laughlin (Teresa Drake), Phyllis Bystrom (Loretta Page), Marie Bowen (Betsy Forrester), Lorie Crandall (Carla Barlow), Kevin Nunn (George Mollison), Gil Taylor (Bill Henderson), Linda Cline (Hannah Cloud), Doug Stanley (Horace Mason), Jim Hughes (Mr. Harrington), and Brian O'Neill (the Body).

The play will be presented at Fountain-Fort Carson High School on March 19 at 8:00 p.m.

Seniors are being given a three-week course in income tax. As a part of this course the students learn about income tax, including the history of income tax and how to fill out income tax forms.

This course is being given as part of American Government. Instructors are Mrs. Florence Waltman and Mr. Van Adams.

Phyllis Bystrom, senior, received the DAR Good Citizenship Award for Fountain-Fort Carson High School. Phyllis was chosen by her fellow classmates to receive the award because of her leadership, citizenship, friendliness, scholastic ability, and for being an all-round high school student.

Phyllis, who is an A-squad cheerleader and vice-president of the senior class, was also designated as Student of the Month by the Student Council.

Mr. Jerome Stratton, senior English teacher, was the guest speaker at the February 4 meeting of the F. T. A. Mr. Stratton's topic was on the subject of "Literature and Involvement."

A panel discussion on different occupations was also given at the meeting. Members of panel were Linda Brown, Doug Stanley, Valerie Waidler, and Robert Reed, moderator.

F. T. A. members participated in a second-round of the Cadet Teaching Program.

The students observed an actual class for two days, and on the third day these students taught the class.

Soviet Mission Attacked With Paint Bomb

NEW YORK (AP) — A chance meeting in a cafeteria between two men who had something in common — anti-Castroism and anti-communism — resulted in the "paint-bomb" attack Friday on the building of the Soviet mission to the United Nations, police reported.

Authorities gave this account: Sergio Mauri, 27, a self-described Cuban exile from Weehawken, N.J., and Andres Sar-Alvarez, 34, a free-lance photographer of West New York, N.J., shared a breakfast table at a New Jersey eating spot.

Discussing the recent stoning of the U.S. Embassy in Moscow by students protesting American action in Viet Nam, they decided on a two-man retaliation.

Arriving at the Soviet mission, on East 67th Street between Third and Lexington Aveneus. Mauri let fly with one bottle, which smashed against the white brick exterior. Sar-Alvarez had his camera out to record the event. A policeman stepped in and broke it up .

Mauri told police, "They throw rocks and insults at our embassy in Moscow, and nobody does anything about it."

At first the two men were charged with malicious mischief. In night court those charges were dropped, and Mauri and Sar-Alvarez were charged with disorderly conduct.

A 1960 graduate of DePauw, Tomey, who also served as an assistant at Miami of Ohio, was the third assistant hired by head Coach Homer Smith, who "heard about him from someone else."

every thoughtful man must ask himself these questions . . .

If my wife and I are killed in the same accident, how will our property be handled for our children? By whom?

Should I arrange, in my will, to pay for the education of my children?

Does my gifted (or handicapped) child require special provisions?

Will my heirs waste their inheritance?

Can I provide an income for my elderly parents, yet not deprive my wife or children of their inheritance?

How can I minimize death taxes?

Can I relieve my family of the burden of protecting, investing or managing the property I leave for their use?

Braniff Airways Names New Co. President

Haring L. Lawrence, 44, will become president and chief executive officer of Dallas-based Braniff Airways, Inc., April 5, 1965, it was announced today by Troy V. Post, chairman of the board.

Lawrence will resign his present position as executive vice president and director of Los Angeles - based Continental Air Lines to take over direction of Braniff.

He will succeed Charles E. Beard, president and chairman of the executive committee, who is retiring from active management of Braniff after 30 years with the company. Beard will remain with the company in a consulting capacity.

Post said that no other management changes are planned.

"I feel we are very fortunate to be able to obtain the leadership of a man with the background and ability of Harding Lawrence," Post said. "He has demonstrated himself to be an imaginative, energetic and capable executive."

Lawrence has been in charge of Continental Air Lines since he was named executive vice president and a director of the company in 1958. Since that time, the airline's annual revenues have climbed from $28,000,000 to more than $87,000,000, and assets have almost doubled from $50,000,000 to $105,000,000. The company's profit margin has been one of the best in the industry and last year Continental's net income was $5,687,000.

Lawrence was born in Perkins, Okla., July 15, 1920, but grew up in Gladewater, Tex. He graduated from Kilgore College at Kilgore, Texas, in 1939, earned his bachelor of business administration degree from the University of Texas in 1942 and his LLB from the South Texas College of Law at Houston in 1949.

Braniff's principal domestic routes connect Colorado Springs, Houston, San Antnoio and Dallas-Fort Worth and New York, Washington, Memphis, Washington, Memphis, Nashville, New Orleans, Chicago, Minneapolis - St. Paul, Kansas City, St. Louis, Oklahoma City, Omaha, the Quad Cities, Denver, and Lubbock and Amarillo.

Simms Fit Grocery Carts With Adding Machines

Dial - Admatic, a simple dial-type adding machine designed to fit on the handle of a grocery cart, is being introduced to Colorado Springs food shoppers at the city's three Simms Supers locations.

Simms now has Dial - Admatic exclusively for the next 90 days, at which time the shopping aids will be offered to other food markets in the area. Approximately 325 of the easy-to-use adding machines are being used at the three Simms' locations free of charge. Advertising, which appears in a small area to the left of the dials, covers the cost of the Dial-Admatic.

Dial-Admatic, which was developed and tested for a year before introduction to the public, was the idea of an irate steel worker. Samuel Librande, of Minot, N. D., came on his "money-making" idea following a trip to the corner grocery store. He went grocery shopping with a $10 bill and, to his disgust, had to return some items when he discovered at the check-out counter that he had over-bought.

Called a "realistic guide for grocery shopping," Dial Admatic is made of heavyweight plastic. It consists of three dials — one (with two-digit indicator) for dollars, one for dimes and one for cents. The dials are used in the same manner as those on a telephone, and are just as simple to figure out.

The shopper picks up an empty cart at the start of his grocery shopping and sets all the dials to "zero." Then, as each item is selected, the price is dialed on the Dial-Admatic, keeping a running total of your food bill.

The mobile adding machine was first tested in the Minot Air Force Base Commissary and three Super Value chain stores in the northern United States and Canada. At its start and now, Dial-Admatic has had very favorable shopper reaction. In stores where just some of the carts carried it, shoppers would either wait for a cart or switch their groceries over as soon as one was available.

According to officials at Simms, customer reaction to Dial - Admatic at all three stores has been extremely good. Said one Simms store manager, "In the east, customer reception has been good and likewise, ours has been."

Headquartered in Denver, Dial - Admatic, Inc., had officials in Colorado Springs at the Associated Grocers 30th Anniversary Convention, explaining the use of their product. If reception is favorable at the convention, Dial-Admatic will probably be found in grocery stores from coast-to-coast in a matter of months.

Dial-Admatic, says Kelly, is one answer to the problem of present day budgeted living." It helps the grocer and attracts business, our number one concern."

Plymouth Wins Top Stock Winter Nationals

The Fifth Annual NHRA Winternationals, held at Pomona, California, last weekend, was a scene of major achievement for Plymouths and Chrysler-powered drag racing vehicles, Chrysler officials report.

Plymouth wins were highlighted by the combined victories of Bill Jenkins of Berwyn, Pa., who won both the Top Stock Eliminator title and the Superstock - Automatic class. Runner-up for Top Stock was Dick Housey of Detroit, in another 1965 Plymouth Super Stock.

Plymouths also won three other classes and the Junior Stock Eliminator title which was clinched by Dave Kempton, Arcadia, Calif., in a 1962 Plymouth.

In the dragster classes, Top Fuel Eliminator was won by Don Prudhomme of Van Nuys, Calif., driving "The Hawaiian," a Chrysler-powered fuel dragster engineered by Roland Leong and Keith Black, of Los Angeles.

The Hawaiian's winning run was 7.76 seconds, at 201.34 mph. It is interesting to note that this car uses an 11-year-old Chrysler "hemi" engine of only 354 cubic inch displacement and that it spotted some competitors as many as 73 cubic inches. The Hawaiian normally runs as a B-Fuel dragster.

Art Malone of Tampa, Fla., also driving a Chrysler-engined rail, set low elapsed time of the entire meet with a 7.56 second quarter-mile.

Chrysler engines also won two classes during the meet: K. S. Pittman in a gas super charged, and Les Barath in the A-modified sports class. Both drivers are Californians.

Last year's big stock winner, Tom Grove, of Oakland, Calif., and the newest "Melrose Missile," made it to the final round of Factory Stock Eliminator competition.

Bill Would Slow Junior Colleges

Its sponsor was Sen. John R. Bermingham, R-Denver.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH

For 60 Years Wilbur's Served Springs' Elite

When Wilbur's closed its doors to the public for the last time on Nov. 30. 1964, some old memories of the bygone days of Colorado Springs went with it. The antiquated building was first built to house the Wilbur Suit Company in 1919.

The Wilbur chapter in the history of Colorado Springs began 40 years before the store at 112-114 N. Tejon St. was even throught of Matthew Hall Wilbur first came to Denver from Wichita in the late 1870's via a box car. There, he and his father ran a livery business until the day in 1879 that the younger Wilbur drove some horses into Colorado Springs and decided to settle here.

In 1883, Wilbur became associated with the Giddings brothers and went into business in what is now the Vorhees Building. Later, the business moved to the McIntyre Building, which later burned down while occupied by the Colorado Springs Music Co.

In what was described in a local newspaper as "One of the largest business deals ever consumated in Colorado Springs," Matt Wilbur consolidated his interests with those of N. O. Johnson and Sons in 1889, forming the Wilbur -Johnson Store.

At that time, Wilbur owned the Wilbur Dry Goods Co. in Colorado Springs and the Johnsons owned three dry goods houses, here, in Pueblo and in Cripple Creek. The local consolidation of the two businesses was housed on Pike Peak Avenue,... at the old Johnson stand. The new, local business was called, at the time, "one of the most metropolitan stores in the west." west."

* * *

MATTHEW HALL WILBUD

* * *

The firm of Johnson and Wilbur carried a full line of dry goods, millinery, ladies and children's footwear, carpets, draperies, rugs and dressmaking goods. Johnson had charge of the finances. while Wilbur handled the firm's buying. The Pikes Peak Avenue location was at the site of the old Trail Theater, which is now Walgreens and the First National Bank.

The Wilbur Suit Co., which later became Wilbur's, began business in 1904 at 109 E. Pikes Peak Ave. It was incorporated at that time, making it one of the oldest corporations in Colorado, before closing two months ago.

Five years later, the Wilbur Suit Co. moved to the old Boston Store building, which is now part of Kress's on Tejon Street. Then, 10 years later, it moved for the last time to its 112-114 N. Tejon St. Location.

Headlines in local newspapers at that time, in February, 1919, read, "Wilbur Suit Company Holds Opening of New Store This Morning; Is New Throughout With No Old Stock." Another headline read, "Wilbur's Magnificent New Store, One of Wests Finest Women's Establishments, Opens Monday."

Storie from the local press said that Colorado Springs was taking another step in the direction of becoming a real metropolitan city. Stories that "No expense had been spared by the management in making this establishment one of the finest millinery and ladies' ready-to-wear stores west of Chicago." Every item in stock was new, as not a single item of the store's old stock was carried over.

The 15,000 foot building featured a direct lighting system throughout. Six big skylights flooded the main sales area with Concealed electric floodlights were arranged in such a manner that the store had no shadows.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Wilbur were principal stockholders in the new business, W. W. Cannell, also a stockholder, had charge of the office and Miss E. B. Jungk was put in charge of the millinery department. Miss Jungk, who had been with the company since 1901, became Wilbur's second wife in the mid 20's and ran the store after her husband's death in 1942.

H. P. Hildreth was directly in charge of the store after Wilbur's death and later served as secretary - treasurer of the corporation. When the store closed in November, Hildreth had been associated with Wilbur's for some 60 years. He ran the store himself after Mrs. Wilbur passed away lat February. Hildreth, incidentally, was one of Wilbur's sons-in-law.

During its years of prosperity here, Wilbur's served an elite clientele. In later years, the clientele was made up mostly of elderly ladies. Employes of the store were all of long standing, as many had worked for Wilbur for as long as 60 years.

Its liquidation two months ago ended many years of service to the ladies of Colorado Springs. When it closed, Wilbur's was a tired, old business that had seen its day.

Local Inventor Comes Up With New Fishing Rod

By DAVE OSBORN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

"Fishing improvement you can put your thumb on," is the way George Henson, president of the Henson Corp., explains the accuracy, balance and comfort of his company's new ThumCaster. Production began recently at the company's plant in Colorado Springs, at 3339 E. Highway 24.

ThumCaster, which is Henson's own invention, is said to be the most accurate rod in the world. The first prototype rod was made some eight years ago by Henson, but the rod and the idea became lost in the shuffle until he recently came across it and decided to make a new prototype with modern specifications.

Henson's idea for the revolutionary rod came about after he sold Taxidermy and Outfitters, a local sporting goods shop, some eight years ago. During the four years he owned the business, customer had often asked his advice on what kind of rod and reel to use. He usually sold them an ordinary straight rod and spinning reel. But after the customers returned, saying the rod and reel combination was too hard for an inexperienced man to handle, Henson began to look for something more simplified.

The answer was found in ThumCaster, which is truly a rod for the beginner. Its true thumb control and perfect balance make accurate casting easy and thus make fishing more fun for the beginner or even most experienced fishermen. The new rod does away with backlash and the "all thumbs" feeling.

ThumCaster features a power-packed hollow fiberglass blade with Carboloy tip, stainless steel guides and top quality wraps. Its handle has an air-frame type aluminum pistol grip with cork panels, a fixed reel seat, non-skid butt cap, carboloy thumb guide and durable epoxy finish.

Henson has gone to great lengths to use the finest materials available in the manufacture of the rod, so the idea of the rod itself would not have to stand on its own. He didn't want any fisherman to like the rod's design, but not buy it because of cheap quality construction.

Although Henson's eight-year old prototype was literally salvaged from the junk heap more than a year ago, the corporation was not formed until six months later. Actual sales did not begin until 10 days ago, when Henson returned from the National Sporting Goods Association show in Chicago.

ThumCaster was displayed at the NSGA's annual show and met with overwhelming response. Henson sold more than 100 rods during the four days of the show and many of the rods were bought by owners or representatives of sporting goods stores, wholesale outlets and large dry goods concern. If reception of ThumCaster is favorable among these buyers, sales of the locally produced rod could skyrocket in a matter of months.

Henson related a story about his two trips to the NSGA show in Chicago. Last year, he made the trip with just the new rod, trying to sell any sporting goods concern on the idea of mass producing it. He returned from the trip unsuccessful, but even more determined to produce the rod on his own.

This year, relates Henson, he went to the show with an impressive display and had dozens of sporting good producers and sellers approach him for casting demonstrations. Also, Chicago newspapermen and writers for nine national magazine asked for news releases on the new product.

With no secondary control, a fisherman may feather the line slowly with a ThumCaster. It has the balance of a fly rod and the control of a casting outfit all built into its seven foot frame. It is also available in six and six and a half foot lengths.

With a suggested retail price of $18.85, ThumCaster is comparable to a more expensive straight rod made of comparable materials. Sales of the new rod will be made directly to retailers. They are presently available at Walter Drake and Sons mail order house on East Highway 24.

The Henson Corp. presently has representatives in 26 states, where the rods are now available. They include Alaska and Hawaii and representatives will soon travel to Canada selling Thumcasters to retailers in that area. Henson hopes to someday have world-wide sales of his invention.

Presently housed in a small machine shop on East Highway 24, which Henson's business shares with another firm, the corporation is currently building an enlarged facility in the same building. As production increases, so will employment at the rod-making outlet.

Henson is currently receiving orders from people who saw the rod on display in Chicago. He says it took a while, but the revolutionary idea is finally catching on. The product should be on the shelves of a few local sporting goods stores in a matter of weeks.

Negotiations are presently underway with Shakespeare Corp., the largest tackle manufacturer in the world, for the purchase of some handles fom Henson's firm.

Henson, who is a firm believer in advertising his product, believes that growth of The Henson Corp. through sales of ThumCasters is just a short step away. And when that step is taken, he has four or five other inventions to begin work on.

New Self Service Gas Station Now Open

A second installation of the new remote control, self-service gasoline station, Supertron No. 2, is now operating at 320 E. Fillmore St. Supertron's No. 1 outlet is at 2507 E. Highway 24.

The newest of Supertron's self-service stations features six modern-design gas pump with two electronically - controlled consoles at the walk-up window. The consoles are able to dispense any amount of regular or premium gasoline by simply pushing two buttons.

The remote control system is equipped to handle several cars at the same time for maximum efficiency. In addition, a two-way micro-phone system enables the customer to talk to the attendant without having to walk to the station. The customer pays for the gasoline at the handy walk-up window.

Also, the new Supertron carries fresh dairy and bakery products including ice cream, bread, milk, butter, eggs and pastry.

Self-service allows the customer a savings of four cents on every gallon of Supertron's top quality gasoline. There is no attendant, however, to wipe the windshield and check the water, oil and battery.

Supertron officials say, The service is only for people interested in saving money." They believe the new concept will create a revolution in the gasoline business.

James Bramwell, of 1432 N. Wahsatch Ave., has been appointed manager of the new Supertron outlet. Additional installations are being planned for other locations in the Colorado Springs area.

A local company, Southern Colorado Supertron, Inc., owns the existing two Supertron stations. The outlets are open from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., daily.

College Teachers Name New President-Elect

CHICAGO (AP) — The Association of Colleges for Teacher Education Friday elected John E. King of Kansas State Teachers College, Emporia, as president-elect.

King will take office at the expiration of the term of current president Even R. Collins of the State University of New York at Albany, in February, 1966.

Dr. Nathaniel H. Evers, director of the school of education at the University of Denver, was elected to the executive committee.

Kaman Nuclear Cited for New Product

Kaman nuclear is among eleven western companies to be honored Thursday, for developing 12 of the nation's 100 "most significant new technical products" of 1964.

Kaman will be honored for the development of the Model A-704 neutron generator which permits extensive radiation testing of small componets.

Awards will be presented to representatives of the companies at 12:30 p.m. at Perino's Restaurant, 4101 Wilshire Blvd.

The products were selected for their uniqueness, usefulness, and importance in the annual "I.R 100" Competition sponsored by Industrial Research magazine, published in Beverly Shores, Ind.

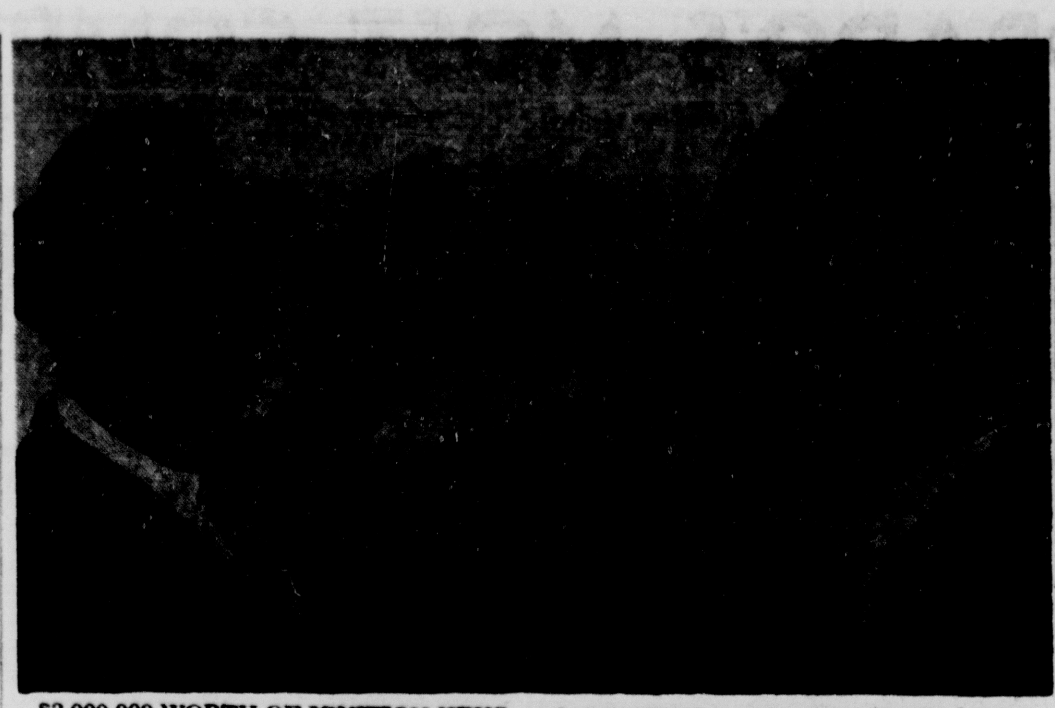
Other winning products from the West included a magnetic tape system, silicon on sapphire thin film microcircuits, a gravimetric vapor detector for gas chromatography, a laser with the highest peak power commercially available today, and a system for remote monitoring of cardiac blood flow.

Three of the companies also were honored in the 1963 "I.R 100" Competition.



$2,000,000 WORTH OF IGNITION KEYS —David Ratner, left, chairman of the board of Navajo Freight Lines and Robert Cohen, president, hold aloft a key ring with 118 ignition keys, marking acceptance of 118 new truck tractors. Delivery ceremonies were at the Denver headquarters of the coast-to-coast carrier. Navajo has terminals in 44 cities, including Colorado Springs. The two million dollar purchase marks the initial phase of Navajo's 1965 expansion program. Of the 118 units, 58 International Harvester diesels were delivered to Denver, and 60 White Freightliners were sent to Navajo's terminal in Albuquerque.

Steel Companies Employment Cost Ceiling

The steel companies have set a 2 per cent employment cost increase as the ceiling for a "voluntary" settlement with the United Steelworkers of America, Iron Age magazine reports.

The companies have not placed an absolute value on what they will settle for. But they have said that this year's costs must be about the same as the 1963 and 1962 agreement. These were around 2 per cent and 2.5 per cent respectively.

On the basis of current employment costs, this comes to 8 cents to 9 cents an hour for one year. For a three-year pace, a cost of 27 cents to 32 cents might be within range for the companies, the national metalworking weekly says.

The companies make this stand on the basis of these figures:

Employment Costs—Up an average of 4.1 per cent a year from 1958 to 1964 for a total increase of about 24 per cent.

Output Per Man-hour—Up 2 per cent a year from 1957 to 1963, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Hourly Earnings — The wage gap between steelworkers and other manufacturing employees is widening. In 1958 it was 80 cents an hour; in 1964 it was 90 cents, the steel companies contend.

In spite of delays in negotiations caused by the power struggle in the United Steelworkers of America, the steel negotiators are hopeful of a settlement by the May 1 deadline, Iron Age says.

Their greatest fear is that there might not be a clear-cut or uncontested result in the presidenial contest this week between present president David McDonald and his challenger I. W. Abel.

If post-election squabbling continues within the union after this week, the time element alone could prevent an agreement by May 1. This is because settling such complex points as pensions and other economic time consuming procedures?

Iron Age says if that should be the case, either the steel companies or the union could ask for an extension of the present contract. But this is likely only if there should be evidence of real progress in the negotiations.

While the steel companies have remained neutral, from both a "legal and common sense" point of view, they have indicated they hoped the "human relations" atmosphere would previal.

Iron Age says the companies are taking a calcuated risk in making their position known at this time. It could be construed as a starting point, on the one hand. On the other, they could be attacked for making a final offer at the outset and then refusing to bargain.

The industry's position is that the figures are meant to be realistic guidelines, Iron Age says. They are also apparently intended to counter early sepculation of a settlement the industry feels is far out of line.

ROUGH WELCOME

OWINGSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Rev. Robert L. Collins has a wound to show for his first day as new minister of the Christian church here. As he was moving his baggage into the church parsonage, he forgot to duck when entering a low doorway.

He was knocked unconscious the blow. Nine stitches had to be taken to close the wound on his head.

Pleasant Hills Increases Staff

Pleasant Hills Realty, at 519 N. 30th St., recently expanded its offices and staff. The latter has been boosted to eight or 10 salesmen to better serve the firm's growing market.

The real estate firm, which is owned by G. J. Baker, has been operating in the Pleasant Valley area for the past two years. Pleasant Hills specialized in the sale of "resale" and new homes, along with property management and sales of businesses and motels.

At present, the firm is handling the bulk of sales for two local builders, and, with the additional employes, is now equipped to handle more. If business growth warrants it, Baker is even contemplating hiring more salesmen.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is going to discuss the gold-dollar drain next week with leaders in banking and industry.

George E. Reedy, White House press secretary, said that 370 persons are being invited to the Thursday session.

IBM Produces Powerful, Low Rental Computer

The first IBM computer to rent for less than $1,000 a month was introduced today by International Business Machines Croporation.

Monthly rental of the new IBM 1130 computing system begins at $695. Its internal computing ability, however, is greater than systems costing several times as much.

The desk-sized 1130 is designed for individual use by engineers, scientists and mathematicians. But with its range of peripheral units, the 1130 also will be used in such fields as publishing, construction, finance, manufacturing and distribution.

For ease of use by many individuals, an advanced storage technique is available with the 1130 computer. Data and instructions for computer processing are recorded on a magnetic disk similar in appearance to a phonograph record. Disks are protected by a plastic cartridge. Each IBM 2315 disk cartridge can hold the equivalent of more than one million characters of information.

The cartridge enables an engineer, for example, to store information about his own work on his own disk. When he wishes to use the computer, he simply slides the disk with its plastic jacket into a slot on the 1130 console. Information from the disk is transferred into the 1130's high-speed core memory for processing. The computer has a memory capacity equivalent to more than 16,000 characters of information.

The 1130 is designed for use in a wide range of scientific, technical and business activities. These include:

— solving of complex mathematical and statistical problems;

— preparing newspaper, magazine and book copy for automatic typesetting;

— developig road, bridge and tunnel designs for civil engineers;

— scheduling construction projects using critical path techniques;

— analyzing geological findings to assist petroleum exploration teams;

— balancing electrical load flow for public utilities, and — accounting for delivery route operations of bakeries, dairies and other distribution companies.

To assist 1130 users in making effective use of their system, IBM will provide more than 50 application programs for use in such fields as civil engineering, publishing, mathematical and statistical problem-solving, and petroleum exploration and engineering.

"Many small companies, research centers and development groups have a need for low-cost computing power. The 1130 can meet this need in the smallest engineering and commercial organization or in separate departments of larger corporations," John R. Opel, vice president-marketing of IBM Data Processing Division, said. "It provides a high level of capability, but at a cost that makes it practical to bring the computer right to the individual with a problem which must be solved," Mr. Opel said.

The 1130 computing system employs microelectronic circuits produced by IBM's Solid Logic Technology. These circuits, similar to those used in the IBM System-360, operate at billionth-of-a-second speeds. They enable the 1130 to perform as many as 120,000 additions in a second — unprecedented power for a computer in this price range.

Prgrams written in FORTRAN for the 1130 can be run on the IBM System-360 if there is the same type of peripheral equipment available in the System-360 configuration.

The application provided without charge with the 1130, such as those for the solution of mathematical and statistical problems, will simplify use of the computer for individual engineers, business firms and consultants.

The individual need only indicate which pre-written program he needs, supply data, and he will receive an answer within a few moments. He can communicate with the computer through its keyboard.

Since the user does not have to tell the computer how to solve such complex problems as simultaneous equations or multiple regressions, a good deal of his time is saved.

Information generated by the 1130 can be represented graphically with an IBM 1627 plotter linked to the computer. The plotter can prepare charts, graphs and diagrams from tabular results calculated by the computer.

The plotter can thus trace the shape of a cam being designed or draw business graphs depicting trends in sales and manufacturing. A set of programs available with the computer enable it to smooth out point-to-point data and thus represent curves precisely.

To accomplish a variety of applications ranging from research to route accounting, the 1130 can be used with paper tape punch and reader, card read punch and a low-cost printer as peripheral equipment.

Main memory of the 1130 computing system is a magnetic core storage with capacity of 4,096 or 8,192 16-bit words. Memory cycle time — the time required to move a word and restore it to memory — is 3.6 millionths of a second.

The basic IBM 1130 computing system will rent for $695 a month and sell for $32,280. A typical system with disk storage will rent for $895 a month and will cost $41,280.

First deliveries are scheduled to begin in the fourth quarter of 1965. The 1130 computing system will be manufactured at IBM facilities in San Jose, California.

O'Rourke Calls For Beet Sugar Legislation

All responsible sectors of Government and the sugar industry recognize the need for legislation to authorize the domestic beet sugar industry and the Florida and Louisiana cane sugar producers to market additional sugar produced at Government request, the head of the nation's second largest beet sugar company told Miami Rotarians.

Dennis O'Rourke, president of Holly Sugar Corporation, expressed optimism that past differences between various segments of the domestic sugar industry can be resolved soon so necessary revisions in the national Sugar Act can be enacted early in the present session of Congress.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the Miami Rotary Club he said domestic mainland sugar producers in 22 sugar beet states and the cane states of Florida and Louisiana, had increased sugar production by from 30 to 40 per cent when a price and supply crisis began developing in 1963, but their right to market in the United States had remained unchanged. Hence, he said, large quantities of sugar produced at Government request cannot be sold until quota revisions are made.

"Early in 1963, a national sugar price and supply crisis arose," the speaker told his audience. "World consumption suddenly outstripped production."

"As the price - supply problem deepened," the sugar company president continued, "our Government took steps to protect the interests of the nation's consumers and food manufacturers."

These steps, he said, included unsuccessful attempts to attract to the U.S. market foreign sugars from a number of countries. To avert the threatening shortage, the Government called on the domestic mainland sugar producers to "produce to the hilt."

The response of the mainland producers was "magnificent," O'Rourke told his audience. But, he added, as the supply crisis eased, there proved to be no market for the Government-induced added stocks because no quota revision was made.

Calling for early Government action to correct the induced imbalance, O'Rourke said:

"Essentially, and in simplest terms, all responsible sectors of Government and the sugar industry recognize that the good health of the national sugar program requires the two continental sugar areas to reduce their swollen and costly inventories, built up as a result of Government urgings, over the past two crop years."

The westerner called the national sugar program, embodies in the Sugar Act, as "the most successful agricultural program ever devised in this country." He also described the growth and development of the U.S. mainland cane and beet sugar producing industries and their great annual contribution to the total national economy.

O'Rourke also emphasized the importance of the national policy to encourage a healthy and vigorous domestic sugar industry, indicating that world political difficulties underscored the need for home production.

"One need not be an alarmist — he need be only a realist — to recognize that there are many tinderboxes around the world which could easily burst into flame at almost any moment. Historically, when world tensions increase or an emergency develops, the normal course of sugar commerce is quickly affected," he said. "Available supplies are grabbed up. Demand heightens."

Citing recent periods of world tension and conflict, including the Korean War and the Suez crisis, he said that stockpiling and scare buying drained world supplies and pushed prices to unnatural heights.

This, he indicated, underscored the need for early quota revisions in the interest of United States consumers and industrial sugar users.

The beet sugar industry leader concluded by saying:

"Let us all hope that a consensus (among all segments of the domestic sugar industry and Government) will soon materialize so that what has been regarded as the most successful agricultural program in the United States for the past thirty years will continue to serve well the interests of consumers and producers — in short, the best interests of the nation as a whole."

LONDON — Glass in modern schools is causing more accidents to children.

Building Permit Total in City At $1 Million

City building permits issued so far in February total about $1 million, according to figures in the Inspectons Department.

One of the largest permits issued during the month was to John Cannell for $165,000 to build an apartment house with 24 units at 1614 Rainier Dr.

Most of the other permits have been for new homes, which are continuing to be built at a record rate.

A permit for the Pikes Peak Elementary School at 1520 Verde Drive is expected to be issued soon. F. L. Davis will be the builder for School District 2.

LONDON — England will export hospital equipment.

Ford to Install Rear Seat Belt

Ford Motor Company will begin factory installation of rear seat belts on all of its passenger cars effective with the start of 1966 model production, Henry Ford II, chairman of the board, announced today.

Two sets of belts will be installed for rear seat passengers unless individual customers or dealers specify otherwise. In January, 1964, Ford began equipping at the factory all of its cars with two sets of front seat belts unless customer or dealer asked they be deleted.

Ford pointed out that rear seat belts have been available from Ford Motor Company dealers for dealer installation since 1955, and will continue to be available from Ford and Lincoln-Mercury dealers.

"Our company's commitment to safe vehicles has resulted over the years in major breakthroughs in basic vehicle design as well as the development of specific safety devices and features available at the option of our customers," Mr. Ford said. "The decision to equip our cars at the factory with rear seat belts, in addition to factory installation of front seat belts, is another step in this continuing safety commitment."

Suggested list prices of the cars will be adjusted to reflect addition of the belts.

Todaro Named New Cafeteria Manager

Furr's Cafeterias have announced the promotion of Larry Todaro to assistant manager of Furr's Cafeteria No. 6 at Roswell, N.M. He is presently working at Furr's No. 17 in Colorado Springs.

Todaro, a master baker, has been trained by Furr's in all aspects of food preparation and service. He has lived in Colorado Springs since July, 1964 when the local Furr's Cafeteria first opened its doors to the public.

NIREB Names Ingels as State Chairman

Hubert E. Ingels, broker for Smartt Realty Co., is appointed new state chairman for the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers. Announcement was made in Chicago this week by the national headquarters of the institute.

Ingels is a member of the Colorado Springs Board of Realtors, Inc., and received the "Realtor of the Year" Award from that organization in December. He is also past president of the local organization and a national director of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The Institute of Real Estate Brokers is composed of 16,000 Realtors in the country and is the largest affiliate of NAREV. Its main objective is the education of its members to serve the public betetr.

One of the prime duties Ingels will have, will be to stimulate state-wide panel discussions on brokerage problems at real estate board meetings. He will also be responsible for educational portions of the Colorado State Convention which will be held in Colorado Springs next fall.

Through the state chairmen of the Institute the Realtors in Colorado are kept constantly up to date on new and proven methods in the way of realty advertising, financing and taxation.

Cadet Squadron Plans to Visit Sponsoring Unit

At the invitation of Col. E. D. Edwards, commander of the Strategic Air Command's 19th Bomb Wing (Heavy), cadets will observe activities of the 19th at Homestead AFB, Fla.

Visits such as this one have a dual purpose: first, to further cadet professional development through observation for operational Air Force units; and, second, to develop interest and appreciation of the Academy and its mission through contact between cadets and Air Force personnel and their families.

MONTEVIDEO — Uruguay will build a hydroelectric station.

Postmaster Aid for Rural Mail Carriers

Postmaster R. H. Wardwell today appealed to postal customers on rural routes to help their rural carriers make mail deliveries during bad winter weather.

The Colorado Springs Post Office has four rural routes working out of the North End Station and the Knob Hill Station.

Wardwell said that at the same time he hopes all authorities concerned with rural routes where snow and other bad weather hampers the carriers will continue to cooperate to help the mailmen get through.

The postmaster listed these points of particular concern:

1. Approaches to rural mail boxes must be kept open by customers.

2. Obstructions to delivery of mail on rural routes should be removed or minimized to the fullest extent possible.

Where rural boxes pose a problem, the carrier may leave form 4056, "Your Mailbox Needs Attention," a notice to keep box approaches clear by promptly removing all obstructions, including snow, which may make mail delivery difficult or impossible.

Unless approaches are cleared, it may be necessary to temporarily withhold delivery of mail, the Postmaster pointed out.

Rural Carriers are not required to perform service on foot when roads cannot be traveled with the vehicles normally used, but they are expected to make every reasonable effort to serve as many of their patrons as possible without physical exertion or added financial cost, he explained.

If excessive detours are necessary to effect delivery of mail, customers should temporarily relocate their boxes on the new line of travel, arrange to receive their mail through other patrons' boxes, or make other arrangements for their mail until travel on the roads affected can be resumed.

Janitor Positions Now Available Main Post Office

These positions are restricted by law to persons entitled to veteran preference. Applications will not be accepted from persons not entitled to veteran preference.

All applicants must be United States citizens, and reside within the delivery zone of the Colorado Springs Post Office to be eligible to apply for the examination.

Applications can be obtained at the Colorado Springs Post Office, and should be forwarded to the Executive Secretary, Board of U.S. Civil Service Examiners, Room 112, Main Post Office Building, 18th and Stout Street, Denver, Colorado 80202.

Starting salary for these positions is $3,945 a year with periodic increases until a maximum of $5,375 a year is reached. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, creed, color, national origin, or sex. Applications will be accepted until further notice.

Gen. Thatcher to Host During Two - Day Visit

Air Force Lt. Gen. Herbert B. Thatcher, commander of Air Defense Command (ADC), will host fourteen business and professional men from the greater San Francisco area Sunday and Monday.

Escorting the group from California will be Maj. Gen. Conrad F. Necrason, commander of the 28th Air Division (ADC), located at Hamilton Air Force Base, Calif.

The Californians will leave Colorado Springs Monday.

During the two-day visit the group will receive a briefing on the aerospace defense mission of Air Defense Command, tour the NORAD Combat Operations Center and receive a briefing and tour at the Air Force Academy.

Florence Councilmen To Study Water Rates

Florence city councilmen are again expected to get a chance to review the water rate problem posed by the town of Williamsburg, which is seeking to buy water from Florence.

City Manager Frank Carochi has indicated that the water question will be reviewed Monday night at the city council meeting here.

The manager also stated that the city is currently seeking to buy up some 21 shares of Union Ditch company water from nine deliquent accounts. Three have been purchased by the city while others have been promised. The water share purchases will also be discussed Monday night.

Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Capitalism: A Lot of Little Things

One of the truly fascinating aspects of capitalism is that it does not depend upon big men. Capitalism is really a lot of little people, doing a lot of little things, in a lot of little places. Capitalism is the most remarkable and productive cooperative effort ever launched. And the beauty of it is that it is wholly dependent upon voluntary actions, never upon force or compulsion.

Too many times we tend to think of capitalists as big men, financially speaking. In actual fact, very few capitalists are big in a financial sense. It is true, of course, that successful capitalists tend to acquire financial resources. But they are truly capitalists, not AFTER they have acquired these resources, but before they get them.

The capitalist is really a little man with an ability to sense what it is that the market place wants. He goes to work on the hunch that he is right. He puts the little pieces together, and if his hunch is a correct one, the little pieces, put together in an ingenious way, create goods and services which people will gladly exchange money to get.

Thus, in a very practical way, the capitalist is concerned with OTHER PEOPLE. He has to be. He has to anticipate what it is that they will want to buy tomorrow. He cannot have this interest unless he is sensitive to people and can truly foresee the direction people wish to go. If he can sense this, he goes to work today so that when people go to the market place tomorrow, there all ready for them, will be the very thing they want.

Capitalists are often accused of being selfish and narrow. All they want is profits, it is said. What is rarely pointed out is the fact that the capitalist does no seek profits simply to enjoy a higher standard of living for himself. He seeks profits so that he can PUT THEM TO WORK. Thus, it is not the profits, in themselves, which lure him. It is the usefulness of profit, correctly employed in the future.

No capitalist is ever more than one man. And as a man, he cannot employ all his profits (if he has them) in simple self-gratification and indulgence. He can eat only so much, wear only one suit of clothes at a time, sleep in only one bed. The difference between the personal expenses of a capitalist and the personal expenses of a non-capitalist are scarcely discernible and unworthy of comment. The real character of the capitalist is found in his ability and willingness NOT to spend on himself. Many highly successful capitalists we have known, have a standard of expenditures for themselves, personally, far below that of many of the men who work for them.

Thus, capitalism breeds what can be called the stoic virtues. If you are really a capitalist, you seek to acquire funds, not to use them on yourself, but to develop them in providing new and better goods and services for others.

Thus, the capitalist is almost always the "outgoing" type. He takes a keen interest in his community and in the people who live there. He must. It is only when he understands them and works for them that they will buy his product or service.

There is another important role of profits in a capitalist system.

When profits are present, the capitalist knows that he IS doing a good job. Profit is a measure of his efficiency and his ingenuity in figuring out in advance what others want.

If his profits are large, he knows that he has been astute and careful. And this inspires him to try to do more thing for more people, his customers.

If his profits are small, he knows that he has not been particularly astute and possibly he has been careless.

If his profits are non-existent, he knows that he is wrong. And he cannot continue operating without profits. Therefore, he must alter his conduct, one way or another, or totally fail.

Thus it turns out that the capitalist is the best disciplined person in any group. Necessity dictates this discipline. And it is a discipline that causes him to look beyond himself and to consider in advance what others want.

You, too, can be and should be a capitalist. It does not take money; but it does take an attitude of mind and a dedication of time and energy. If your mind is committed to service to others; if you like people; and if you are willing to work hard and tirelessly, the money in the form of profits will come.

This Is Boy Scout Month

While much of the world is talking about delinquent and wayward youth, there is one organization which continues to train young men to be responsible individuals.

That organization is the Boy Scouts of America, which is honored this month with Boy Scout Month. That organization is 55 years old.

Since 1910 there have been more than 39 million Americans identified with the movement. Today there are 5,585,700 young men and leaders participating in scouting.

Self-reliance and resourcefulness are essential, and scouting emphasizes these important facets of growing. Love of homeland and individual honor need to be emphasized again and again. Millions of scouts are receiving this emphasis.

May their tribe increase.

Pressure Groups

For the past generation pressure groups have been responsible for the passage of most of the laws at the federal level. And not one of those laws can be classified as good for the country. They are, or at least they are thought to be, good for the groups that put the pressure on the legislators to enforce their passage.

But in the long run these pressurized laws will not be "good" for anybody, including the pressure groups who sponsored them. Laws that are detrimental to the country as a whole usually wind up by being detrimental to those who wanted them passed in order to gain an advantage over other groups or sectors of the economy. We realize that the above statement just about fits any law that has ever been passed. Laws are generally enacted for the purpose of giving aid and comfort to one part of the citizenry at the expense of the others.

The citizens who are feeling the harm of a law that was put over to please one pressure group, usually retaliate by forming a pressure group of their own and doing a little bearing down on the congressmen themselves. Now, congressmen will pass most any kind of a law if there are votes involved. But they almost never repeal one. So the general result of all this pressuring is plain old confusion. And the lawmakers are the most confused of all.

What these confused lawmakers should do is to repeal all laws and go home.

On rare occasions Congress is confronted by a pressure group that is pushing for the repeal of some law or some section of it. This is what the unions have been doing ever since the passing of the Taft-Hartley law. The Taft-Hartly law was passed as a measure to mimimize the harmful effects of the Wagner Labor Act, but the only section of the law that has any minimizing effect is the very one the unions want repealed.

This is section 14(b) that permits the several states to enact legislation that is known as "right to work laws." Such laws are now in force in some 20 states. These laws guarantee a person the right(?) to work without being forced against his will to join a union. During the last presidential campaign LBJ promised the union bosses he would quickly put an end to 14(b) at the next session of Congress. But it now begins to look as though he is having second thoughts about such a rash promise.

It is a sad commentary on our times that it is even necessary to have to consider such legislation. What has happened to our vaunted freedoms, our unalienable rights that were guaranteed us in the Constitution. They were destroyed by pressure groups of which the labor bloc is the richest, the most powerful and can promise the politicians the most votes.

It is our opinion that all labor laws should be repealed.

The American Way

The Sale of Two Profits

By HARRY BROWNE

Ever hear of a sale with two profits in it. Let me tell you about one. . .

A friend of mine went out to buy a new car recently. He had $3,000 to spend.

He came across a new car dealer who had a car to sell. The price was $3,000. The car dealer felt that he would rather have $3,000 than keep the car in stock.

My friend looked at the car and made a choice. He decided he would rather have the new car than the $3,000.

The two of them went into the dealer's office and signed some papers. My friend gave the car dealer his $3,000; and the car dealer gave my friend the keys to the new car.

BUYER PROFITS TOO

There were two profits in that sale. The car dealer made a monetary profit and my friend profited by the acquisition of a new car that increased his happiness.

My friend had decided he desired a new car enough to be willing to exchange $3,000 for one. While the car dealer wanted the $3,000 more than the car.

When the sale was consummated, both parties profited — because both had obtained what they wanted. This situation will always prevail — in every sale — so long as both parties enter it voluntarily.

This is because no one has to buy. An individual will buy only if he wants to — if he thinks it will profit him. So the only way you can entice an individual to trade with you is to offer him something that will satisfy his desire.

When you obtain your profit in an exchange, it means you have satisfied the desire of someone else. In a voluntary situation, this has to be the case.

This rule of profit applies to the businessman, the investor, the employee, the consumer — everyone!

An employee makes an exchange with his employer because he prefers the wages to the time and effort he could have saved by not working. The employer prefers the time and talent and effort he receives from the employe to the wages he must pay. Both profit when they exchange. When one of them decides it's no longer profitable, they amend the terms or the exchange ends.

Every individual will choose what is most profitable to him from all the alternatives available to him. If he has even one dollar to spend — or one hour of time available — he has millions of ways available in which he could trade these resources.

Anyone who wants to receive these resources in exchange from him must provide the most profitable object to him in return.

To profit in an exchange, you must satisfy the desire of another human being.

RESTRICTIONS HARMFUL

And what happens if we try to restrict the profits of any person. Then we automatically restrict the profits of all parties with whom that person could have exchanged.

So if the businessman's monetary profits are limited by fiat, then we have deprived all of the individuals who would have willingly provided that profit in exchange for the products and services they desired. Why should we prevent consumers from buying what they've voluntarily decided they wanted.

Restrict one man's profit and you automatically restrict the profit of another!

The succinct Mr. Washington

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

"Government, like fire is a dangerous servant and a fearful master," has long been my favorite among the sayings attributed to George Washington. You may observe how Mr. Washington refused to quibble or equivocate on this subject, he included no buts or ifs.

In later times, men have read what George Washington had to say but have added that government like fire is useful, necessary but dangerous. Suggestions have been made that government, like fire, should be kept under control, checked, balanced, separated and divided and tied down. Tied down with what? Controlled, checked, balanced, separated and divided by whom? By the governed? By the government? By "good" men desiring to hold power over others?

Government, unlike fire, is useful only to government. Government, unlike fire, is necessary only to government. Government, unlike fire, produces nothing but more government and government, by its very nature, is always destructive, because government has nothing but what it takes from those who are governed and from those who are part and parcel of government.

Self government, self restraint and recognition of the validity of natural law combine to make it possible for the vast majority of all human beings to avoid murder and thievery. No government and no combination of governments could possibly gather enough strength to prevent a chaotic world of humans gone mad, otherwise. Just one ungoverned human, gone mad, running berserk may destroy a dozen or more humans and how many human beings have the bosses of all the governments of the world destroyed in your lifetime?

What would happen today if just 10 per cent of the adult population of your country became criminally insane and went berserk? To what degree do you believe your government could or would protect you, while protecting itself? Self restraint, self government and recognition of the validity of natural law, exerted and exhibited by the vast majority of the people make it possible for government to pretend to protect you or would you care to challenge my statement and logic, further? I will say this again and again; it is because more than 90 per cent of the people exercise self restraint and self government that your artificial government can pretend it provides you with protection. Because your fellow human being does exercise restraint, you like to imagine your government forces him to curb basically insane desires. If those who are plagued by a lust for power exercized equal restraint over their own actions, NO RESTRAINING FORCE WOULD BE REQUIRED, because those who hold power over others would restrain themselves and abdicate their positions of power.

"Government is a dangerous servant and a fearful master." It is even more dangerous because it fears the same servitude it forces upon the governed and because it knows it has never been able to stand for long against the wrath of its slaves. So government is also full of fear as a result of its own actions because it will not exercise the restraint and self government exhibited by those who are governed.

I have said it before and I will say it again, that any human being who trusts government is a fool. Would not any man, trusting a dangerous servant or a fearful master be a fool? You may argue that you dare not place your trust in ordinary human beings, people who are not beset by the urge for power over others and when you do, you ignore both logic and reality. Remember, the dangerous servant, the fearful master is simply another human being or a collection of human beings. If you dare to trust those who have exhibited a desire to hold power over you, why should you fear those who exhibit no such tendency? I will trust no human being who asks for my sanction of his rulership over me. How about you?

Good luck and good health to you in Freedom.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 650: "How should one answer the oft-repeated statement that it is easy to find fault with a course of action but what is needed is constructive criticism?"

Answer: One would have to first define what constructive criticism is. Constructive criticism would seem to be anything that would promote man's freedom and that which would permit each individual to use his creative energy to be superior to his previous self, if he so wills.

With that definition, it would seem that finding fault or pointing out the errors and the eventual consequences of an act that is based on immorality or initiated force has to be first pointed out so it can be stopped. As an example, it would be rather difficult to have constructive criticism on how to murder or how to steal or how to bear false witness, if one did not take a stand against these acts.

The only constructive criticism it would seem would be to stop an act that violates the self-evident fact that stealing, either individually or collectively, in the long run is harmful. It leads to the degrading of character and retards production and interferes with freedom.

It will be remembered that nine of the ten commandments are "Thou shalt not."

It is difficult to have constructive criticism for something that is based on immorality because the means predetermines the result. If the means used is based on initiated force or legalized stealing, the results are bound to be harmful.

As an example, tax-supported schools are based on initiated force where the government has a right to do things that no individual has a right to do. In other words, they are based on a double standard, and a double standard of right is no standard at all. So how can one give constructive criticism on an immoral act other than to advocate stopping it and substituting trading so both parties voluntarily exchange goods and service for profit?

Would any individual who believes in tax-supported wchools contend for a minute that he as an individual had a right to force his neighbor to pay for his ideas of education of his child?

If a man doesn't have this right as an individual, how does the number of people doing it make it a moral right? It cannot.

As Isabel Paterson said, "The only way to have constructive criticism about putting strychnine in your coffee is to advocate stopping it." The only way to have a better society and have constructive criticism is to stop initiating force and stealing by legal methods which would be wrong if done by an individual.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

ATTEMPT AT CLARIFICATION

To the Editor:

I would like to clarify some misunderstandings that exist between the editor, Mr. Selden, and myself. At no time have I favored or advocated a government sponsored Sunday clocing law. In my letter of January 16, I clearly stated that I did not favor any government compulsion on this or any issue. I did, however, take the editor to task for his anti-biblical beliefs, and now that Mr. Selden has joined hands with the editor (to make it two versus two), I feel more should be said.

I should, however, start by saying that the editor seems, at first glance, to hold a slight edge, on the various discussions, by his twisted interpretations and insinuations, of letters commented on.

In "Our Answer to Ken Woodward," I hear an echo of the Jews that crucified Christ for His healing and preaching on the sabbath. The editor had, in an earlier rendering, suggested that maybe the ban on sabbath working, would include ministers also. For this, I accused him of pettiness. In Luke 6:9, it is stated, "Then said Jesus unto them, I will ask you one thing; is it lawful on the sabbath days to do good, or to do evil? to save life, or to destroy it."

S it seems that a minister's work on the sabbath is justified by the scriptures. Now then, just how justified is the laboring on the sabbath, other than ministering? This would be a religious ban (not a governmen ban). Duet. 5:12-15 explains thoroughly about the working on the sabbath. These four verses are much too long to repeat here in this space, but I would like to quote one of the four. "But the seventh day is the sabbath of the Lord thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work, thou nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thine ox, nor thine ass, nor any of thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within my gate. . ."

Evangelist I. H. Smith, seems to believe that a misapplication of the Bible exists, in that the sabbath of Jesus' day is our Saturday, and therefore our Sunday is not really the true sabbath. He is technically right on the calendar issue, as it is pretty common knowledge that our calendar has been changed by egotistical Roman rulers of the past. Let us from this point on, use the word sabbath for whatever day we practice it, whether it be on a Saturday or a Sunday. However, about ninety five per cent of the U. S. church population practice sabbath keeping on Sunday.

Evangelist Smith says, "One cannot command those who do not believe in Jesus Christ as Savior to do as He wishes." But, if every Christian who worshipped on his or her sabbath day, would conscientiously avoid the laboring on this day, as God has commanded, it would be all that God asks of this day. For He certainly does not expect non-believers to obey His commandments.

Now Mr. Selden, you state that many are of the opinion that Jesus did not establish or authorize a church organization. Why do so many people accept a church affiliation, and by so doing, believe by their actions, that Jesus did establish a church on earth before His departure? Why then, are there Biblical references in the New Testament to the churches, priests, bishops? There seems to have been some kind of organization with the Apostles administering unto it. Mr. Selden goes on to say that Mr. Ernst has no right to force his beliefs upon him, or anyone else. In this he is correct. Nor would God force upon you, Mr. Selden, His commandments, for you have the choice of accepting or rejecting His teachings. Like the old adage, "You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink."

It has been said that the law (or as in this case — the Ten Commandments), was done away with, with the coming, teaching, and crucifixion of Christ. But nowhere in the New Testament, have I found that we are to disregard the Ten Commandments, and do as we please. For Hebrews 10:16 states: "This is the covenant that I will make with them after those days, saith the Lord, I will put my laws into their hearts and in their minds will I write them." The saving by the law only, is done away with, but the law (or Ten Commandments) remain. The difference is faith and in the Holy Ghost as a witness to the Christian. The doing away of the old laws, or convenants, consisted (primarily) in doing away with the offering of an animal's blood as a sacrifice for sin, or on the Holy day. Christ's crucifixion was the finale in sacrifice.

The editor and Mr. Selden, have stated that a sabbath day closing would be an economic disservice to the financiers, and a stumbling block to comfortable shopping. Even if this were true, would man's thirst for money and comfort in shopping, make God's commandment wrong, and an economic law of man right? This sabbath day discussion has now gotten into a man-versus-God theory, if efforts are persistently made to bring up economics, shopping convenience, etc., all of which are nothing more than surface arguments.

There is a letter written to the church of Colossians from Rome, Col. 2:16. "Let no man therefore judge you in meat, or in drink, or in respect of a Holy day, or of the new moon, or of the sabbath days."

In closing, I leave with you also, the following: Gal. 1:10

". . .To try to please men, is to displease God."

KEN WOODWARD
Cascade

Editor's note: Since Mr. Woodward says, "at no time have I favored or advocated a government sponsored Sunday closing law," we can respect his right to express his convictions and see no reason to continue expressing our view insofar as he is concerned. The discussion on this question started when a letter writer urged the passing of a law to force Sunday closing. With this idea we disagree wholeheartedly. Since, however, Mr. Woodward does accuse us of "twisted interpretations and insinuations," we would like to remind him that we printed his letters in full so readers can make up their own minds as to whether this accusation is justified.

The Local Scene

Honor Bright

By RUFUS L. PORTER

Honor, like gold, remains forever pure,
It does not tarnish, neither does it dim.
Though man may fail it, still it will endure,
The tarnish and the blame revert to him.
An individual who cannot keep
The code of honor he has sworn to hold,
Who vacillates because the price is steep,
Is not deserving of life's purest gold.
Then let's not blame the honest system when
The weak and timid souls among us fail,
For honor was not made for lesser men,
It is a bright, but heavy, coat of mail.
Fair honor is the finest trait of man,
His noblest ally since the world began.

"Wrong" and "evil" are not synonyms, and by no stretch of the imagination can cheating at examinations be considered as an evil. But it is certainly a wrong. And wrong and evil are, in a degree, related. And they both often successfully pose as "goods."

When the news of the cheating scandal at the Air Force Academy first broke, I was inclined, like many others, to excuse the men who had not "squealed" on fellow classmen whom they knew were guilty. After all, isn't a tattle-tale, a "stool pigeon," a dishonorable person.

From early childhood we can all remember that a tattler, one who ran and told mamma on another who had disobeyed mamma's instructions, became a pariah to be shunned by "the more normal" children. And even the mother, though she might punish those who had been tattled on, regarded the tattler with no little suspicion. She felt there was somthing lacking, or not quite right in a kid who would squeal on his playmates. The tattler sensed this and generally "clammed up," as the underworld expresses it.

It is my opinion, offered here for what it's worth, that the idea of it being a dishonor to tell on others who are committing dishonorable deeds originated in the underworld, the world of crime, and was unconsciously adopted by society many centuries ago. But, when a criminal squeals on another criminal it seems that he does commit a dishonorable act, thus proving there is no honor among thieves. By my simple logic, it would have been dishonorable for one of the cheaters to squeal on the others, because he, like the criminal, was implicated himself. But if one with a clean and honorable record reported what he knew of cheating, it could not be described as a dishonorable act. As a man of honor, he HAD to uphold his oath to do just that. He should at first, I believe, have confronted the culprit and given him the opportunity to turn himself in—and then reported him if he failed to do so.

Nobody can possibly support two separate and distinct codes of honor. The cadets do not swear to protect cheaters, but they do swear to report them, and a man of honor keeps his word, sworn or otherwise. It is black and white — as simple as that, in spite of the fact that a retired Air Force colonel believes that honor is flexible and comes in various shades of gray.

But it is not realistic to expect that there will be discovered no dishonest men out of a total of 2500 or more. We all know that dishonesty, like poverty, is always with us. Viewed in the light of men's weaknesses, it is not surprising that there were "so many" involved in cheating. The surprising thing is that there were so few.

Cheating goes on all the time in all the schools, high schools and colleges. But this is no reason to condone it any more than we would condone stealing.

ROTC DEFENDED

To the Editor:

There are many reasons why the Pentagon decision to destroy the Reserves should be defeated, but none is so important as the incident which took place in North Viet Nam today. It also is vitally necessary that the individual Citizen-Reservist be trained and ready for any emergency, brushfire encoun-

The Reserve Officers Association will not be intimidated by the discordant cry of critics who avoid the issue with the assertion that ROA is merely seeking to protect the privileges of reservists. The privilege is of course a high one — that of serving the country in time of emergency. It is not entirely unselfish however, because reservists, like everyone else, want to protect their lives. Men who are trained always have a better chance to survive. They more than anyone else want to avoid war. They know that to do so, the nation must keep its war insurance premiums paid. It is cold truth to assert in the current crisis: "The Reserves ask only the Right to be Ready."

In the proposed merger action being proposed by the Department of Defense, ROA stands virtually alone against this program, which for the first time in our nation's history introduces an element of political control in the reserve components, and hence reserves a basic American tradition. ROA will battle tenaciously to prevent turnover of the Reserve Forces to the National Guard, because examination of the files will reveal clearly that the merger action is linked to highest level political decision stemming from ever-present ambitions in the Washington power structure. The manner of development of this merger plan is now public knowledge, having been produced finally through the civilian comptroller channels, and carried to a decision in a furtive, clandestine manner typical of a military coup.

Well known administration propagandists have begun a tattoo on the public consciousness of misleading half truths, which were designed to discredit the Reserves and to disarm their champions in the Congress. The genius of this merger operation apparently is beclouding normal natural suspicions of such a political move, by denouncing those who could be expected to oppose them, as themselves being political.

Members of ROA and many of our friends realize that the association is by law prohibited from engaging in political or partisan activity. Our charter from the Congress instructs us to work for "a military policy for the United States that will provide adequate National Security," but limits us in the manner in which we can pursue this objective. Historically, ROA has been neither supporter nor opposer of political candidates or political blocs or moves, else we would have been guilty of violating the law and endangering our charter. Some citizens and newspapers do not realize this, and the Pentagon propagandists have done nothing, of course, to inform the public on this score.

In the light of all circumstances, the conclusion is inescapable, that the only hope of retaining the basic military tradition of this nation, which is vital to our survival, rests, with an independent Congress, a fearless, impartial and objective investigation of the proposed merger to abolish the Reserves.

Our association will continue as it has for 43 years, to remain aloof from personal and partisan politics, and seek to serve the high principle of adequate National Security. Our association may not win in a power political struggle, because we are neither equipped, manned nor skilled in that field.

We will win on the issue of National Security, if we steer the straight course toward our historic goal. We, of course, cannot surrender under any circumstances. We must remain at our stations, stoutly resisting attack, faithful to the trust implied in our charter, and in our history. We must be confident that a free and informed citizenry will assert itself, and restore the military policy in our nation, which has for its sole purpose, the protection of our country, and our freedoms from all of its enemies.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty" and all Citizen-Reservists of the Army and Air Force Reserve value this truthful slogan, because two world wars, the Korean stalemate and now the Vietnam crisis reveal that the enemies of freedom will not rest until they have tried all deceitful methods to overcome our American way of life and free government.

It is well for all Americans to realize that "ROA Keeps America Alert, to Keep America Alive." Every patriotic and civic-minded American who believes in God and Country will certainly voice his objections today by writing to his or her senators and representatives in Washington, D.C. to protest this merger action.

During World War II, the victorious United States Army was composed of: 95 per cent Citizen-Soldiers, 2 per cent Regular Army and 3 per cent National Guard. The Reserve Forces of our nation are our future reliance. The experienced elements must not be discarded. How do you increase the combat readiness of our Ready Reserve Forces by eliminating 150,000 trained men and 21 divisions? Careful investigation should be made of the entire Reserve structure to avoid adoption of this hasty and radical decision, which has only one goal, destruction of the Army and Air Force Reserve. If another general war should occur, we all know who would be ordered into uniform first. To reiterate an ageless slogan, "The Reserves ask only the Right to be Ready" to help safeguard the security of our nation, and the preservation of our liberties in the good, old American way of life.

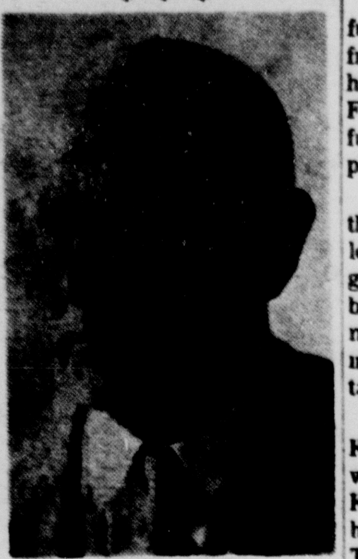
Max Kade Will Attend German House Ceremony

Max Kade, president of the Max Kade Foundation of New York, will attend special ceremonies at Colorado College Tuesday to name the college's newest language house in his honor.

* * *



MAX KADE

* * *

The Max Kade House is a German language house for women students. Only German is spoken in the house by the 19 students, the house mother and departmental assistant living there (except for the lounge.).

The house was made possible through a grant of $15,000 from the Max Kade Foundation. The grant was used for remodeling the house, furniture, and a German library.

Dedication ceremonies will be 3:30 p.m. in the house, 1129 Wood Avenue. The public is invited.

He came to the United States when he was 22 and in 1911 established his own business and developed a pharmaceutical company, Seeck and Kade, Inc., New York.

In 1956, at age 75, still youthful and energetic, he retired from active business, donated his company to the Max Kade Foundation, Inc., and turned his full attention from business to philanthropy.

Mr. and Mrs. Kade begain their philanthropic activities following World War I —with a program of personal giving and built a record of accomplishments with a long experience in charitable giving before establishing the Foundation.

The incorporation of the Max Kade Foundation, Inc., in 1944, was only the culmination of Kade's program to perpetuate his aims of serving humanity. The area of the Foundation's activities widened after World War II to include not only the United States but also Europe.

In the course of its 20 years' history, the Foundation promoted many projects, comprising research in chemical pharmacology, evaluation of the iris-diagnosis, radio - active isotope research, blood cholesterol, and water pollution; publication of books in the field of art, history and engineering; war relief grants to schools, hospital and churches, including renovation and construction aid for the rebuilding of destroyed cultural monuments of great artistic and architectural value.

Kade was awarded several honorary titles and degrees for his interest in and support of higher education. He received his Dr. h.c. and honorary citizenship from the Technical Institute of Stuttgart, and was awarded the title "Professor" by his home state, Baden-Wuerttemberg. He is also an honorary Senator of the universities of Tuebingen, Munich, Heidelberg and Innsbruck.

SCSC Winter Term Enrollment Goes Over 4,000

Winter quarter enrollment at Southern Colorado State College totals 4049 students in all areas, according to figures released by Registrar Alfred F. Kurtin today. This is 597 more than at the same time last year.

Break down of winter quarter enrollment for day classes shows 1223 freshmen, including 820 men and 403 women; 514 sophomores, including 343 men and 171 women; 325 juniors of whom 216 are men and 109 women seniors include 190 men and 101 women for a total of 291; special students number 12 men and 13 women for a total of 25 and practical nurses, 2 men and 30 women for a total of 32. Of the 2410 regular day-time students enrolled, 1583 are men and 827 are women.

Although 131 students were placed on the suspended list following fall quarter for academic deficiency or other reasons, SCS had an increase of first time in college students of 73 compared to last year's 40; 103 transfers compared to last year's 66, and 111 readmits (students who had formerly attended Pueblo College or SCSC) compared to 88 last year.

In the Evening College 1078 students are taking courses on campus including 94 who are also taking courses in regular day programs. In Colorado Springs, 561 students are taking college credit courses given through SCSC.

Geographically, SCSC students are represented in Colorado by all but 14 of the 63 counties. Pueblo County has 1536 students while El Paso County is represented by 248; Fremont, 63; Denver, 50; Huerfano, 32; Otero, 30; Jefferson, 26; Arapahoe, 23 and Prowers 21. Others counties have less than 20 students.

Only 162 students, or 6.8 per cent come from other states and foreign countries. Largest representation comes from Texas with 14; California, 13; New Mexico and Pennsylvania, 12 each; Kansas, Massachusetts and New York, 8 each; Michigan 7 and Nebraska 5. In all, 38 states are represented in the SCSC student body. Six students are from foreign countries, four from Canada and two from Norway.

East, South Share Wrestling Title; Grandcourt Wins Individual Crown

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Pueblo East overcame a long string of individual titles by rival Pueblo South Saturday to tie the Colts for the championship of the District Six Wrestling Tournament at the Palmer Gymnasium.

The two Steel City schools, locked with Wasson in a glove-tight battle for team honors throughout most of the day dominated the finals action during the evening in a race to the wire that saw both end with 92 points. Wasson wound up third with 80, followed by Central with 59, Centennial, 57, Palmer 15, Widefield 2, and Harrison 0.

The power - packed Pueblo schools swept all but one of the individual titles. The lone exception was in the 165 pound class where Wasson's Yogi Grandcourt turned in another brilliant day of mat performances to capture the crown for the second straight year. Grandcourt had pins in his quarter-final and semi-finals matches and registered a strong 6-0 decision over Craig Dotson of Centennial in the finals. The three triumphs stretched his record for the season to 18-1.

Grandcourt is one of only two Colorado Springs wrestlers who qualified for next week's Division I State Tournament in Denver. Terry Remy, the Thunderbirds' 103-pounder, also won a berth while captureing second in that division Saturday. But the 'Birds have four other members of their team which finished second in the South Central League who still have a shot at the state tourney through comeback matches which will be held at 4 p.m. Monday at the Palme Gym.

Dan Costello of Wasson will meet Dennis Gonzales of Centennial in the 95 pound class that afternoon, Ed Abeyta will battle Anthony Rivas of Central, Archie Martinez will tangle with Tony Navarro of Centennial, and the Thunderbirds' Rick Clark will meet Ben Casaus of Central. Two other comeback matches that day will pair Art Luna of Centennial and Martin Head of East in the 133 pound class and Clem Harmes of East and Dotson at 165.

None of the other three Springs' teams entered in Saturday's District will be represented at the State. Among the casulaties was Ron Smith of Palmer, the defending district champ in the heavyweight division. Smith lost a tight 4-3 decision to Wayne Gutierriz of Central in the semi - finals and when Gutierriz was defeated in the finals it wiped out any chance for the Palmer star to return to Denver. He did rebound to defeat Mike Shroyer ebound to defeat Mike Shroyer of South 2-1 in the third place match, a defeat that cost South a clear - cut team title.

Other high finishers among the local athletes were Costello, who was third at 95, Jim Ranals of Wasson who was third at 120, Martinez of Wasson, third

Widefield Bombards Fountain Five, 61-51

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

FOUNTAIN — After a cold opening period, which matched the sub-zero weather outside the Fountain High Gymnasium, Gary Richardson's Gladiators went to work next eight minutes with a torrid-scoring 21 points which established an overwhelming lead for the visiting Widefield roundballers.

The home club attempted to catch the Gladiators in a final-period stand but Widefield's damage in the second period resulted in decisive 61-51 non-conference victory for the Will Rogers League team.

Three Glads scored in the double figures to pace the victory as Eldon Lee canned 16 points, followed by John Henke with 11 and David Smedsrud collected 10.

Burt Feste's aggressive but cold-shooting Trojans also had three players in the double figures. Terry Kent and Dave Ury each contributed 13 points apiece while Brian O'Neill poured in 10 points.

The Trojans found it difficult to complete better than 32.7 per cent from the floor as they sank 17 of 52 field goal attempts. Richardson's chargers, on the other hand, hit 21 of 43 field goals attempts for a respectable 48.6 per cent.

After jumping to a 15-11 lead in the first period, the Fountain basketballers faltered in the next quarter as the Gladiators pumped in 21 points to take a 10-point lead at intermission.

Widefield outscored the Trojans in the third period and raced to a 47-33 lead going into the final quarter.

Richardson cleared his bench in the last five minutes of play and gave his reserve an opportunity to see action, after the Glad regulars built up a comfortable margin.

Widefield's win Saturday night gave the Gladiators a 4-11 won-loss record while the Trojans are 3-9.

Stordahl Smashes Tigers With Four for Minnesota

WHO'S TENDING THE STORE? — It appears like a golden opportunity for Colorado College to score a goal during this action in the series with the University of Minnesota this weekend at the Broadmoor World Arena. Minnesota's goalie John Lothrop is caught out of position as he dives for the puck, but the Tigers were unable to free the disc in the pileup to score on the open net. Players shown are CC's Bob Magie (9) and Warren Fordyce (behind net), and from Minnesota are Lothrop (on hands and knees), Frank Zywiec (4) and Jim Branch (16). Gazette Telegraph Photo)

With University of Minnesota winger Larry Stordahl equalling the scoring output of the Colorado College team, the Golden Gophers ripped their way through a rough and ragged 8-4 victory over CC Saturday night at the Broadmoor World Arena before 1,600 fans.

Stordahl, a 185-pound senior from Roseau, Minne., fired in a four-goal hat trick to pace the Minnesota attack in a game that saw both teams call for nine penalties each. Stordahl put in one tally in each of the first two periods and then came back with a pair in the final round as the Gophers won going away.

The Minnesota wing, who had scored but five goals until Saturday, cut loose with his barrage that all but buried the Tigers into last place for keeps this season in the WCHA standings.

The victory lifted the Gophers into third place on an 8-6 record ahead of idle from league play Michigan State. Meanwhile, CC was absorbing its 10th defeat in a dozen WCHA games.

In the only other league activity, Michigan Tech divided its series with Denver Unit University on a 3-0 victory at Houghton, Mich. That kept Tech solidly in second place behind league-leading North Dakota.

Next week CC will host North Dakota in their last home game of the season on Tuesday and Saturday. After that, the Tigers journey to Michigan State the following weekend to windup their season.

CC was plagued by troubles with their goalies, and were forced to change in mid-stream at the start of the second period. Starter Bill Howard retired in favor of junior Mike Carter, who finished out with 27 saves in the final two periods. Minnesota's John Lothrop had a total of 30 for the game.

As was in the case of Friday's loss to the Gophers, Colorado College jumped off to the first lead in the opening period and this time they hung onto the 1-0 margin for some ten minutes.

Veteran Warren Fordyce and defenseman Dave Scrim combined for the lid-lifter with 5:39 gone, catching the Gophers with a man in the penalty box. Earlier the Bengals had missed on a similar opportunity, when Minnnesota's Jerry Edman went right back into the sin bin after being released. It took the Tigers just 21 seconds to score with Fordyce plunking in a rebound through the goalie's legs.

That score remained until at the 15:24 mark the Golden Gophs put in the first of two rather shaky tries that were to lift them into the lead by the end of the period.

Minnesota's first came on a one-to-two break with CC holding the advantage and was officially credited as "unassisted." However, part credit had to go to the Tigers' John Genz, who was caught playing back with Bob Otto but Genz allowed Stordahl to walk in on goalie Howard without so much as a harsh word and the Gophers winger muffled in the puck from right in the lap of the goal.

With less than two minutes to go, Minnesota got the lead, using their favorite weapon of the Friday contest — the power play while CC was short on penalty. It took 58 seconds after the infraction for Dick Haigh to put in the go-ahead tally, stealing the puck in the corner and then skating into the porous Tiger defense to beat Howard with a tough angle shot that sailed past the goalie's shoulder.

During the intermission, there was some thought of pulling Howard because of trouble caused by his playing with a broken finger. It took less than a minute of the second period to make the decision firm.

The crowd had barely settled into their seats again when Stordahl brought his second of the night, digging the puck out of a scramble in front and flipping it goalward from seven feet in front. The disc hit the post and bounced in, but despite being somewhat of a fluke, it was enough for Howard to volunteer to leave the game.

That's when Carter came on to tend the CC nets.

From then on the Tigers seemed to tighten their defense, and midway through the second period they pulled within one goal, again taking advantage of a Minnesota penalty. With just 15 seconds of the two minutes left on Pat Furlong's sin, Jeff Sauer crammed one into the net at the left corner, banging in his own rebound.

But then in the final minute of play in the period, Minnesota again went up by two as Furlong blazed in a long slap shot that whistled into the CC goalie's pads and bounced into the net. There were but sevn seconds left when the Gophers took their 4-2 lead.

As the third period opened, the Gophers scored for a second time in the game within the first minute of play. Falkman knocked in a rebound from 15 feet to give his team a three-goal lead. But the Tigers trimmed that down to two again just 17 seconds later, with Dave Peterson deflecting a long shot by Otto.

Minnesota continued to pressure the sagging CC defense, however, and at 3:52 Stordahl put in his third goal of the game on a three-on-four. Then with some 10 minutes left to play, the Gophers put it out of range with their seventh goal and a lead of four with Dennis Zacho putting in a sizzling slap from 30 feet that hit the upper-crossbar and bounced in.

The last part of the contest turned in for a near free-for-all with play getting rough on each side and penalty whistles echoing throughout the World Arena.

The Tigers still tried vainly to pull it out and with five minutes left Roger Simon put in a 10-footer that left the score, 7-4, but with both teams a man short Stordahl put in his fourth goal on a long break away which Carter tried to stop by coming out of the cage, but the Gopher ace tucked it into the upper left corner.

Mikita, Hall Boost Chicago Past Rangers

By DICK COUCH

NEW YORK (AP) — Scrappy Stan Mikita and veteran goalie Glenn Hall paced the first-place Chicago Black Hawks to a 3-0 National Hockey League victory over the New York Rangers Saturday.

The Hawks, playing their fourth straight game without scoring star Bobby Hull, broke open the game when Mikita triggered a sudden two-goal burst midway in the last period.

Chicago led 1-0 when Mikita fed linemate Doug Mohns for a 25-foot scoring shot at 8:38. Twenty-one seconds later Mikita took a pass from Ken Wharram and fired his 20th goal of the season.

The two points put Mikita only one behind Hull in the NHL individual scoring race, 67-66. The Rangers outshot Chicago 31-25 but Hall, coming up with all the big saves, kept the Rangers off the scoreboard for his second shutout of the season.

Chicago opened the scoring midway through the first period with each team one man short. Rookie center Fred Stanfield carried into the New York zone, drew in the Ranger defense, and passed to Eric Nesterenko on Marcel Paille's right shoulder. The Hawks protected the lead, despite being outshot 14-6 in the second period.

The Hawks' victory, before a sellout matinee crowd of 15,925, boosted their season margin over New York to 8-2-1. They are unbeaten in five games here.

The game marked Camille Henry's first appearance against the Rangers since they traded him to Chicago in a seven- player deal 10 days ago. He took a regular turn on the ice and also worked on Chicago power plays but ftiled to get off a shot.

St. Johns Deals Loss to Niagra

NEW YORK (AP) — St. John's basketball team returned home Saturday afternoon after losing three of four games on the road and walloped Niagara 82-62.

Bobby McIntyre, 6-foot-6 junior who missed last Tuesday's loss to Vaillanova because of an ankle injury, led the Redmen to their 14th victory against five losses with 26 points, 16 in the first half.

He sat out the last five minutes of the lopsided contest as Coach Joe Lapchick cleared the bench.

Niagara didn't play the first half like a club that went into the contest with a 3-18 record and held a five-point spread at one time, 18-13.

St. John's took over for good at 22-20 on Ken Wirell's push shot with 7:24 left in the half. At the intermission,, the advantage was four, 32-28, but the outcome was settled in the opening minutes after the break when the Redmen went on a 13-2 spurt.

Centennial Upsets Central

PUEBLO — Centennial stunned Central's Wildcat's 64-55, Saturday afternoon to throw the South Central League into a first - place tie. Both teams now have 7-1 league records.

It was the second time Centennial has beaten the Wildcats for Central's only losses this season.

D&B Drops New Mexico School

Colorado Deaf and Blind gained a 61-43 victory Saturday night in its annual game with New Mexico School for the Deaf at Santa Fe.

Danny Ward scored 29 points for D&B and Jim Reitz added 10. Gary Shiplett, a Deaf All-American from New Mexico School, was held to eight points. Shiplett's parents live in Pueblo.

Blanda Signs With Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — George Blanda, 37-year-old Houston Oiler quarterback, has signed for two more seasons, officials of the American Football League team announced Saturday.

Blanda completed his 15th professional season last year by setting two league records — the most passes attempted in a single season, 505, and the most completed, 262.

Blanda, who spent 10 years with the National Football League Chicago Bears and the last five with the Oilers, has passed from 20,744 yards and 176 touchdowns during his pro career.

He kicked two field goals and four extra points in the last game of the 1964 season to give him a career total of 1,001 points scored.

Portland Uses Comeback To Smash Air Force

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Portland came from behind in the second half Saturday night to defeat Air Force, 73-57, in a non - conference basket ball game.

Air Force led at halftime, 35-33.

Clacy Powell led a second-half Portland surge that saw the lead change hands with 15 minutes remaining in the game. Powell had 17 points.

The Bomb Has Dropped

There still may be a few naive individuals who continue to believe in that sanctimonious quotation from one of our clan — "it's not whether you win or lose, but how you played the game." But don't try to argue that with hockey fans of this town.

* * *

Attendance at games over the past few years have more than proven that a fable. Typical was the series this weekend between Colorado College and the University of Minnesota . . . you could nearly count the crowd of Friday night's opener by glancing around between face offs.

Quality of play by the Tigers has not been that far off the standard set in past years. But it's pretty obvious that there's not much backing for a last place team. I just wonder how it would effect the empty seats in the World Arena if Colorado College's won-lost record were reversed.

We're reminded of the words earlier in the season from one of the league's coaches. Michigan State's Amo Bessone claimed that the prestige of the opponent was a determining factor in bringing out the fans for his home games.

"Why should we play obscure schools from the West and take the risk of getting beat, when we can play more well-known schools from the East. Granted, they don't play as well, but people have heard more about teams like Harvard or Yale and they're impressed when we have a good record."

Well, they don't come with much more prestige than the Big Ten when talking about athletics. But when the University of Minnesota comes to town and still there is only about a quarter of the 5,000 seats of the Broadmoor World Arena filled — then something's got to be wrong.

And the only handy reason for the absence of interest in Coach Bob Johnson's Bengals is the record. Sure, some team has to bring up the tailend but after seven seasons at or near the bottom it begins to wear a bit thin.

JOHN MARIUCCI
Ringleader in Town

* * *

Of course it must be considered that until the fairly recent decline by the Tigers — which hit bottom during the 1961 season without a win in 24 tries — there were fewer seats at the then Ice Palace. And if there were still half as many seats as now, the crowds would at least appear larger. They would be no more in numbers, but at least capacity would be taxed now and then. But with the natural growth of the region, there's no reason why more hockey fans shouldn't be available.

Then there's the point that the sport used to be in better favor with the society crowd and watching games was the "thing to do." I can't help but think that another title or at least winning league record would make it popular again.

So it's little wonder that some coaches have gone all - out to bring in the best talent and insure their jobs with winners. And in the past, CC was one of the main culprits, making many a recruiting trip into Canada for the ready-made player who in many cases was just a step away from the professionals.

As far as the Canadian boy is concerned, there still is nothing wrong with having him attend school in this country and applying the skating talents he has learned since the toddling stage. The only catch now is that the Western Collegiate Hockey Association has outlawed the player who has spent several years past high school with

Canon City Leads WRL Grapplers

Canon City's touted wrestling team qualified four grapplers for the State Division — tournament as the Tigers led the other Will Rogers League in district tounamnts.

The Tigers scored 50 points to finish fifth in their district tournament Saturday night at Rocky Ford along with the six tournament Saturday night at Rocky Ford along with the six Southern League teams and Trinidad. The Alamosa team was tops with 76 points.

Meanwhile, the other two WLR members (Cheyenne Mountain and Academy High) qualified three grapplers including Academy High's Arnie Arneson and John Parsons, who finished second respectively in the 112 and 145 - pound weight division.

For Cheyenne Mountain, Gary Seabolt was the only wrestier to qualify for the state meet as the 127-pounder finished second in his division. Both Cheyenne and Academy High were in the District 1, along with the Centennial League members at Littleton. Littleton won the team event with 89 points.

Canon City's undefeated heavyweight, Tom Firestack who is considered a leading contender for the state title, won his 19th straight match in the district finals. Firestack pinned all three opponents and ran his streak to 16 victories by pins.

Michigan Rips Michigan State

By ROBERT E. VOGES
Associated Press Sports Writer

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Mighty Michigan, top-ranked basketball team in the nation, trailed lowly Michigan State at the half before the brilliant Cazzie Russell led a second half rally for a 93-83 Big Ten victory Saturday.

Russell scored only 10 in the first half but was unstoppable after the intermission, finishing with 32.

Michigan now has a perfect 7-0 Big Ten record and is 15-2 over-all. Michigan state is 0-8 in the conference and has a 4-13 over-all record.

Bill Buntin scored 19 points for the Wolverines, while Larry Tregoning and George Poney added 13 apiece. High scorers for the Spartans were Bill Curtis, with 22, and Stan Washington, with 21.

Washington was a one-man team in the first half, picking up 18 points, and Michigan State and a surprising 43-38 lead at halftime.

After the second half opened, Michigan pulled to a 45-45 tie and a field shot by Buntin put the Wolverines ahead to stay, 47-45.

From then on Michigan put the game out of the Spartans' reach, building on its lead with a span of eight straight baskets just before the 10-minute mark of the second half.

Russell was a killer on the fast break, repeatedly speeding down the floor all alone to drop in baskets with his flashy style.

South Coach Encourages Wrestler

at 127, Paul Briggs of Wasson, fourth at 133, Jack Jenkins of Wasson, fourth at 138, Vaughn Langman of Wasson, third at 145, Larry Williams of Palmer, fourth at 154, Clark of Wasson, second at 154, and Bud Hoffpauir of Wasson, fourth at 180.

Wasson made a strong run at the team crown, advancing 10 of 12 men through the first round eventually winding up with 11 in either the consolation or championship finals. But the Thunderbirds could not match the individual strength of the two Pueblo schools in the last round.

South took a sizeable lead in the evening finals, winning five of the first six titles awarded. But East rebounded to capture the next three and the Eagles added the heavyweight crown when Dan Montoya came through with a clutch 2-1 decision over Gutierriz that provided the points necessary to tie South.

The Colts wrapped up their chores by winning a sixth individual crown when Keith Frazier grabbed a 3-2 decision in the 180 pound class. East's conference champions finished with four titles while Wasson and Centennial won one apiece.

Grandcourt had little trouble in annexing his second straight championship. The powerful Thunderbird, who was also an all-state football player, pinned Bill McAlpine of South in 3:14 in his leadoff match and followed with a fall over Clem Harmes of East in 5:47 in the semis. He was in control all the way in his 6-0 finals decision over Dotson.

The wrestlers now move on to Denver Thursday where they will launch the three day Division I State Tournament at the Auditorium - Arena.

Kansas Bops Sooners, 74 - 57

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Big Walt Wesley poured in 38 points as Kansas trounced Oklahoma 74-57 Saturday in a Big Eight Conference basketball game.

Wesley hit the first six shots he took from the field and ended the game with 15 of 26 from the field and 8 of 12 from the free throw line.

The Jayhawks, who ran their conference record to 6-3, raced to a 37-17 lead with four minutes left in the first half. Oklahoma fought back with a full court press to pull within 39-33 at the half. That was as close as the Sooners got.

The loss dropped Oklahoma to 2-7 in the Big Eight.

Huskers Upset Colorado

Colorado had defeated Nebraska 11 straight times until Saturday night's upset before about 7,000 fans.

Nebraska made its home record 7-2 in an 8-11 season.

The seventh - place Huskers, now 3-5 in the league, handed Colorado its third loss in eight conference games. The Buffs were in second place going into the game, one game behind Oklahoma State.Kansas' victory Saturday afternoon dumped Colorado into third.

Nebraska held its biggest lead, 41-27, at the half and withstood Colorado's press after Buff starters Lynn Baker, Pat Frink and Chuck Gardner fouled out.

Colorado trimmed the margin and got up to 59-55 on baskets by Mike Frink, Karl Tait and Bob Bauers with 2:41 remaining.

Colorado then went into a press. Jerry Spears counted a free throw for Nebraska and Grant Simmons, the Huskers' leading scorer with 23, added four from the charity lane while Colorado managed only a basket by Bob Joyce.

Hot Streak Breaks Badgers

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue hit a 10-point hot streak midway in the second half and beat Wisconsin 83-74 in Basketball Saturday afternoon.

The Boilermakers broke an eight-place tie with the Badgets in the Big Ten standings.

Jim Bohen was high for Wisconsin with 17.

Purdue led only briefly in the first half, which ended with Wisconsin on top at 40-39. The Boilermakers caught up at 51-51 and cracked a 55-55 tie with the 10-point burst that broke open the game.

New Process Speeds Pictures At Meadows

Pikes Peak Meadows will be the first race track in the country to use a new development in film patrol pictures according to an announcement by Pikes Peak general manager John Sidenberg, and Boyd Paulson, president of Motion Picture Equipment, Inc.

The new process involves the use of closed circuit television and kinescope. As closed circuit television cameras follow a race, motion picture film is exposed and developed while the race is still being run. The film is ready for viewing in less than two minutes after the start of a race.

This compares with an average time of ten minutes for official review with older film methods in use prior to the development of the new system. It is also faster than videotape systems of comparable cost.

The unique new process should help to eliminate lengthy delays brought about by official inquiry into the running of a race, Sidenberg said.

Pikes Peak Meadows will open for its inaugural 41-day season on May 7, using the new process. The new track is located half way between Colorado Springs and Pueblo.

Fowler Matman Falls in Finals

AURORA—Louis True of Fowler fell in the finals of the District II state wrestling meet Saturday night, to Cedaredge's Chuck Palmer, 3-0, in the 95-pound class.

Wray won the state title with 54 points, followed by Steamboat Springs with 51 and Olathe with 47. It was the third state title in nine years for the Eagles.

CC Tankers Capture Own Relays

Colorado College gathered two first places and three seconds to win its own invitational swimming and diving relays Saturday afternoon.

The Tiger swimmers had 66 points, two better than Weber State College, which claimed four first places. Colorado Mines was third with 60 points and Regis College had 20.

Weber State took first in the 400-yard medley, 500-yard distant freestyle, 300-yard individual medley and 400-yard freestyle relays. Mines captured the 300-yard backstroke relay.

Kidd Grabs Win In Slalom Race

CRESTED BUTTE, Colo. (AP) — Billy Kidd of Stowe, Vt. and Cathy Allen of Mammoth Mountain, Calif. won in slalom competition in the American Internationals Alpine Skiing Championships Saturday.

For Kidd, 21-year-old who skied for the United States in the Olympics last year, it was the second victory in two days. He topped the giant slalom Friday.

Kidd set a terrific pace in the half-mile slalom, clocking 57.4 seconds for his first run and 66.6 for his second. He was 6.4 seconds ahead of second-place winner Dennis Punch McCoy, 20, also of Mammoth Mountain.

Miss Allen, 18, completed her first run in 49.6 seconds and her second in 52.9 over a shorter course. Her total time was 2.8 seconds ahead of Margo Walters, 22, of Utah.

Fleming Captures Senior Ladies' Figure Skate Title

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Peggy Fleming of Pasadena, Calif., came from behind with a spectacular free-style performance Saturday and successfully defended her senior ladies' singles title in the 1965 United States Figure Skating championships.

Miss Fleming, 16, second in the compulsory figures, earned marks as high as 5.9 for her free skating on a scale where 6.0 is considered perfect. All five judges ranked her first and gave her a perfect ordinal placement score of 5.

Christine Haigler, 17, of Colorado Springs, who led after the compulsory figures, was second. Albertina Noyes, 16, Arlington, Mass., third.

Earlier, 18-year-old Paul McGrath of Jamaica Plains, Mass., won the junior men's singles crown and Kathy Flaherty of La Crescenta, Calif., and Roger Berry of Los Angeles, each 18, captured the silver dance title.

Miss Fleming, a pretty, blue-eyed brownette, never skated better. Her free skating marks ranged between 5.4 and 5.9.

The other two titles also were won in the final round. McGrath had trailed Robert Black, 15, of Melrose, Mass., in the figures, and Miss Flaherty and Berry were second to Sandra Schwomeyer of Indianapolis and James Pennington of Evansville, Ind., in the initial round of silver dance. The standings were reversed in both finals.

The three girls will represent the U.S. in the North American championships at Rochester, N.Y., Feb. 19-21 and the world championships at Colorado Springs March 2-6.

Miss Haigler, obviously hampered by a back injury suffered in training earlier in the week, fell three times during her program but managed to hold second place. She had three second place votes, a third and a fourth for 13 ordinal points.

Miss Noyes also had 13 ordinal points on two seconds and three thirds.

Stunned Pirates Face Defending DPL Titlists

Stunned by Mullen's high-scoring Mustangs Friday night for their third conference loss, Dan Wright's Buccaneers will have to regroup their efforts when the St. Mary's roundballers play host to defending Denver Parochial League co-champions from Holy Family. Game time is set for 2:30 p.m. at the Pirates gym.

The Pirates succumbed to torrid-scoring Mullen, despite the fact the local Parokes made a remarkable recovery in the final period. St. Mary's 82-73 loss to the Mustangs almost eliminated its hopes for the DPL championship.

Mullen is now 12-1 in league play and the Mustangs were scheduled to play St. Francis this afternoon. Regis, which shared the DPL crown with Holy Family last season, took over sole possesion of second place and pushed the Bucs into third place. Regis has an 11-2 won-loss record while the Pirates are 10-3 in DPL competition.

The showndown for the championship will come when Regis and Mullen tangle in a re-match game this Friday night at the Mullen Gymnasium. In the DPL first round, Regis knocked off Mullen and threw St. Mary's and the Mustangs into a tie for the loop race.

A victory for Mullen would put the Mustangs beyond reach in the pennant chase (providing they win their final three league games against Machebeuf, Cathedral and winless Mt. Carmel.)

There is still a slight chance for the Pirates getting another shot at the title. But it would require another win for Regis over Mullen which would give both teams two losses. Then it would take another loss for each team, which means that the other DPL teams would have to defeat both Regis and Mullen, to deadlock the championship between St. Mary's, Regis and Mullen via three losses each.

Meanwhile, St. Mary's Pirates must content themselves with today's encounter against a pesky team they slipped past in the DPL first round. The Pirates edged Holy Family, 59-58, in their last outing.

In reviewing Friday's loss to Mullen, the Bucs were behind as much as 26 points before they rallied in the second half. With six minutes left in the game, the Mustangs led by 21 points but the Pirates cut down the margin to five points with 2:15 remaining. However, Jim Wedow who paced the Mustangs with a 43-point scoring performance, hit six charity points to pull the game out for Mullen.

BETWEEN THE LINES

BY LOY HOLMAN

an advanced farm club of the pros.

The ringleader of the fight to exclude the older Canadians is in town this weekend with his Gophers from Minnesota. It's highly suspicious that John Mariucci is feathering his own bed as the most fertile recruiting spot in this land is his home state and it's only natural that he's going to get first carack with the leftovers going elsewhere. If all the teams must find players in Minnesota, or anywhere else in the U. S., it only figures that the Gophers will be the team to beat.

As far as Mariucci is concerned, evidently he feels the battle is over on this point:

"The bomb has been dropped . . . and we're just waiting for the smoke to clear," the Minnesota coach said this week. "There's no more fighting and now we can settle down to developing better hockey.

"Some people will construe these new rules in the league (which Mariucci pushed with the aid of a few other coaches) as being against the Canadians. But that's not intended. We just wanted to give the American kid a chance — a chance to play against those of equal age and experience. And we wanted to help out the high school hockey program, not only in Minnesota but everywhere.

"There are those who complain that the calibre of the league is going down," Mariucci said. "It's true we'll have no Red Hay or Berenson (grads of the WCHA who went on into the NHL) but we're giving the fans the most interesting and intriguing hockey in the past 13 years."

The Gophers' coach also claimed that the new rule restricting the age of incoming players will also help other schools get started in the sport. He mentioned teams like Wisconsin, Notre Dame, Illinois and Ohio State, but all in the midwest where it's convenient for their schedule.

Mariucci sees the day coming when no longer will teams come in for a two-game series, like his team's games with CC with more schools taking up the sport each year, eventually they will play one night stands like in basketball and give the fans more variety of opposition.

The often out-spoken Minnesota coach also hit on the angle of stimulating local interest with the use of local players. And after watching two of the Colorado Springs' high schools play last Thursday night (before a crowd much larger than for the college game) he said he was surprised at the improvement they have made over the past few years, especially since the Springs' teams have only a couple hours per week practice time on artificial ice.

Compared to the small league here which is the only one in the state, Minnesota has over 100 high school squads, and in Minneapolis there are seven indoor rinks to play on and within 15 miles of the U. of Minnesota campus there are 65 high schools playing hockey.

Irish Block Ohio, 94 - 86

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Norte Dame converted eight more free throws than Ohio University and beat the Bobcats 94-86 Saturday.

The victory gave the Irish a 12-9 record for the basketball season and ran their winning streak to three games.

Notre Dame couldn't stop Ohio's Don Hilt, who scored 33 points on 11 of 20 shots from the field and 11 of 14 free throws. Walt Sahm led the Irish with 27 points.

More Than Basketball Shown by Globetrotters

Skilled artists of several professions will present their talents for delight of the assembled fans at the City Auditorium on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 26-27, when the Harlem Globetrotters of basketball headline a huge program starting at 8 p.m. both nights.

Not only are the basketball players who will be in action against the New York Nationals among the finest in the sport, but so are the array of added entertainers Abe Saperstein of the Trotters is bringing along.

This is the celebrated International edition of the Globetrotters, who take their cage wizardry, showmanship and all-around brilliance to all parts of the globe, including a third complete swing around the world last year. The team's 39th edition has been classed among the best of all time. It is a unit of outstanding cagers, height, razzle dazzle perfection and speed.

There are the ace fun ringleaders Bob (Showboat) Hall, 6-2, now in the 15th season with the team and J. C. Gipson, 6-8, a 13-year veteran. Rounding out the powerhouse are Bobby Milton, 6-1, 15th year; Hallie Bryant, 6-3, Indiana University; seven-foot Bill (The Orbit) Garner from the University of Portland (Ore.); Mel Davis, 6-5, third season; Leroy Gibson 6-5, a soph in Trotter rank; dribbling wizard Murphy Summons, 6-3; and Doug Himes, 6-5. Only newcomer to make the squad is 6-9 Manny Oliver.

That's an array that would scare most any opponent, but not the Nationals who are capable in their own right. Their squad: Tike Karavas, 6-0, El Camino Junior College, Calif., a three-year AAU star; Bob Combs, 5-10, California State College and All-Army three years; Pat Patterson, 6-8, Bowling Green and voted most Valuable Player in military tournament held in Verdun, France; Robert Akeo, 6-0, University of Hawaii; Paul Putnam, 6-7, Fullerton Junior College, Calif; player-coach Bob Stoermer, 6-8, Univerity of Oklahoma; Troy Collier, 6-8, Utah State University and Willie Anderson 6-4, Oregon Tech.

Before the game and between halves will come the added show, led by sensational one-legged dancing star Peg-Leg Bates, and including the international table tennis champions, Richard Bergmann of England and Lee Dal Joon of South Korea, in competition; Chinese hand-balancing expert George Lee; Canada's clever Mike LeMay in acrobatic wizardry; trampoline ace Steve Perry, and Lee Marx, celebrated juggler and acrobat.

NFL to Consider New Player Limit In Annual Meeting at Palm Desert

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) —The National Football League will consider a new player limit at its annual meetings opening Tuesday and will discuss players' requests for representation on the pension fund, changes in playing rules and crowd control at games.

The player limit, increased to 37 for a one-year trial in 1963 and to 40 for another one-year test in 1964, has reverted to 36 men. Some compromise between those who think 36 men are not enough and those who found the rigid 40-man limit too restrictive probably will be reached.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle, after the owners voted, relaxed the rigid 40-man rule last year when Detroit found itself with only one quarterback, Milt Plum, who had a sore elbow. As a result, each team was permitted to add one man from outside the original talent pool.

The league constitution will be formally amended to prohibit signings of college players until the player's team has completed its schedule, including post-season bowl games. Rozelle took this action in early January but it must be placed in formal language in the league constitution.

The NFL Players' Association, which has been campaigning for years to get representation on the pension fund board, has been asked to send a letter, outlining its requests, to be considered at the meetings.

There was no indication that Bernie Parrish, Cleveland Browns' defensive back who is vice-president of the players' group, will be present. Parrish recently demanded that Rozelle be unseated and replaced by Paul Brown, former Cleveland coach.

Among the changes proposed in the playing rules were to permit a punt to be returned from the end zone, to reduce the penalty for grabbing a face mask from 15 to five-yards, to have officials drop bright yellow flags instead of white to designate penalties.

Many fans will be surprised to learn that current NFL rules do not permit a player to return a punt or field goal from the end zone.

The problem of crowd control came to a head after fans ran onto the field during the closing seconds of a Cleveland at New York game and also in the title game at Cleveland. In the Giants game, a point after touchdown never was attempted. At Cleveland, the officials simply let the clock run out the final 26 seconds. In both cases the fans had torn down the goal posts and swarmed over the playing field.

A league-wide talent scouting system has been proposed. At the present there are three different pools, covering three or four clubs each, and several independent operations.

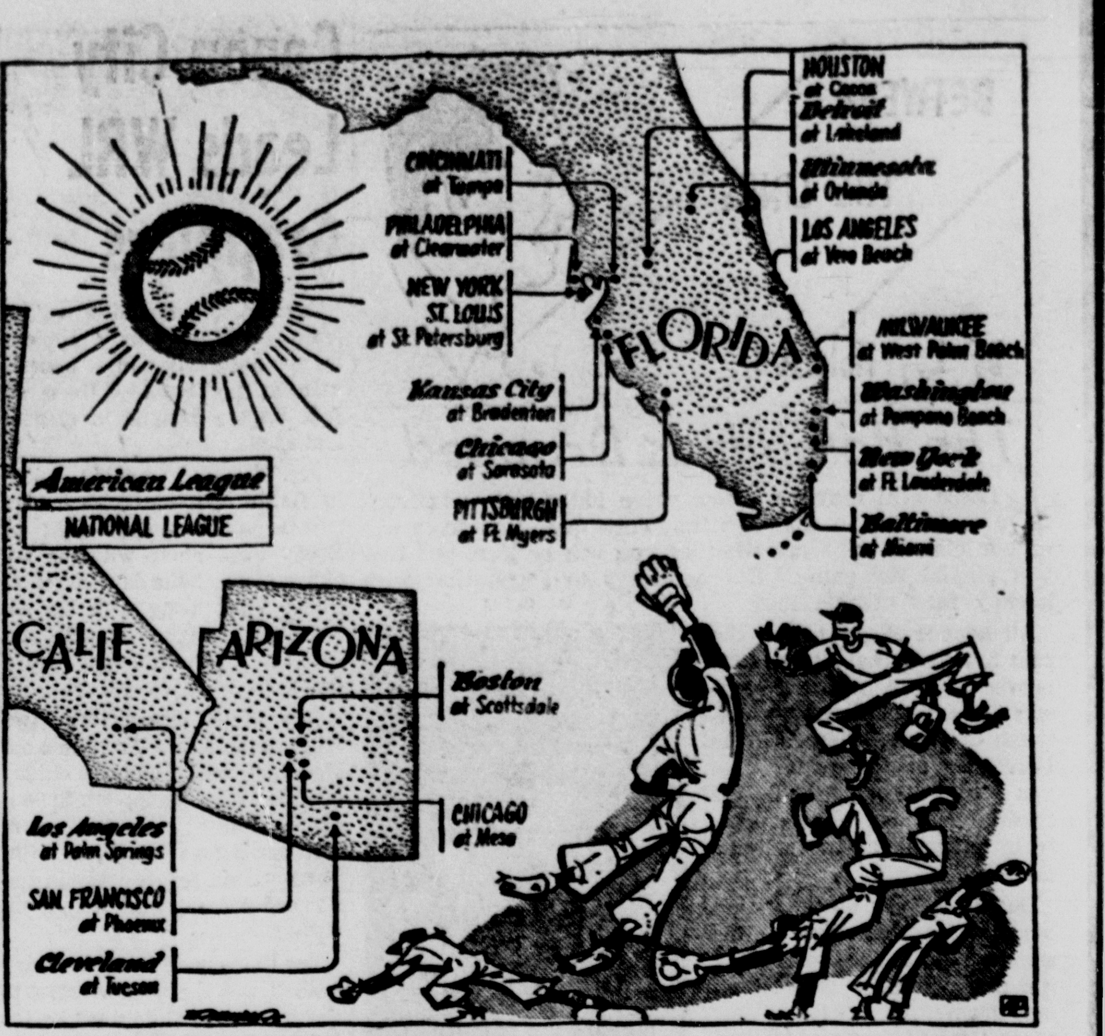
The Playoff Bowl game, played the week after the title game in Miami, comes up for routine renewal as well as participation in the All-America Game played at Buffalo, N.Y., each June.

Teams that used the video-tape playback in home games to spot trends in play and details of defense, are asked to provide similar facilities for visiting teams.

The matter of giving the home club the option to wear its own colors or a white uniform will be considered. Eight clubs wore the white at home last year.

One proposal would move back the trade deadline from after the fifth game to after the 10th game of the season.

In preliminary committee meetings Monday the pre-season schedule will be discussed and other business matters will be considered. The actual playing schedule still is not completed with the opening and closing days still to be determined. One proposal would open the season Sept. 19, a week later than usual.



WHEN WINTER COMES, CAN BASEBALL BE FAR BEHIND—This is the time of year when some 800 roster players and 100 beardless bonus youngsters begin their fight for major league baseball jobs. Fifteen teams will train in Florida, four in Arizona and one in California, the same setup as last year when seven of them were battling for two pennants with only three days of a 162-game season left. The exhibition season starts March 13, although Senators face the Yankees March 11 at Pompano Beach, Fla.

20 Pilots Have Problems As Spring Training Nears

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Spring training is a place in Florida, Arizona or California where a baseball manager seeks to get all the answers to all the questions asked at all those winter banquets.

It is the place where old hands realize they can't beat baseball's semi-monthly pay checks and insist on "just one more year." It is also a place where first-year teen-agers make the grade if they don't come up with sunburn.

The 20 managers may be in for more than their share of surprises because never in the history of spring training have they faced so many problems.

Warren Spahn signed as a pitcher with the Mets after winning only six games on an $80,000 Milwaukee contract. He probably took the maximum 25 per cent cut, making him a $60,000 pitcher with a team that has trouble scoring runs. Can he come back? His chances are slim. His 13 seasons of 20 or more wins a year were with better teams, and he is 44.

Yogi Berra took $25,00 and quit the Yankees and signed with the Mets for a similar amount to coach — with a verbal agreement that if he plays he may get at least $10,000 more. But the ousted Yankee manager is coming up 40 and hasn't played catch or made a hit in more than a year.

But the Mets, know the publicity value of future Hall of Famers. If Yogi gets in 20 games he will be playing alot.

The Dodgers have Washington's Claude Osteen as a southpaw replacement for Johnny Podres who is trying a comeback after working only three innings in 1964. San Francisco's Jack Sanford is another big question. He was 5-7 last year and had an arm operation. Frank Larry worked only 70 innings and is getting a chance with Milwaukee.

Those are only a few National League pitching problems. The league could be torn apart by the Phillies with Dick Stuart's bat, but his inept glove work makes Gene Mach's infield a sieve. One of his teammates will be battling Bo Belinsky. Wonder if Mauch will room them together.

In the American League. Manager Johnny Keane of the Yankees admits he knows little about his team, other than how they failed in the seven-game World Series.

He wants to see Mickey Mantle in center field but the man who led St. Louis to its first World Series win in 18 years will learn in the exhibition games that Roger Maris is his best center fielder.

Whitey Ford, operated on to aid circulation in his pitching arm, won't know how well he can pitch until late March. Tony Kubek, a .229 hitter in 106 games, missed the last month of '64 with an injured throwing hand.

And Joe Pepitone, whose 18 errors and one base on balls between Memorial Day and Labor Day, may find first base competition from a former Met. Duke Carmel. Pep drove in 100 runs last year but at times people thought he was battling Dick Stuart for the most errors title.

Rocky Colavtio wrote Kansas City's Charley Finely a letter saying "trade me," and he got his wish. Cleveland took him to help the gate and the batting attack. The Indians also have Ralph Terry to shore up their pitching.

Washington has big Frank Howard to drive in runs but Gil Hodges will have to be patient with his fielding and throwing. Baltimore is looking for a new center fielder because Jackie Brandt hit only .243 and slugger Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota may be back at first base, a position he hasn't played in two years.

Fitting the pieces together is a spring training hope. Some of the questions will be carried into May and June. But these are the things you will be reading about this spring.

Monument Tops Woodland Park

Monument had four players in double figures Saturday night as the Rangers took a 67-62 comeback victory over Woodland Park.

Dan Pierce led the way with 21 points, followed by Corky Carver (18), Dennis Luce (15) and Jim Johnson (10).

The rangers were down, 35-28, at halftime, but rallied for 41 points the last 16 minutes.

Miss Richey Takes Indoor Net Crown

Making the first defense of her No. 1 national ranking, the 22-year-old controlled play throughout in beating Mrs. Carol Hanks Aucamp of St. Louis, 6-3, 6-2.

Salida's Lantz Twists Ankle

SALIDA — An injury to 6-7 John Lantz marred Salida's 64-56 victory Saturday night over Canon City Abbey. Lantz twisted his ankle during a scramble in the second period. The extent of the injury was not immediately known.

Norman Williams led the Spartans with 15 points. Lantz had 11 before leaving the game. Morgan Bakewell led Abbey with 18 points.

BREAKS OWN MARK — Randy Matson, Texas giant, broke his own world indoor shot put record within 24 hours Saturday night. Matson, 6-6 and 255, hurled the ball 66-2½ Saturday night in Dallas, cracking the record of 65-8¼ he set Friday at Fort Worth in the Will Rogers Games. Matson is a sophomore at Texas A&M.

Ouimet Joins Forces With Critics Of Format Changes of Golf Meets

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Francis Ouimet, one of the immortals of American golf, joined Saturday in the criticism of format changes in the national championships, but the U.S. Golf Association stuck grimly to its guns.

"The general reaction among golfers has been overwhelming applause for our move," said Joe Dey, executive director of the USGA. "We believe it serves the best interests of the game."

The USGA dropped a bombshell at its recent annual meeting by announcing that the National Open would be a four-day instead of a three-day competition, eliminating the rigorous double round on the final day, and that the National Amateur would be converted from match to medal play.

The 36-hole windup has been a longtime tradition in the Open, borrowed from the British, who still retain it. The Amateur has been contested at match play since it was started in 1895.

Immediate and sharp protests resulted in some quarters, principally from old-timers and sentimentalists. Most of the modern players went on record as favoring the changes in both instances.

One criticism was that the USGA, in making the changes, had sold its soul for the television ollar. This was denied by Dey, who said TV receipts were not a factor.

"I sincerely hope that the USGA was not guided by mercenary reasons," said Ouimet, whose victory in the National Open at Brookline, Mass., in 1913 is credited with popularizing the sport in the United States.

Ouimet was a scrawny Boston caddie of 20 when he tied Britain's great stars, Harry Vardon and Ted Ray, for the Open title and then won the playoff. The story became page one news. As a result, golf lost its status as a game strictly for the privileged and became a sport of the people.

Ouimet, an amateur, also won the National Amateur in 1914 and 1931 and served many years as captain of the U.S. Walker Cup team.

"Match play is the spirit of amateur golf," the graying, bespectacled Bostonian said. "That's the way the competition started 200 years ago and has prevailed down through the years.

"There is something cold and impersonal about medal golf. You play against a course and 50 or 60 opponents you never see. In matches, the opponent is right with you. Admittedly, medal is the proper format for the professional but matches are for the amateur."

Backing Ouimet were such leading voices as Charles (Chick) Evans, Gene Sarazen and Fred Corcoran, the director of the International Golf Association.

Bill Campbell of Huntington, West Va., the 1964 National Amateur champion, led the strong and outspoken support of the USGA action. He was joined by such leading present-day amateurs as Deane Beman, Charlie Coe, Billy Joe Patton, Harvie Ward, Dale Morey, Bill Hyndman and Bob Gardner.

"Match play is the essence of amateurism," insisted Evans, winner of both the National Amateur and National Open in 1916. "When you want to play, you don't go out and play the course. You call a friend and challenge him to a game."

Corcoran, credited with building the PGA tour into a million-dollar enterprise, recalled the historic challenge matches between Bob Jones and Walter Hagen, Sarazen and Ouimet and added:

"Match play is the hartbeat of golf. It is sewn into the tradition of the game. Not considering the factors that brought about this decision, I'd hate to see match play disappear."

Sarazen said he felt that the National Open had lost its character in changing to a four-day tournament. "The 36 hole climax gave it an exciting quality," the Squire added. "It meant double pressure and it took a real champion to survive."

Dey explained that in the case of the Open the growing tendency toward slow play had forced USGA directors into taking the drastic action.

With four and five hours required for each round, it became almost a physical impossibility to play two rounds in a single day.

On the Amateur change, the USGA executive director said exposure rather than possible came almost a physical impossibility to play two rounds in a single day.

On the Amateur change, the USGA executive director said exposure rather than possible TV receipts were a major factor.

"Match play reduces the field quickly until only two are left on the final day," he said. "Stroke play keeps a large field—at least 60—on the course until the finish.

"Furthermore, the excellent testing qualities of stroke play are universally recognized. It's the best way to decide a championship."

Campbell, at 41 one of the oldest men ever to win the Amateur, said he supported the change both as a member of the USGA Championship Committee and the Executive Committee.

"Time is so important to the amateur today," Campbell said. "Under the old format it took nine days to prepare for and play the Amateur. Now we can do it with six, counting two days of practice. It's the best way of comparing golfers."

Beman, National Amateur champion in 1960 and 1963, called the step "bold and progressive" and said it would give more people a chance to see the amateurs. Coe, who won in 1949 and 1958, said, "It will consistently produce deserving champions."

Other compliments came from such Walker Cup stars as Ward ("Stroke play is a truer test"), Patton ("I am elated"), Morey ("The best test"), Hyndman ("I am confident it will produce the best champion"), and Gardner ("The fellow with the lowest score for four days will be champion—I think the change is a good one.").

Veterans Take First Row in Daytona 500

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Veteran drivers from North Carolina, Darel Dieringer and Junior Johnson, will start in the front row Sunday when 43 late model cars run for the richest purse in stock car racing.

They will be after the $26,300 first money in the Daytona 500.

Dieringer won the pole and Johnson the outside of the front row by taking 50-mile qualifying races a week ago and proved it was no fluke when they won 100-milers Friday to determine the other starting positions.

"The veterans may have it a little tough with so many inexperienced drivers in the race," said Dieringer. "I shouldn't knock the younger fellows. We all had to start sometime, but it is a fact it will be a little tough."

He will be driving a 1964 Mercury which he raced on the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing circuit last year — but with a new motor. He qualified at better than 171 miles an hour — bettering the 1965 Fords which other chief contenders will drive.

Johnson has one of the new Fords. Fred Lorenzen of Elmhurst, Ill.; Ned Jarrett of Camden, S.C.; Marvin Panch of Daytona Beach and Bobby Johns of Miami have other 1965 Fords.

Earl Balmer of Floyds Knobs, Ind., a newcomer to the NASCAR circuit after success in Automobile Racing Club of America events throughout the Midwest, has a Mercury similar to Dieringer's and is the biggest threat among a large group of newcomers.

The field isn't quite as large as usual, attributed generally to stricter mechanical regulations established by NASCAR.

Texas Tech Holds Lead

DALLAS (AP) — Dub Malaise led Texas Tech to an 82-72 victory over Southern Methodist Saturday and kept the Red Raiders on top of the Southwest Conference basketball race.

British Soccer Bribe Stigma Rivals Black Sox Scandal

By GEOFFREY MILLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LONDON (AP) — British soccer fans are anxiously awaiting the next chapter in the soccer bribery story—a scandal that already has sent 10 players to jail and threatens to compromise at least 35 more.

For the first time in British soccer history there has been a public exposure of a widespread plot to fix league games.

The scandal really has shaken British fans. About 12 million people in this country bet on the soccer pools each week. Now they have learned that the results of some games were rigged so that some players and the men who conspired with them could win bets from bookies.

The scope of the affair is wider than the notorious 1919 Black Sox scandal in American baseball—and just as shocking. Some compare it to the U.S. college basketball scandals of the 1950s.

The 10 players jailed were convicted of conspiracy at Nottingham Assize Court. They include two stars of the England national team—Peter Swan, Sheffield Wednesday center-half, and Tony Kay, Everton left half.

At one time both were rated key men in England's build-up plans for the World Cup, to be held here next year.

Swan and Kay are serving jail terms of four months each — the lightest sentences given in the case. The Football Association is expected to clap life suspensions on them. Denis Follows, FA secretary, has said that such punishments will be "almost automatic."

One man, James Gauld, formerly of Mansfield Town, was named as the central figure in the conspiracy and was jailed for four years.

It is not yet known whether any more prosecutions will follow. But 35 other professional soccer players have been named in a police dossier now being studied by the Director of Public Prosecutions.

The names have not yet been made public but they are known to the FA, whether or not the police file charges. These 35 are likely to be hauled before the controlling body and questioned closely about allegations that they helped fix the results of games.

Thus far one man man has come out of the case with flying colors—Michael Gabbert, reporter of the Sunday newspaper The People. He cracked the scandal open in a series of stories in his paper.

Gabbert was a key witness at the trial. His work landed him a coveted award in British journalism, the Hannen Swaffer prize for the best reporter of the year.

The People paid Gauld $20,272 to tell his story of the conspiracy. He confessed to making $10,170 in bets on games he helped to fix.

The judge at assize court called for the complete rundown on the money Gauld made out of the affair. Then he ordered Gauld to pay $16,800 towards the legal costs. Gauld formerly played for Mansfield Town and Swindon Town.

The other sentences given were:

Brian Phillips, Hartlepools United, 15 months and $146 costs.

Richard Beattie, St. Mirren, nine months.

Kenneth Thompson, Hartlepools United; Ron Howells, Scunthorpe United, and Samuel Chapman, formerly of Portsmouth and York City, six months each.

Swan, Kay and David (Bronco) Layne, Sheffield Wednesday, four months each.

One Gabbert got on the scent of the scandal, he collected his evidence carefully and made his case watertight. He hid a tape recorder under the seat of an automobile and obtained a record of a conversation between Gauld and one of his fellow-conspirators, Fountain.

The tape was difficult to decipher. A detective testified that he listened to it 20 times before making a transcript. But it was played to the jury and helped send the men to jail.

The charges involved a long list of league games all over England. The judge, sentencing Gauld, told him: "It is clear from the evidence that over a long period—three years— from one end of this kingdom to the other and from one side to the other, you have befouled professional football and corrupted your friends and acquaintances."

Some of the players, including Swan, Kay and Layne, still were on the payrolls of their clubs when the two-week trial ended. They had been under suspension pending the outcome of the case and have not played this season.

The FA has not decided when to consider their cases. But if they are suspended for life—the normal punishment for corrupt practices—they will be banned from playing overseas as well as in Britain.

The English association is affiliated with the International Soccer Federation (FIFA). FIFA would endorse any suspension passed by the English FA. Other member countries would be bound by rule to observe it.

A Canadian club in Hamilton, Ont., has said it would like to sign Swan and Kay when they come out of jail.

The English Professional Footballers' Association has said it will fight for the men's right to earn their living abroad, even if they are banned from soccer activities in this country. It would have a big job trying to fight FIFA rules.

The PFA, formed after World War II, has no precedent for fighting a case of this sort. But it has scored some notable success for soccer players. Three years ago it won a battle to get the maximum wage ceiling abolished.

Before that, English League clubs were not allowed to pay their players more than $56 a week. Now they can pay them as much as they please.

Top-ranking stars can earn up to $280 a week, including wages and bonuses for winning. Swan and Kay would be in that class. Each made $280 out of losing just one game.

DON CARTER DISPLAYS HIS FORM —Don Carter, known in kegling circles as "Mr. Bowling", shows the form which has made him one of the finest professional bowlers in the history of the game. Carter is scheduled to compete in the $28,500 PBA Pikes Peak Open, slated Feb. 22-26 at Classic Bowl in Colorado Springs. Carter and fellow St. Louisan Dick Weber, who is the current money winner in this year's Professional Bowlers Association (PBA) tour with over $18,000, will join 94 other national pro bowlers competing for a chunk of the $28,500 Pikes Peak Open prize money.

Weber, Carter to Head PBA Field in Pikes Peak Open

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

With the exception of the local entries in the Pro-Am Tourney, the forthcoming Pikes Peak Open Professional Bowlers Association (PBA) Tournament is moving along according to schedule.

According to the Pikes Peak Open promoter, Ralph Archer of Wheat Ridge, the Colorado Springs area bowling establishments are falling behind in meeting their allotted quotas for the Pro-Am Tourney, which is scheduled for Monday, Feb. 22. However, Archer did report that Classic Bowl and Ute Lanes have qualified the maporty of the local Pro-Am entries.

At present, some 73 PBA members have entered the Pikes Peak Open and Archer indicated that the 96-pro field would be competed within the next week.

The 96-traveling pros will join the eight state bowlers to form a field of 104 shooting for $28,500 in prize money. Among the eight state bowlers are five Colorado Springs keglers, including Jim Pee, Harry (Ike) Eichelberger, Ed Massey, Jack Elston and Rich Cunningham. The other three bowlers are Denverites George McDonald, who last year led the Denver Open into the finals before he finished second behind the winner Don Johnson; Eldon Buntrock and Al Hall.

Eichelberger will be making his third appearance in all three National PBA tournaments held in Colorado and two years ago finished 28th and placed 33rd in last year's Denver Open.

In addition to providing the local bowlers with the opportunity to see the nation's top pro keglers in the action, the Pikes Peak Open will benefit the March of Dimes. Archer has agreed to give 20 per cent of all tickets sales and 20 per cent of all local program advertising to the El Paso County Chapter of the March or Dimes for handling the ticket sales. The March of Dimes could realize between $6,000 and $7,000 from the five-day tourney tickets sales and local program advertising.

Advance tickets may be purchased at any of the Colorado Springs area bowling establishments as well as the El Paso County Chapter and the three local sporting goods stores. Archer indicated that if they sell 500 tickets for each of the nine sessions, the El Paso County Chapter could realize up to $7,000.

Because of the limited seating (Classic Bowl will install bleacher-type extra seats for the Pikes Peak Open), there will be no reserved seats but rather on a first-come basis.

Friday night's finals of the Pikes Peak Open will be taped and aired over the national ABC-TV network the next day (Saturday, Feb. 27 via Channel 13, 1 p.m.-3 p.m. local time.) This is one of the 13 PBA tournaments ABC-TV has shown over its network beginning last Jan. 9 and continuing through April 10. Chris Schenkel will host the taped television show.

The 104 keglers will be shooting for $28,500 in prize money with the winner getting $6,000. In the Pro-Am Tournament, which starts Friday, Feb. 22 at 5 p.m. and continues through midnight that same day, the expected field of 240 amateur and professional (two amateurs will team up with one professional bowler to form a trio team,) will be competing for a total of $6,000 in prize money. The top 80 amateurs will share the prize money.

In the pro tourney division, after a practice session Friday, Feb. 22 from noon to 4 p.m., the 104 keglers roll 24 games through Thursday afternoon. The top 16 qualifiers then go into head-to-head matches for another 16 games before the top four qualifiers move into Friday's finals.

The top finisher of the four qualifiers will be seeded into the final championship game while the second, third and fourth qualifiers will roll a round robin with each man meeting the other two. The winner of two of the three-game round robin will meet the top seeded player for the championship, which is scheduled Friday night.

In the event the three runners-up win one game apiece in the round robin, highest pinfall will decide the finalist who will meet the top seeded bowler in the championship finals. If there is a tie in either round robin or the championship games the bowlers involved will roll an additional two frames equal to the ninth and tenth frames of a regular contest.

Friars Remain Undefeated

PROVIDENCE, R.— (A.P) — The Providence Friars, the nation's only undefeated major college basketball team, won their 18th game of the season Saturday by rallying in the second half for an 83-75 victory over Duquesne.

The Friars, fourth ranked in the nation, were 12 points behind in the first half.

They scored eight straight points in the closing minutes of the half, which ended with Duquesne leading 38-36. The rally was paced by Dexter Westbrook and Mike Riordan.

Providence jumped into a six-point lead early is the second half, but Duquesne tied the score at 57-57 before the Friars went ahead to stay on baskets by Jim Benedict and Riordan.

The Providence starting five played the entire game and Duquesne used only six mn.

The Friars had trouble hitting from the floor in the first half, scoring on only 36 per cent of their shots, while Duquesne had a 50 per cent shooting average.

Duquesne's record is now 10-9 for the season.

Schollander Almost Loses 100 Freestyle

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Olympic swimming star Don Schollander came within a hand's length of defeat Saturday as he set a Yale freshman record in the 100-yard freestyle.

Yancey Holds Stroke Lead At Phoenix

By BOB EGER
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Bert Yancey of Philadelphia tapped in a short birdie putt on the final green Saturday and grabbed the undisputed lead after 54 holes of the $67,500 Phoenix Open golf tournament.

Yancey, a 26-year-old who never has won a professional golf tournament, shot a three-under-par 69 for a three-round total of 206, ten strokes under par

Joining Nicklaus at 209 were Frank Beard, Claude King and Don January.

Yancey took the tourney lead in the first round with a 67. He shot a 70 in the second round and shared the 36-hole lead with Beard and Geiberger.

Yancey left his approach shot just inches from the cup on the 18th green Saturday and had little difficulty dropping it for a birdie four and the lead.

The same hole proved disastrous a few momments earlier for Nicklaus. Bic Jack, who led briefly during the round, sliced his drive out of bounds and took a two-stroke penalty. Nicklaus wound up getting a bogey six on the hole when he one-putted after blasting out of a trap.

SPORTS FANS!
I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW
By Bob Foss

In the history of baseball only four men have hit 500 or more home runs in their careers ... How many of these four can you name? ...The four all-time homer champs are Babe Ruth, 714 ... Jimmy Foxx, 534...Ted Williams, 521...and Mel Ott, 511.

• • •

How about this... Pitcher Vernon Law of Pittsburgh has five sons, and every one of their names starts with the letter "V", just like their Dad's ... There's Veldon, Veryl, Vance, Vaughan and Verlin ... And, Vernon's wife's name is VaNita ... Even their dog's name starts with "V". His name is Victory!

• • •

Who was the highest paid player in baseball history? ...Answer is Ted Williams who received a reported $125,000 for the 1950 season...And, oddly eonugh, he became injured in mid-season that year, and was able to play only 89 games all season...So, as it turned out, he received over $1400 per game!

Grain Supplies Called Up for Japan Shipment

WASHINGTON (AP) — A shortage of grain available for shipment to Japan prompted the Agriculture Department Friday to call up grain stored on farms in four states one month ahead of the date price support loans fall due.

The grain, about five million bushels of wheat from 1963 and prior crop years ,is stored in several counties in Colorado, Wyoming, Kansas and Nebraska.

Expiration date on the loans has been moved up to March 1 rather than the normal date of March 31. A department official said storage payments will be prorated to make up for the difference.

The depletion of all stocks of the Commodity Credit Corp. of the class and quality needed and in a freight rate position favorable for West Coast export was cited as the reason for calling the wheat out of government-backed storage.

The move was described as part of the "continuing effort to build up dollar export sales."

SALVAGE

NAHA, Okinawa (AP) — A Naha firm today began salvaging the freighter Union Pacific which ran aground last December off Naha port.

Supreme Court Vote Rule is Battled

In the House, 68 proposed constitutional amendments have been introduced, but their authors now are uniting in an effort to come up with a single plan.

In the Senate, hearings on 40 proposed amendments are to begin early next month.

Twenty-four states now are under court order to redistrict. A dozen already have.

Do you remember the interview with a "Young Moralist" we printed two weeks ago? Well, that column provoked one of the most articulate letters we've received from any reader. We don't agree with several of the writer's points, but we think he ought to have a chance to share his views. So read his case for more "Reasonable Morals" and our reply.

Dear Ele and Walt: Before I take exception to your recent column on the "Young Moralist," permit me to introduce myself. I am a 17-year-old college-bound senior in a private high school. I'm active in school and community affairs. I try to be frank and honest.

As I see it, the requisite for an enjoyable and fruitful adolescence is exercise of reason. Because my parents realize I'll do what I want, no matter what they may say, they place few—if any—restrictions on my life. They try to teach me right from wrong, but realize that what I become will be due to my efforts, not theirs. They give me pros and cons as guidelines for decisions—but I make up my own mind.

Neither of my parents smoke. It was my peers who introduced me to the habit. I find a cigarette relazes me and takes out the tensiion pent up inside. I will frankly admit that I started smoking at the urging of my contemporaries, but if I did not enjoy it, I would quickly stop it.

I find getting drunk stupid. Though one may enjoy being inebriated at the time, he frequently does foolish things he regrets later. But this does not preclude social drinking. I cannot see any reason for not having a few beers or a cocktail at a party. But certainly one can do without any drinking, and have just as much fun.

Because I aspire to become a lawyer, a college education is necessary. To get into college, a high school student must study. So I study. But I do not believe in being a bookworm who keeps his eyes glued to his studies day and night. Instead, I set up a study schedule and stick to it. Thus I manage to maintain a credible scholastic average while having plenty of time for a social life.

The idea that sex is reserved for marriage is rapidly disappearing. Though no church officially sanctions premarital sex, many ministers privately disagree with church laws in this area. If there is enough affection between two people I see nothing wrong with sex, whether it occurs in or outside of marriage. If sex occurs outside of marriage, however, one must be careful.

This is a somewhat incomplete philosophy of life. I feel that by using reason and honestly following the above, I am able to enjoy my adolescence to the fullest while being able to attain my goals in life. —For "Reasonable Morals"

Dear Reasonable: We really respect a guy who will stick his neck out in print for what he believes, and so we've no intention of chopping you in this reply. But we can't let your letter march in thousands of homes without some postscripts of our own. OK?

First of all, we take issue with your statement, "My parents realize I'll do what I want, no matter what they say. . . "Right now you're accepting food, clothing, shelter and education from your parents. It seems to us that you owe them respect and obedience. You may not agree with all their values, but until you're of age and self-supporting, you're obligated to live by these rules. Any other course of behavior seems unjust and unrealistic. Just try and find an employer who'll give you money and not expect something in return.

We're with you 100 per cent on a "time for study and a time for play." We bet you accomplish much more because of your relaxation periods than you would if you became a "homework martyr."

Since your folks don't smoke, it doesn't seem likely that they'll be happy with your smoking. Can you justify spending their money on a habit they oppose?

If drinking is your family custom, we'd agree it is a matter of personal preference, as long as you abide by the laws of your state, and as long as you don't climb behind a steering wheel immediately after indulging. Even one beer may slow down your reflexes and impair your judgment and coordination enough to possibly mean death. You don't have the right to endanger others for your own personal pleasure according to any system of morals we know.

You state "the idea that sex is reserved for marriage is rapidly disappearing." We'd dispute the word "disappearing," and say instead, "the idea is being questioned." Folks today are not content to accept memorized moral codes; they want to know why and there'd better be a pretty strong reason to back up the why.

Instead of arguing with you, let us pop three questions at you. (1) When you get married, would you care if your wife had had premarital sex with other men? (2) Would you encourage your sister to engage in sex outside of marriage with a man she loved? (3) Would you have liked your mom and dad to have operated by your philosophy? And if they had—think of what your status might have been today? Think about it, please.

Well, those are our thoughts on your views. See if they make sense. As we pointed out, you have our sincere respect for questioning instead of just accepting. Just make sure, however, that in your eagerness to find something new, you don't reject all that's old. The way we see it, not everything that's old is necessarily out of date. Some qualities never lose their value —qualities like courage, justice, honesty and love.— Ele and Walt.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH

A NEW FACE AT NORAD — Canada's first national flag, which will fly officially for the first time Monday, is being inspected at the headquarters of the North American Air Defense Command in Colorado Springs by Air Marshal C. R. Dunlap of the Royal Canadian Air Force and the deputy commander in chief of NORAD, along with Major General M. M. Magee, United States Army and the NORAD Chief of Staff. The new flag will be raised at the NORAD compound during ceremonies scheduled for 11 a.m. Monday, at which time the old Red Ensign will be retired. The new flag, which is red and white, represents the first national flag of Canada. The red Ensign, the familiar red flag bearing the Union Jack in the upper left corner and the Canadian shield in the lower right, was approved for use as a naval ensign in 1890, but was never adopted as the national flag, though it did fly over Canadian government buildings and schools since the 1920s. When run to the top of its staff alongside the Stars and Stripes at NORAD headquarters, the new Maple Leaf flag will represent the large contribution of men and material which is Canada's share of the joint defense command charged with defending the North American continent against air and space attack.

Spinal Checks Advised After Ski Accidents

By The Colorado Chiropractic Society

Ski accidents bring pain and inconvenience to sportsmen and women each year, but thousands of them figure the risk is worth it.

But the important thing — and this is too often missed — is to get proper treatment for those injuries which ski tumbles cause.

Easiest to deal with are those wrenched joints and fractures of the arms and legs, because there can be no doubt as to the injury itself and the subsequent cure — when the arm feels good it is good.

Back injuries, however, frequently escape notice. Soreness which lasts only for a day or two is forgotten.

One girl awoke one morning to find a very sore place on her back over one of the spinal vertebrae. Thinking it was a small boil, she tried to ignore it, and later applied a hot pack. The following day, there was no change, and she went to her chiropractor for an examination. The vertebra was out of place, and severe irritation of the supporting muscle and cartilage discs at either end of the vertebra resulted. Spinal adjustment solved the problem.

But there is an even greater danger: suppose the misplaced spinal vertebra is not discovered?

The Doctor of Chiropractic takes great care to explain how an unattended injury of the spine may easily become a permanent one. Each vertebra in the back has two muscles holding it in place by gently pulling from either side. When the vertebra gets knocked out of place through an accident or unnatural twisting of the back, one of these muscles is pulled quite tight, causing pain or stiffness. If the vertebra is put back in place, the problem dissolves. But if the condition is alowed to remain, the tightly pulled muscle will eventually adjust itself and be premanently stretched — and that particular vertebra will actually be held out of place by maladjusted muscles.

Such a condition puts the patient in a risky position, because his nervous system is now openly threatened. Virtually every educated adult in the U.S. is aware that the back bone houses the millions of nerves which connect the entire body with the brain, and there is no question that severed or damaged nerves mean partial or complete paralysis of arms, legs or some other part of the body — every one of the vital organs or glands.

This is why it is vital — absolutely necessary — that even a slight misalignment of the spinal column be corrected, because illness or death can follow if it isn't.

Many of the nation's chiropractors are skiers and prescribe the sport for good exercise and health — but they warn against ignoring stiffness of the shoulders or back. A check with the right doctor will show whether such a problem exists.

Historical Society to Hear Carol Truax

Carol Truax will speak to the Historical Society of the Pikes Peak Region at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the County Office Building auditorium.

Miss Truax will talk on "Entertainment development of the Springs." Probably no one in the area is better versed on all aspects of the cultural and entertainment developmnt of the region.

The year after Carol Truax came from New York to Colorado Springs for her health, she and a business partner opened Their Book Shop on Pikes Peak Avenue, owning the store for twenty years. Miss Truax later started and operated the first bookstore at Colorado College.

For a period during the 1940's, she acted as Executive Secretary and then Executive Director of the Fine Arts Departments at the college, which included music, art, drama, and dance. She also directed drama there during the war.

After running the first summer school for Paepke at Aspen in 1949, Miss Truax went to the State University of New York where she was consultant in fine arts. In New York she is a director of the boards for the High School of the Performing Arts and for the American Composers' Alliance.

In Colorado Springs she is the program director for the Broadmoor, has presented the Broadmoor International Theater for the past four years, and presently is in charge of promotion for the World Figure Skating Championships.

In addition to this wide experience in entertainment, Miss Truax has also found time to author several books and articles on cooking, her work appearing as features in top national magazines.

PRICE LAGS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's farmers received a 1 per cent hike in the price for crops and livestock during the month ended Jan. 15. But this left farm prices 3 per cent below those of a year earlier.

The Agriculture Department reported Friday that the cost of production and living supplies purchased by farmers rose 1¼ per cent during the month. Farm costs reached a record high by increasing 1¼ per cent above those of a year ago.

Gen. D. P. Gibbs Set to Address Dinner Meeting

the U. S. Military Academy in 1983, and since has served with various Signal Corps units.

During World War II, he was Signal Officer of the 5th Infantry Division in Iceland and the European Theater of Operations. Upon his return to the states, General Gibbs served in various assignments, attended the Air War College at Maxwell AFB, Alabama, and the National War College in Washington, D. C. Following this, he spent two years as Chief, Communications Branch, J-3 Div., Far East Command in Japan.

The General's citations include the Legion of Merit, the French Croix de Guerre with Palm, the Bronze Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters and the Army Commendation Ribbon.

In 1963 General Gibbs was appointed Chief Signal Officer U.S.A. and effective 1 March 1964, this position was redesignated to that of Department of the Army Staff, Chief of Communications-Electronics.

Tarryall Sheep Seen in Today's Travelogue Film

Battering rams (bighorn sheep) will be an added attraction to the "Beautiful, Bountiful British Columbia" travelogue.

This film in the Horizons Unlimited series will be presented by the Theodore Fisher Management at 2:30 and 4:30 p.m. Sunday and 8 p.m. Monday in the Fine Arts Center.

The added feature film on fighting bighorns, in herds up to 600, was photographed by Cleve and Ruth Grant in 1945-46 when the sheep were more plentiful in the Tarryall River Valley. Film rights were later sold to Walt Disney and used in some of his nature films.

The husband and wife team will narrate the films. November was the fighting (mating) season and some excited rams would rear up 40 feet before smashing into a rival, Grant said. "I never enjoyed any job more than this," he recalled.

The Grants recently returned from East Africa where they spent nine months filming a series on the plentiful elephant herds in Southern Rhodesia and Mozambique.

In Colorado, the British Columbia film will be shown exclusively in this city. The Canadian province is like Colorado: It is the most mountainous province in Canada — Colorado is the most mountainous state in the United States (with the possible exception of Alaska.)

The film will include the "Musical Ride of the Northwest Mounted Police." This troop will be featured this summer in the Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo.

The film will show the Douglas fir plywood industry, a barometer of the province's economy; Victoria and the Butchart Gardens; Vancouver and Queen's Garden; sons of freedom, the Doukhobors sect; and plenty of fishing.

The Doukhobors, who are Russian Christians now living in Canada, protest government harassment by burning their homes and staging parades in the nude. They don't eat meat or pay taxes.

Fishing includes flicking flies for steelhead trout in the clear stream canyons of Vancouver Island with Roderick Haigh-Brown, author of "Return to the River," "The Western Angler" and "A River Never Sleeps."

Another aspect of the film, of possible interest to Coloradans, is the fruit growing industry, comparable to the Grand Junction area.

State Steam Electric Plant to Be Built

DENVER (AP) — The Public Service Co. of Colorado announced plans Saturday to build what it said will be the largest steam electric generating plant in the Rocky Mountain region.

Robert T. Person, the president, said the $40 million plant will have a capacity of 350,000 kilowatts, enough for the requirements of a city of 400,000.

It would consume about 150 tons of coal per hour at full production,, said Person. Plans call for use of coal for fuel although it will be designed to use natural gas as well.

The new unit will be built at a site in North Denver where three others are already in operation. Person said estimates indicate that the output of the addition will be needed late in 1968.

Seniors Turn Teachers To Help Younger Students

Eight Cheyenne Mountain High School seniors are helping to rekindle an interest in school subject among eight elementary school pupils by means of a junior tutor program.

Last semester the seniors took their idea for the project to Dr. Arthur R. Olson, District 11 deputy superintendent of schools, who liked the idea and helped them get it underway with the start of the new semester.

One evening a week Donna Sheldon, Steve Bain, George Singer, Linda Grueskin, Leslie Davis, Greg Flaks, Jeff Stachel, and J H.. Bain meet with the grade school pupils to help them with their school work.

Warren H. McDowell, a teacher at Helen Hunt Elementary School, is the adult supervisor. He assists the tutors plan the work to be covered and shows them the best ways of helping the pupils.

The tutors work with five boys and three girls in the fifth and sixth grades. The eight were chosen from among volunteers in remedial reading classes because they have the ability to do better school work than they have.

During the weekly meetings, McDowell teaches skills in reading, arithmetic, and language arts then the tutors take over and assist the pupils do the assigned work. The help is completely individual. Each tutor works with one pupil.

Basic instructional materials for the sessions come from Helen Hunt School and from McDowell's own collection. However, the tutors also bring in supplementary reading materials with a special appeal to the pupils' interests.

The main goal of the junior tutor program is to spark an interest in school work. It is the lack of interest, McDowell points out, that is mainly responsible for these childrens' falling behind in their school work.

McDowell requires the tutors to fill out weekly progress reports on the pupils. So far these have indicated high interest among pupils and a desire to do work well. At the end of the semester, the reports will be one basis for determining the value of the program and whether it might be expanded.

Stamp Club Will Choose Worst Stamp

A vote on stamp design will highlight Tuesday's meeting of the Colorado Springs Stamp Club.

The group will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the YMCA.

A stamp newspaper, "Linn's Weekly Stamp News," started a survey 17 years ago to determine collectors' favorite U.S. stamps. Members of the CSSC will vote on the best design, worst design and least necessary of the 18 stamps issued last year. The club meets the first and third Tuesday of each month.

Sheriff Reports Theft Of Skis From Car

Two pairs of skis worth a total of $160 were stolen from a ski rack on a car belonging to Lt. Bill Janecek of Denver, the sheriff's office said Saturday.

Broadmoor Police Officer J. Weide said the vehicle was parked in the Golden Bee Lot at the time of the incident.

Malaysia Captures Three Guerrillas

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysia's Defense Ministry announced Saturday night the capture of three more Indonesian guerrillas and said this virtually eliminates a small invasion party that landed on the southwestern mainland coast Friday.

A spokesman said only one of the 14 raiders who made it ashore is still unaccounted for. Twelve have been taken prisoner; one was killed.

I Remember

By CHARLES S. DUDLEY

C. S. DUDLEY

Roy Stout, 720 Cheyenne Blvd., seeing the picture in the Friday Gazette Telegraph of Pikes Peak Avenue at the time of the worst snowstorm in the history of Colorado Springs, in 1913, asked me if I remembered the second deepest snow of the city, in 1923.

I certainly do remember it, although I was in California in 1913. I was living in Manitou in 1923 and could not get home because of the snow. I hae a vivid recollection of John O. Henry, superintendent of the street railway system, standing waist deep in snow at Colorado Avenue and Tejon St., directing snowplow work as the tracks were being cleared.

Stout told me that at that time he was on the big Cheyenne Valley Ranch, now a part of Ft. Carson when four feet of snow caused catle losses, and when a man partly frozen was rescued, for which exploit the rescuers were presented with a watch by either the Rotary or the Kiwanis Club of Colorado Springs, he did not remember which.

But I got a zippy story of that storm as soon as the telephone conversation with Stout was over from my wife, something she had never told me before. She was a rancher at the time between Divide and Florissant, and she related how she had put snowshoes to get to the barn and get hay to the cow and calf. The snow, she said, was up to the eaves of the barn.

She also has told me how the late Charles Fry, also a rancher in that area, carried the mail and groceries from Divide to Florissant with a team and wagon. For five days he was the only one who got through. Later she married Mr. Fry and together they had many experiences in deep snow.

Snow was much more frequent, and deeper, in those days than now in Colorado Springs and Manitou. I had a long stretch of wooden sidewalk to shovel snow from in winter storms, and I remember there would be several times during a winter when I would have to open a path through foot-deep snow.

I have been on the Gazette, the Telegraph and the Gazette Telegraph since 1918, but I also worked on the Gazette one winter in 1910. Pikes Peak Avenue was not paved then and often during the evening we in the editorial rooms of the paper would hear sleighbells and, going to the window, see sleighs drawn by fine horses. There were many stylish equipages in the city at that time. In summer the carriages would go tooling by and horseback riders would be passing in fine style and form.

Injuries Slight In Two - Car Mishap Saturday

A two-vehicle accident Saturday resulted in minor injuries for two persons, the State Patrol reported.

Antonia L. Perschke, 23, 109 W. Cheyenne Blvd., complained of head pains, while Wendy L. Pershke, 4, suffered cuts on her face. Both persons were taken home following the accident.

The mishap occurred at 10:40 a.m. Saturday on Cheyenne Boulevard near Ivy Place. The Perschke jeep, westbound on Cheyenne Boulevard, was turning into a private drive when a truck driven by Richard L. Reynolds, 22, 818 S. Nevada Ave., collided with it.

Reynolds was also westbound on Cheyenne Boulevard and was attempting to pass an unidentified vehicle when he ran into the Perschke jep.

The Perschke vehicle had $500 damage, while Reynolds' truck had an estimated $125 damage, according to the patrol.

Grand Junction City Manager Will Speak

"Colorado's Changing Cities" will be the subject of a talk by Joseph M. Lacy, city manager of Grand Junction, at a luncheon Thursday sponsored by the Colorado Springs Charter Association.

The luncheon will begin at noon in the Alamo Hotel.

Lacy, city manager of Grand Junction since 1960, is one of the region's foremost municipal administrators. He graduated from the University of Denver with a master's degree in public administration and is chairman of the finance committee of the Governor's Local Affairs commission and a member of Colorado Municipal League executive board.

Lacy will be introduced by Colorado Springs City Manager John M. Biery.

Sheriff's Office Gets Compliment

Complaints and abuse are things the members of the sheriff's office must learn to live with, therefore it is all the more gratifying when a compliment comes along.

Recently such a letter was received from C. E. Buscher, business manager of St. Francis Hospital who wrote, "I wish to express to the sheriff's office the appreciation of the employees of St. Francis Hospital whose employment entails association with personnel of the sheriff's office."

Buscher continues saying that emergency calls to the sheriff's office, especially during the hours between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. are "very promptly answered and at all times belligerent and insulting persons are handled in a very efficient and understanding way." The letter says this means a great deal to the writer and the sisters as "the security offered our employees is very much appreciated."

"I am aware," he concludes, "that complaints are very readily submitted to your department, but that it is often a forgotten courtesy to express appreciation. This I wish to do for myself and the sisters of St. Francis Hospital."

Civic Groups Plan 1965 Springs Pageant

The 1965 Miss Colorado Springs Pageant, a preliminary to the Miss America contest, will be produced by a committee representing the Colorado Springs and Knob Hill Optimist Clubs and the Pageant Parade of the Rockies committee.

This year the committee plans a bigger and better pageant and would like it to be a community project.

The committee plans an organizational meeting in the near future to chose an executive director and committee chairmen.

Unknown Assailant 'Slugs' Man Here

Lee Johnson, 737 E. Colorado Ave. was struck over the eye early Saturday morning by an unknown man and received several stitches at St. Francis Hospital, police reported.

According to the report Johnson was walking through an alley behind the Swiss Chalet when the man called out to him "Hi friend, come here." Johnson approached him and was then slugged over the eye with what might have been a bottle. The man ran off down the alley.

REGINA, Sask. (AP) — Whooping cranes had a whooping population explosion last year. The annual report of Ernie Paynter, director of the Sasketchewan Wildlife Branch, says 11 new whoopers were hatched in 1964, bringing the world total to 50.

Three U. S. Fishermen To Return Home

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — The Swiss Embassy said today three American shrimp fishermen rescued by a Cuban helicopter after their boat went aground are waiting for arrangements for them to return home via Mexico.

The shrimp boat ran aground on the Cuban north coast. After their rescue, the men were taken to a hotel west of Havana.

All three are said to be in good health.

J. C. Penney Shows $2 Billion Volume

J. C. Penney reported Monday annual volume of $2 billion for the first time in its 63-year history.

Figures issued by Chrmn. William M. Batten and President Ray H. Jordan showed that the department store chain's sales for the fiscal year ended Jan. 31 amounted to $2,079,901,145. This was an increase of 13.4 per cent, or $245,583,618, over 1963 volume of $1,834,317,527. It was the 10th straight year of record volume.

The Penney officers noted that the sales gain for the year exceeded total Company sales of $225,936,101 for all of 1935 and set a record for a single year's growth.

By becoming a $2 billion firm, the Company joined an exclusive group of four other retailers doing more than $2 billion in sales annually.

Penney's reached the $1 billion level in 1951. Founder James Cash Penney opened the Company's first store, a modest 25 by 40 foot unit in Kemmerer, Wyo., in 1902. First-year sales approximated $29,000.

For January, final month of the 1964 fiscal year, the Company had peak volume for the month of $142,514,052, an increase of 10.5 per cent or $13,508,390 over the 1964 month's sales of $129,005,662. It was the 22nd straight month of record sales.

Major factors contributing to Penney's strong January performance were the success of traditional white goods and clearance events as well as strong interest in new season lines such as spring coats and sportswear.

The record January was achieved despite the fact there was one less shopping day for the 1965 month compared with a year ago. However, there were five Saturdays this January against four last year.

Penny's ended the fiscal year with 1,675 department stores, 404 of them with catalog sales desks. During January, three existing stores were relocated into new locations. There were 1,678 stores on Jan. 31, 1964.

Vehicle Output Totals 240,521 Units for Week

U. S. motor vehicle production last week totaled 240,521 units, the Automobile Manufacturers Association reported today.

The week's output included 204,810 passenger cars and 35,711 trucks and buses. During the previous week 197,957 cars and 37,818 commercial vehicles were produced, the AMA said.

Cumulative output in 1965 through Feb. 6 totaled 1,214,828 units, including 1,032,955 cars and 181,873 commercial vehicles. In the same period last year, 1,088,015 vehicles were produced — 915,711 passenger cars and 172,304 trucks and buses.

NEW BONNET FOR SPRING—Comet has a new hood—bonnet to Englishmen—for Spring. It's a sporty fiberglass model which will be available on a limited basis on the Cyclone model late this month. The racy simulated twin air scoops are styled after the functional intake manifold ports on the champion Comet drag car. Although fiberglass has been used extensively on drag and sports cars, Comet will be the first volume nameplate to offer the high-strength, low-weight material on a production-installed component. The hood is formed of two heavy-duty fiberglass panels. Sandwiched between them is an aluminum screen which suppresses radio interference emissions from the engine. A Comet Cyclone equipped with the new hood will be shown for the first time at the Chicago Auto Show, Feb. 20-28.

Carson Riflemen Win Top Award In Recent Meet

Ft. Carson's Marksmanship Training Unit riflemen won First Master Award in team competition and 14 individual awards when they competed in the Southern Division Gallery Rifle Championship Feb. 7.

Individual competitions included 37 competitors. Military and civilian teams fired for honors in the team match, held in the Colorado Springs National Guard Armory.

SSgt. J. W. Chalker won many first in his class along with first sharpshooter in the grand aggregate. First Lt. Roger E. Amundson, officer-in-charge of the Marksmanship Training Unit (MTU), won second place sharpshooter in the grand aggregate. SFC Francis McCargar and Sgt. Brian Enperson also won individual awards.

Members of the Carson Gold Team, which won the first master award are SFC Francis O. McCargar, SSgt J. W. Chalker, Sgt Brian Epperson and PFC David A. Deyell.

Four of those competing took team honors in January at the sixth annual Frontier Rifle Championships in Colorado Springs. They are McCargar, SSgt Linwood Waterfield, Epperson and Deyell.

The MTU is conducting marksmanship classes for the Carson Leadership School this week, the M14E2 automatic rifle school and firing in a gallery rifle and pistol league which will run into March.

They are also supervising practice for the service rifle and pistol championships to be Mar. 8, 9 and 10 at Carson.

Supply, Demand Determines Stock Prices

By MORTON YARMON
Distributed by
NEA Special Services

What is a stock worth? One realistic answer is: what it will cost you to buy a share.

What determines price is the willingness on the part of those who own shares to sell, and the willingness on the part of those who want shares to buy. Certainly the forces of supply and demand have much to do with it.

Another factor is confidence. If the stock-buying public suddenly gets the idea that a particular stock is about to rise in value, orders to buy flood brokerage offices. But where fear develops that a stock is soon to decline in value, immediately there is a rush to sell.

Confidence, which is an intangible, in part is built on certain tangible features in a stock, among them:

Earnings: They are looked at in two ways — earnings per share, and the price earnings ratio.

Earnings per share are figured by dividing the total earnings of the company by the number of shares outstanding. If a company has 500,000 shares outstanding, and it earned $2,500,000 in a certain period, it earned $5 per share for that time.

The price earnings ratio is the comparison between the price of the stock and the earnings per share. If a company earns $8.45 per share and its stock is selling at 101, it is said to be selling at 12 times earnings — 101 being about 12 times 8.45.

Yield: This is the percentage formed when the dividend paid on a stock is compared with the price of the stock. A stock selling at $40 with an annual dividend of $2 has a yield of 5 per cent. The yield on one stock can be compared with the yield on stocks of other companies in the same industry, to determine relative worth.

Such figures make up only one aspect of your analysis of an investment. Also pertinent are the industry, the company, the management, the products, the competition, the market for the company's securities, the tax situation as it applies to the company and to its dividends, and other factors. All have a bearing on a stock you may be considering.

Gem-Ko Kitchens Expand To Double Original Size

Gem-Ko Kitchens has expanded to double its original size and is now ready for full scale business at its new location, 1823 W. Vermijo St.

Formerly located at 420 S. 8th St., Gem-Ko offers a complete line of restaurant, motel and janitorial equipment and supplies.

Three partners, Roy G. Bilbrey, Johnnie Dyster and Gene Seitz, first opened Gem-Ko in March, 1964. It was incorporated last September, with Bilbrey serving as president, Seitz as vice-president and Dyster as secretary-treasurer.

Before the move to its present location, Gem-Ko had approximately 2,700 square feet of display and storage area in the Eighth Street building. Now the firm has some 6,600 square feet of floor space at the Vermijo Street location, which was formerly used by a local bakery.

Space is an asset to Gem-Ko for storage of heavy commercial restaurant equipment, including ovens, ranges, tables and booths, plus a myriad of other equipment and smaller supplies. Now, the firm will have most equipment in storage for immediate delivery to the customer.

Gem-Ko's line of restaurant equipment includes everything needed to completely equip any size restaurant, from flat ware and ovens to counter stools and booths. Motel, hotel and janitorial supplies include mops, brooms, buckets, wax and floor finishes, along with all other maintenance and cleaning supplies.

Gem-Ko's sales area has been extended to Pueblo and Cripple Creek and will soon take in most of the state, with the exception of the Denver area.

Open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays and from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturdays, Gem-Ko presently employs two men, besides the three co-managers. Doug Moulton and Joe Snedgrass handle most of the firm's deliveries along with keeping track of the warehouse inventory. The staff at Gem-Ko increases during the busier summer months.

The three owners all have vast backgrounds in the restaurant equipment business, with combined experience of about 30 years.

Bilbrey, a native of Colorado Springs, lives at 1515 W. Boulder St. Seitz and Dyster live at 320 E. San Miguel and 523 Asbury Pl., respectively. Dyster came here from Kansas City, Mo. in 1946.

Gem-Ko has a slogan that adequately describes the business—"If it's for maintenance and sanitation, we have it."

Local HBA Men To Attend St. Louis Meet

Two of the metropolitan area's leading home builders, O. F. Bud Shepard, president of Shepard-Styled Homes and Jim D. Cox, President of Cox Construction Company, will attend a national conference of multi-family housing next week in St. Louis, Mo.

The conference, sponsored by the National Association of Home Builders, will attract builders from 34 states and from Puerto Rico and Canada.

Both Shepard and Cox have been active in residential construction in Colorado Springs for many years and have also been closely affiliated with the National Association of Home Builders as well as the local association,

Cox is immediate past president of the Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Colorado Springs and has served as a national Director to NAHB. Shepard is currently Chairman of the association's State Coordinating Committee and is the elected National Representative from Colorado to the NAHB.

The Multifamily Conference will thoroughly cover such subjects as market research, finance, design, marketing and property management and will last from Monday through Thursday.

Mortgage Loans By Metropolitan Top $333 Million

Mortgage Loans disbursed by Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in the state of Colorado for the year 1964 amounted to $33,605,048, according to an announcement by Roger W. Shenkel, supervisor of the Company's City Mortgage Field Office here.

Metropolitan Life's total mortgage investment in the state as of Dec. 31, 1964 reached $179,896,568. Correspondents representing Metropolitan throughout the state are Van Schaack and company and mortgage investments company.

FEDERAL TAX TIPS

BY ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q — Is it true that the child care deduction has been increased? If so, how much can I deduct this year?

A — The maximum deduction remains $600 for one child or dependent but goes up to $900 for two or more children. Other changes which will benefit taxpayers qualifying for this deduction are the inclusion of children under 13 years of age, rather than 12, and the raising of the limit on income beyond which the deduction must be reduced dollar for dollar.

Previously, a maried couple could not claim this deduction if they earned over $5,100. Every dollar earned over $4,500 served only to reduce their deduction. Under the new law, the maximum income limit is $6,000 and for every dollar over that the deduction is reduced dollar for dollar.

Q — Do I have to supply any records to take the new minimum standard deduction?

A — No, you don't. The new minimum standard deduction is to be claimed in lieu of the 10% standard deduction if it results in a larger deduction by those taxpayers who don't itemize. However, where married couples file separate returns they both must itemize or they must use the same type standard deduction.

Q — I didn't get a 1040 instruction booklet in the mail this year. Where can I get one?

A — Many banks, post offices and other public places carry stocks of federal tax forms and the intsruction booklet. You can also obtain a copy at any local Internal Revenue Service office.

Q — Do I have to pay tax on the moving expense re-imbursement I received from my new employer?

A — This re-imbursement to new employees is taxable income. However, under the 1964 tax law, the costs of moving yourself, your family and your household goods and effects may be claimed as deductions on your return provided certain conditions are met. You may claim this deduction and still claim the 10% standard deduction or the minimum standard deduction.

Q — I understand there is a $100 floor on casualty and theft loss deductions. Last year, we experienced several minor losses. Taken together they exceeded $100. Can we deduct the balance over that amount?

A — No. Casualty and theft losses or property used for personal purposes must exceed $100 for each casualty or theft, and only the excess over $100 per loss may be deducted on federal tax returns. The exception to this is when a husband and wife both experience losses in the same casualty or theft. In that case there is just one $100 limit if they file a joint return. If they both lost property in the same casualty or theft all losses over $100 are deductible if properly substantiated.

Remember a theft loss should ordinarily be reported to the police, also, other substantiation should be available to establish the value of the articles involved.

Q — I should have a sizable refund this year. Can I split it up and take part in cash and part in savings bonds?

A — No. You must elect to take your refund in cash or bonds. However, part of the overpayment may be applied to next year's tax. And then the rest taken either in cash or bonds.

Q — I closed an especially big deal last year that boosted my year's commissions nearly $2,500 over the average of my part 4 year's income. Can I use the new income averaging provision to reduce the taxes on this amount?

A — No, you can't. Income averaging may come into operation when your 1964 income exceeds one and one-third times the average of your prior 4 years income. However, this excess must be more than $3,000.

Q — I had to sell off about half of my breeding livestock because of the drought in our area. Do I have to pay taxes on my profits? In the spring I plan to use the proceeds from the sale to build up my herds again.

A — The law has special provisions to cover drought-forced sales of certain livestock.

Details on this and other forms of tax relief for farmers stricken by drought are described in our free booklet, "Farmer's Tax Guide." A copy may be obtained free from our office or your county agent.

Q — I just received a notice from you asking that I list my Social Security number on all future tax returns. I don't have a number. Do I have to have one and if so, where can I get one?

A — The law now requires that tax returns be identified by number as well as the name of the taxpayer. The Social Security numbering system is being used to meet this requirement.

If you don't have a number, one can be obtained by simply filling out an application. Applications (Form SS-5) may be obtained either at local Internal Revenue offices or those of the Social Security Administration. Form SS-5 is also available at most local post offices.

Q — I moved shortly after I filed my return or last year. How can I make sure my refund check gets to me without delay?

A — Notify your local post office and the District Director with whom you file your return of your new address.

$900 PER MONTH
Our men averaged $950.00 last month in commissions. However, it took a lot of hard work to earn this kind of money. If you are the type of salesman who has the need of at least $900.00 per month and will work hard — Then we might have an opening for you. On the other hand, don't waste your time or mine, if you don't have the above needs and qualifications. I'm only interested in men who desire to make BIG money, each and every month. You owe it to yourself and your family to make at least one phone call to discuss your future dollars. Call Mr. Lehmann at 633-4649 between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

NOT JUST A JOB BUT A CAREER!

Property Taxes Provide Most of County's Revenue

How large are property taxes in El Paso County compared with what they are in other places in the United States? How much of the local revenue is obtained from property taxes?

The subject of local taxes and operating costs have become matters of major importance in cities and counties all over the country. Many communities are in financial plights and are desperately seeking new ways of raising cash.

In some localities, certain types of taxes that were suggested in previous years and were turned down as being inappropriate, are now being reconsidered.

In New York City, for example, a proposal that was often made and always rejected—to raise money by legalizing off-track betting—is again being dusted off.

In El Paso County, according to the Commerce Department's latest "Census of Governments," property taxes now account for 70.7 per cent of all revenue raised locally.

By way of comparison, in other communities throughout the United States, the amount obtained from property taxes averages 69.0 per cent of the total. In the State of Colorado it is 72.6 per cent.

Although the property tax has declined in relative importance in recent years, it is still the mainstay of most local governments.

The survey shows that a wide variation exists in the size of property taxes levied in different parts of the country.

For residents of El Paso County, the per capita cost is $102.72 per year. Elsewhere in Colorado, it averages $125.26. On the national level, it amounts to $99.09 per capita.

The search for new sources of revenue to meet local needs is taking various directions. In some localities, emphasis is being placed on increases in license fees and charges for public service. In others, where proper authority has been obtained from the state, sales taxes and income taxes have been multiplied.

The Tax Foundation reports that the revenue from sales taxes and gross receipts taxes has increased nearly 400 per cent in the last 17 years. In the same period, the yield from property taxes has gone up 300 per cent.

GILDING THE LILY

NEW YORK (AP) — Though some husbands would deny that women need any practice in talking, members of the International Toastmistress Clubs, Inc. held workshops on "Speech" and "Preparation" at a meeting here.

Purpose of the Toastmistress Clubs, founded by Mrs. Ernestine White in California in 1938, is to improve members' ability to speak in public and to participate in community activities through instruction and training in speech preparation, vocabulary development, proper speech and fundamentals of parliamentary procedure.

The ITC comprises about a thousand clubs, 50 of which are in foreign countries including Hawaii, Japan, Korea, Canada, Scotland, Germany and islands of the South Pacific.

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — In trying to figure out the military situation in South Viet Nam, the main point to bear in mind is that, in theory at least, the natives do the fighting while we have only a supporting role in the war with the Communist Viet Cong.

This may seem hard to believe, in view of our reprisal air strikes against North Viet Nam and the almost daily toll of American casualties. Nevertheless, it explains why neither the joint chiefs of staff nor President Johnson want U.S. combat units sent to South Viet Nam, even for guard duty about our installations.

Officially, there are no U.S. combat ground troops now in the beleaguered country for duty as such. And in theory, our Air Force units are there for training and advisory purposes but available, of course, as an air defense against Communist MIGs. And our Navy offshore units are operating around the Gulf of Tonkin as a sort of latent threat.

The idea that this is not our war, that we are only helping people who want to help themselves, is a basic tenet of the Administration's policy. And it has to be admitted that there are some military grounds for it being a fact.

There are an estimated 23,000 American troops in South Viet Nam. A heavy percentage are officers and noncommissioned officers of the career type, suited for advisory and training duties.

Certainly there are marines guarding our Saigon Embassy, and military police are on guard duty at installations in Saigon. All are combat trained. For that matter, so are the "housekeeping" troops, the cooks, jeep drivers, etc.

But command responsibilities are definitely out.

GROUND TROOPS WOULD COMMIT US TO FIGHT

This facade of restricted military support would vanish entirely if American ground troops comprising an Army combat unit were sent to South Viet Nam. It would constitute a fighting force—probably a battalion of 1,000 men — under the direction of American officers.

It is felt that if there was such a commitment, then we would be in the thick of the ground warfare, and inescapably.

If such units were sent for the sole purpose of securing out bases against the infiltrating Reds, this would be true, the Pentagon believes. It would mean that a U.S. infantry unit, for example, would have the responsibility of protecting a base. And that responsibility would involve patrols, machinegun deployments, and probably plenty of acutal fighting.

There would still be no guarantee of 100 per cent success, which Defense Scretary McNamara has warned is impossible because of the Communist guerrilla tactics.

And, once a U.S. combat unit is entangled in the ugly land warfare, it would be axiomatic for a further buildup to occur. The war would become our war, just as the Korean "police action" did, once we had landed at Pusan.

PRESENCE OF DRAFTEES POSES POLITICAL PROBLEM

There also are other problems in connection with dispatch of combat units. One is that these units do not comprise Army regulars entirely, but have a draft mix. This fact would involve domestic politics, especially as the handling of the Southeast Asia situation has already brought Johnson considerable criticism at home.

Moreover, the Pentagon has always sought to avoid use of American troops on a significant scale on the Asian mainland. The joint chiefs' policy has been to rely on U.S. air and naval strength in any hostile confrontation with Peking and Hanoi.

As long ago as last summer, for example, the joint chiefs recommended a saturation bombing of North Viet Nam as the best way to end the Viet Cong threat for good.

Ever since the Korean War this type of air action has had its strong supporters. When that war broke out, air power advocates urged a clobbering of North Korea's industrial targets to reduce its war potnetial to rubble.

But opponents of this theory successfully argued that such air strikes would kill thousands of men, women and children. Three years later, thousands had been killed anyway, plus almost 35,000 Americans.

SECURITY STAYS IN SOUTH VIET HANDS

What is now clearly in the works is a decision against sending combat units to South Viet Nam. The decision to rely on air power in any escalation of the war is already firm.

This does not mean that steps will not be taken to protect our bases more adequately against such surprise assaults as the one that took eight American lives at Pleiku last Saturday.

The security job will, however, remain the responsibility of South Viet Namese officers. But there will be more American advisers with each battalion of the protective troops.

It is acknowledged that while security may be improved, it can only be to a limited degree. Pentagon officials figure that to get 100 per cent security, so many Viet Namese would be required that there would not be enough men to fight effectively against the Viet Cong.

While the Administration is trying to solve such difficult military problems, there is an increasing demand in Congress that Johnson make a report to the country updating our Viet Nam policy.

As Rep. John Lindsay (R-N.Y.) told the House yesterday, until there is such a Presidential clarification, the impression is going to increase "that the full military might of the United States is committed" and that what "is euphemistically known as military support becomes a naked U.S. war that has neither front lines nor back lines, no beginning or ending, or commitment by the very people we seek to defend."

Adjustment Board to Meet Here Thursday

Three petitions and appeals will come before the El Paso County Board of Adjustment at 2 p.m. Thursday in the county office building auditorium.

Douglas Jardine is requesting permission to construct a shop building, 40-foot by 100-foot, in an M-Industrial District located at 3020 N. El Paso St.

Gerald Drake is petitioning the board for permission to build an addition, 24-foot by 38.5-foot, to an existing six-plex, making an eight-plex, in an R-2 Residence District located at 7 Dorchester Dr. It is partly within a side yard setback that does not conform with the zoning resolution.

The board also will hear the petition and appeal of Joseph O'Leary for permission to construct an addition, 12-foot, six inches by 35.5-foot; a carport, 16-foot by 18.5-foot, and covered front porch, 10-foot by 16-foot to an existing dewlling in an R-2 Residence District located at 1609 Main St. partly within a front yard setback that does not conform with the zoning resolution.

SEASHORE PARK AREA

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — The Cape Hatteras National Seashore Park, this country's first publicly owned oceanside recreational area, had 1,070,535 visitors in 1964.

National Park Service Supt. Karl T. Gilbert said the number of visitors increased 22.8 per cent over 1964.

"This was the largest number to visit this seashore recreation area," Gilbert said, "since it was created during the early 1950s."

More Than 1,500 Expected To Attend Security Series

"More than 1500 citizens from the Pikes Peak Region are expected to be registred for the National Security Seminar, to be held in the City Auditorium, Feb. 22 through March 5," according to Norman A. Coleman, seminar general chairman.

In addition, Air Force Lieutenant Colonel Ervin L. Turner, Seminar Administrator, said that 275 Reserve Army, Navy, and Air Force Officers have received orders for this two-week active duty school tour.

"These Reserve Officers, especially from the Army and Navy, are coming from all points of the nation . . most of the Aif Force contingent are from this area," Turner said.

The Seminar is also open to all service enlisted personnel. To attend the Seminar for point credit enlisted personnel must have approval from their commanding officer and have the Seminar Administrator certify their attendance form, according to Turner.

"The National Security Seminar is a two - week information packed course dealing with facts that this civilian and military community should know about national security. With today's situations in the Far East and in Europe, the Seminar is all the more important . . . to understand this nation's policies, you must know the background . . . and these facts can be obtained at the National Security Seminar," said Coleman.

Seminar opening ceremonies will begin 11 a.m., Monday Feb. 22. Colorado Governor John A. Love and Mayor Harry Hoth will be special guest speakers.

Air Force Major General William S. Steele, Deputy Commandant of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces will give the keynote address.

The former 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) commander at Fort Carson, Major General Ashton H. Manhart has accepted to give the Seminar's closing address on March 5.

General Manhart left the Ft. Carson post in January 1963. He is now the Vice Director, Joint Staff, Organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington, D. C.

Those attending 50 per cent of more of the lectures earn a certificate of graduation. The Seminar is a two - week version of the 10 month course given at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces. Six faculty officers, representing each of the Armed Forces, will conduct the Seminar.

Thirty - three illustrated lecturers and 17 related films will include such topics as Techniques of Communism, Communist Target — Youth, Southeast Asia, Red China, Soviet Union, Counterinsurgency, Public Opinion, Exploration of Space and Captive Europe. All these subjects and problems have a direct bearing on our survival as a nation.

'Hit-for-Heart Car Smash' to Be Staged at Memorial Park Today

Want to get rid of your frustrations? Want to blow off steam and release some of that bottled up tension? If you do go out to Memorial Park from 1 until 4 p.m. today, grab a sledge hammer, and help beat up on three old cars that should be off the road anyway!

The "Hit-for-Heart Car Smash" is a unique idea dreamed up by the student nurses of Penrose and Memorial Hospitals, and is sponsored by the El Paso County Heart Fund and District 1 of Colorado Student Nurses Association.

There will be a roped-off area for the three cars, and one smash with a sledge hammer will cost you 25c. All proceeds will go to the Heart Fund and Students Nurses Association.

Sixty student nurses will participate, and city police and firemen will volunteer their services in coordinating the humorous stunt.

Gene German, City Park Commissioner is assisting and Miss Carmen LeBaron is chairman for the nurses and Miss Anne McGovern is co-chairman. Also assisting will be Elmo Clark and Townie Bradner of the El Paso County Heart Fund. Stroker, the clown, (Wayne C. McClaughan) will be on hand to add some fun to the event.

Lorne Sanny To Address Council

Lorne C. Sanny, president of The Navigators, will be the speaker at the Christian Business and Professional Women's Council, Tuesday evening, at The Acacia Hotel.

Mr. Sanny is a leader in training laymen, a conference speaker, Bible leader and personal counselor. For eight years he directed counselor training for the city wide Billy Graham Crusades in the U. S. and England. He is now at the Navigators Headquarters located at Glen Eyrie.

Miss Gretchen Dempster of the Collector's Haven in Southgate Shopping Center, will speak on old coins and show her collection.

Music will be furnished by Mrs. Charles Vansdale, a graduate of the Wooster college in Ohio. She is teaching music in the Manitou Public Schools, both vocal and instrumental groups.

Ladies of the area are invited to attend. For reservations, phone Win Franz, days, 473-2300; evenings, 633-0517.

Button Day To Be Held At YWCA

February 19 is Button Day at the YWCA. Mrs. Florence Stangaard will give a talk on "Buttons" and show some of the special ones at 10 a.m. Friday in the Green Room on second floor. Following the talk the entire lot of over 3,000 buttons will go on sale.

Much interest has been created by recent gifts of many old and rare buttons. The Committee in charge is headed by Miss Ivy Carter. Members have sorted, catalogued and mounted buttons on cards. There are buttons for coats, suits, girl's and women's dresses. Many more are antique and unusual....some over 100 years old.

It is hoped that a revival of the local Button Club will result from the day's activities. Two attractive girls, Brenda Carter and Roberta Howe, are being seen around the YWCA as Brenda Buttons and Robbie Ribbons. In appropriate dresses they are helping publicize the All Association event through a clever song and skit. Brenda Buttons and Robbie Ribbons will also greet the Sunday customers at the Cafeteria.

Myers-Grant Vows Read in Home of Bride's Parents

Susan Mary Grant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Grant, 1410 N. Tejon St., became the bride of Phillip Earl Myers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Myers, Ottumwa, Iowa, at 3 p.m., Jan. 24, in an informal home wedding in the presence of the families and a few close friends.

George Garigues sang "The Lord's Prayer." and "Oh Perfect Love," with Mrs. Ruth Rice accompanying.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of pink satin under silk organza with a controlled street length bell skirt with lace appliques, fitted bodice, scoop neckline, and waist-length sleeves. She wore a gold rose diamond lavalier belonging to her paternal grandmother. Her headdress was a pink silk illusion veil caught by three pink rose buds. She carried a crescent of pink radiance roses with streamers entwined with pink garnet roses.

Mrs. J. W. Pinello, matron of honor, wore a pink velvet suit with a matching jacket and a red satin blouse. Her headdress was a large rose made of pink velvet and red satin. She carried a crescent of deep Happiness roses and red garnet roses which carried out the color of her costume.

Rick Baron was the best man. Ushers were George Sape and Clyde Porter.

The bride's mother wore a beige brocade dress with matching jacket and shoes, and a gold cymbidium orchid. The bridegroom's mother wore a beige knit suit with matching accessories and chartreuse cymbidium orchid.

A reception was held following the wedding in a setting of baskets of pink mums and pink snapdragons with pink pompoms, candelabra, and floral mantle decorations.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Myers, Ottumwa; Miss Nancy Hughes, Golden; Miss Susan Pryor, Denver; and friends of the couple from Boulder and Denver.

The couple will establish residence at Boulder.

The bride attended the University of Colorado where she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. The bridegroom also attended CU and was a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

Kappas to Be Guests of Mrs. H. Shaw

Kappa Kappa Gamma Alumnae Association will meet at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Howard C. Shaw, 806 Mira.

Dessert will be served and a program of vital interest will be presented by Walter Eisenberg. There will also be nomination of officers for the coming year. All Kappas in the area are most welcome and members are urged to bring their oders for cookbooks as their orders for cookbooks as Mrs. H. G. Gendreizig is chairman of the hostess committee.

David George Marries Elizabeth Joan Gieck

Elizabeth Joan Gieck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Gieck, 1657 Apache Trail, was married at 2 p.m., Jan. 23, to David John George, son of Mr. Murray George, Medway, Mass., in the Pauline Chapel.

The Rev. Daniel Kelleher performed the ceremony amid church decorations of poinsettias. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride's gown was a creation of re-embroidered alencon lace appliques over peau de soie. The dress was scoop-necked, mid-sleeved, and had a dome skirt which fell into a detachable chapel train. The silk illusion veil fell from a rose headpiece. The bride carried red and white roses.

Lorraine Faoro, maid of honor, wore a long-sleeve red velveteen dress with a bell-shaped skirt and matching accessories. Her flowers were red and white feathered canations.

David Daly was the best man. Ushers were Gerald Livingston and Gerald Feenstra.

The reception was held at St. Mary's church with Ruth Kelly, the bride's aunt, attending the cake; Beverly Torrence, bride's cousin, serving punch; Carol Wadman, serving coffee; Claire Prijatel, attending the gift table; and Georgia Fortuna at the guest book.

The couple will establish future residence at Manitou.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. William Quinn, Pueblo; Mr. and Mrs. Pat Kelly, Littleton; Mrs. Leon Torrence and family, Pueblo; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cozzalino, Pueblo, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gieck and family, Littleton; Mrs. Frank Prijatel and Claire Prijatel, Pueblo; Mr. and Mrs. George Chuick, Pueblo; and Mrs. Eugene Alt, Pueblo.

'Hit-for-Heart Car Smash' to Be Staged Today

Sixteen hundred women have set aside the week of February 15 through February 21 to work for the Heart Fund. Mrs. William H. Wise, Heart Sunday Chairman, praised these workers for their dedication and enthusiasm. "Many of our area chairmen have been signing up workers since November. We are truly ready for the campaign."

The Heart Sunday observance marks the high point in the El Paso County Heart Association's annual campaign. A year ago, approximately $9000 was subscribed during the Heart Sunday solicitation, while the month long campaign realized $30,097.

Mrs. Wise pointed out that the Heart Fund is the health field's closest approach to a truly unified campaign. "Most people think of heart attack when heart disease is mentioned," she said. "While heart attack is a major health problem, in reality it is only one of many cardiovascular problems with which we have to cope. Other major forms of the heart and blood vessel diseases include stroke, high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries, rheumatic fever and inborn heart defects. The Heart Fund fights them all.

Workers have been assigned to every area of the community and will begin their solicitation Monday concluding on Heart Sunday, Feb. 21, when returns will be taken to a local bank for counting and recording.

Gen. Benjamin W. Chidlaw is campaign chairman of the Heart Fund for 1965.

Miss Penelope Ann Hoiles Becomes Bride of Erle Duncan Tompkins II

The marriage of Miss Penelope Ann Hoiles and Erle Duncan Tompkins II was solemnized at 6 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 6, in the chapel of the Immanuel Lutheran Church, with relatives and a few intimate friends of the couple attending.

The Rev. Walter A. Enge performed the ceremony, and Kenneth Schlueter at the organ played traditional selections. Copper baskets of multi-colored chrysanthemums and carnations formed the background for the ceremony, and tapers in copper candelabra lighted the nuptial scene.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Hoiles of 1729 Alamo Ave., was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Jean B. Tompkins of Mt. Vernon, Iowa, and Dr. Winslow T. Tompkins of Shiraz, Iran.

The bride wore a short dress of aqua linen with white lace inserts, white lace shoes, and white lace hat with short veil. Her necklace, a fourth-generation heirloom in the Tompkins family, was of opals, with a moonstone pendant, and was presented to the bride by the bridegroom's mother. Her flowers were purple orchids with showers of purple hyacinth blossoms.

Miss Pamela Hoiles attended her sister as maid of honor, wearing a three-piece gold silk suit, with flowered hat in shades of orange, green and gold. Her flowers were green cymbidium orchids with garland streamers of miniature ivy.

Timothy Hoiles, brother of the bride, acted as best man, and ushers were Eric Kiers of Santa Barbara, Calif., and Mick Ramsey of Hinsdale, Ill.

Mrs. Hoiles wore for her daughter's wedding a turquoise silk suit with matching flowered hat, and a pink cymbidium orchid corsage. Mrs. Tompkins chose a beige silk suit with matching veiled hat, and her corsage was of bronze cymbidium orchids.

A wedding dinner in the Penrose Room of Broadmoor South followed the ceremony. The dinner table was decorated with silver candelabra surrounded by orchids and garlands of hyacinth blossoms. The tiered wedding cake was placed on a separate table.

The newlyweds left for Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where the bridegroom is associated with the Collins Radio Co., an electronics firm. The bride chose for traveling a bone-and-green wool tweed suit, with hat of bone-white wool trimmed in green.

Both young people have been attending Cornell College at Mt. Vernon, Iowa, and the bridegroom also attended the University of Pennsylvania.

The out-of-town guests included Mr. R. C. Hoiles, grandfather of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hoiles, aunt and uncle of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. David Threshie, her cousins, all from Santa Ana, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew T. Clark, maternal grandparents of the bride from Salt Lake City; Jerry Clark, uncle of the bride, also from Salt Lake City; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hardie, aunt and uncle of the bride from Yuba City, Calif., and Mrs. Jack Birk, aunt of the bride from Pittsburgh, Pa.

Cook's Tour

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A tall, dark and handsome young Frenchman says, "It's sheer nonsense to bar women from wine and food societies."

"Women sometimes are better tasters than men. For one thing, because they might smoke less," says Viscount Bernard de la Giraudiere. In an interview, he also suggested that many American women have the last word in buying wine for family meals and parties, because they do most of the shopping.

Viscount Giraudiere is director of the consumer education bureau of the Champagne Producers of France, a trade organization. During a seven-weeks trip to this country, he conduted tastings in restaurants, hotels, clubs and a few private homes in New York, Boston, Miami, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago and Washington, D.C.

Statistically, he's off to a good start in trying to increase Champagne sales. Exports to the United States for the first nine months this year totaled more than 2.4 million bottles, just 307,000 bottles short of the total exports to the United States during all of the previous year. The peak sales period is the winter holiday season.

During this tour, Viscount Giraudiere answered questions from guests about the history and geography of champagne. One idea he's pushing isn't likely to win friends among non-French wine growers who call their sparkling wines champagne.

"We admit that some other sparkling wines are pretty good and that some people prefer other sparkling wines. But we think only the French are entitled to call champagne by that name."

He added that even non-French wines made from the same varieties of grapes used in France's champagne district don't rate the name.

"If you use exactly the same grapes and the same method, you get a different-tasting wine because the grapes have grown in different soil, in a different climate,' he said. "The best example in the champagne district is the pinot graps, which is also used in the Burgundy district. The end results are different. In Burgundy, the pinot produces a great red wine; in champagne, it produces sparkling white wine."

To serve champagne, he favors stemware with deep tulip-shaped bowls instead of the traditional shallow saucer champagne glasses.

The saucer type spills easily if held properly by the stem, and warms the wine if held by the bowl, he said. He added that a little oxidation ripens the flavor of the wine; it tastes best if the bottle is opened 15 to 20 minutes before serving.

For cooling champagne, he suggested quick chilling in an ice bucket or cooler filled half and half with water and ice cubes or large chunks of ice.

It also can be chilled on the bottom shelf of the refrigerator for two or three hours, but not mre than half a day. Opened bottles should be held in a cooler filled with ice and water so that the wine remains cool to the last sip.

A little sugar added to the water that holds cut crysanthemums will help them to stay fresher longer.

Personalines

A rare coin showed up in a large estate left to Thrift House, which is sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of Grace Episcopal Church. According to Mrs. Cortland Cool, a member of the board, the articles were advertised, including a 1914 D penny, which, it was learned, is appraised at $100.00! Some fine old crystal was also included.

Mrs. Cool states that Thrift House was "mobbed" with customers after seeing the ad and they had to lock the doors to handle traffic and customers! An expert on coins advised the ladies about the value of the coins, which will be sold through sealed bids next Friday.

Coin collectors, watch your blood pressure!

Kinner-Addington Rites Held in California Church

Marilyn Joy Addington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Addington, South Gate, Calif., became the bride of Douglas H. Kinner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Kinner, 2303 W. Platte Ave. recently.

The Rev. William E. Root of Grace Bible Church, South Gate, officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father in a setting of floral arrangements and candlelabra.

Gaylon Claiborne sang "Hawaiian Wedding Song," "Till the End of Time," and "Savior Like a Shepherd Lead Us."

The bride wore a peau de sois A-line dress with French lace applique at the waist, wrists and skirt. The dress had a chapel-length train of French lace, scoop neckline, and long sleeves. She wore a gold-link bracelet styled from an heirloom neckless belonging to her maternal grandmother. She carried a cascade of white mums with an orchid in the center.

Sue Stovall was the maid of honor, and Linda Pearson was the bridesmaid. Both wore moss-green velvet and eggshell crepe dresses with empire waistlines. They carred a cascade of gold mums.

Robert Kinner, the bridegroom's brother, was the best man. Donald Kinner, also brother of the bridegroom, was the usher.

The mother of the bride wore an aqua suit of silk shantung with a white orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a royal-blue taffeta sheath dress. She also chose white orchids.

The bride chose a three-piece black and white wool jersey suit for the wedding trip to the High Sierras and Las Vegas.

The couple will establish residence in Denver.

Colorado Springs guests were Mr. and Mrs. Karl Kinner and Robert and Donald Kinner. Other out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Lancaster of Seattle, Wash.

The bride attended the University of California in Los Angeles, where she graduated in January. The bridegroom is attending Colorado State College in Greeley where he will graduate in June.

Study Uses Of Stand Bed

HOUSTON (UPI) — Doctor at the Texas Institute for Rehabilitation and Research are doing a $35,000 study that might replace the wheelchair with an upright "bed" for certain patients.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association of America gave the grant to the institute for doctors to study uses of the bed, developed at the institute for use in other disorders, but found to have some advantages for muscular dystrophy patients.

The disease is an incurable disorder that progressively makes the muscles useless. Many victims have to spend most of their time in a wheelchair and in some cases the wheelchair immobilizes patients further.

Doctors think the stand bed, a slanting, padded board with braces to keep it upright and with a shelf attached at arm level, might be the answer. The study will see whether the standing bed will keep patients active enough to slow down the progress of the dystrophy.

Deans, Counselors Will Have Convention Here

True to the belief that educators can learn much from their students, members of the Colorado Association of Women Deans and Counselors will hear a student from the University of Colorado as the first speaker at their annual convention, to be held at the Broadmoor Thursday through Saturday.

Miss Jo An McFarland, Denver, will talk after the banquet Thursday on "How Can Deans Better Help Young Adults Grow Toward Maturity?"

Local deans who are preparing for the annual state convention include Miss Christine Moon, Colorado College, and Mrs. Beth Suhre, Washington Irging Junior High, co-chairmen of local arrangements. On the registration committee are Mrs. Elma Hurt, South Junior High, chairman; Mrs. Maxine Carpenter, West Junior High; Mrs. Ruth Dutzi, Horace Mann Junior High; Miss Elma Hayden, Palmer High; Mrs. Audry Willie, North Junior High.

Mrs. Hermina Kilgore, Wasson High, is publicity chairman. Miss Louise Buckley, East Junior High, is state junior high school representative.

Under the general theme, "The Art of Growing," topics of talks include: "The Professional Growth of the Counselor" by Dr. Eunice Hilton, University of Denver; "The Art of Growing Emotionally" by Dr. Eleanor Steele, psychiatrist at the University of Colorado Medical Center; "The Art of Growing Educationally", Dr. Douglas Fox, Colorado College; "The Art of Growing Culturally" by Miss Jo Ann Parrish of Cherry Creek School District.

Dr. Douglas A. Fox, speaker at the Friday evening banquet at the Broadmoor, is Assistant Professor of Religion at Colorado College. He holds degrees from The University of Sydney, University of Chicago, Camden Theological College, and the Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley, California.

Bully Defenses

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: My husband and I disagree about what we should do about a bigger boy who roughed up our 8-year-old son on the way home from school. I think he should be reported to the police as a menace to younger children in our neighborhood but my husband says that Fred has to learn to defend himself. Though I am now driving Fred back and forth to school, he is still so frightened of this bigger boy that he won't go outside the yard to play . . .

ANSWER: Has your son been reassured that he did his utmost to defend himself against this bully?

I ask this question because what often seems to be our fear of a bullying person who has hurt us is fear of ourselves—fear that we've acquitted ourselves badly in our fight with him. We're not nearly so scared of the insult or bloody nose he has given us as we are of the possibility that we showed contemptible weakness in our battle with him.

So we will devise many ways to hide from him, not because we're still smarting from the hurt he has done us but because we are smarting from shame at the way we accepted the hurt.

Has your husband's insistence that Fred learn to defend himself against bullies contained any suggestion that the boy did not defend himself well against this particular bully?

If it did, it's no wonder that the boy is more than usually frightened of another encounter that might expose him as insufficient again. He seeks the safety of his own yard to avoid, not a bloody nose, but humiliating criticism of his effort to protect himself.

I like your idea of driving him back and forth to school, but I like even better the idea of his father telling him: "You did the very best you could in this fight with this bigger boy, didn't you? Nobody can beat someone who's much bigger than they are. But you tried to, didn't you? You made it clear that you don't like bullying, didn't you? All right, that's enough for us. Mother and I are proud of you."

May I remind you and your husband that the anguished fears—Army doctors call them "psychoneurotic" — which immobilize soldiers after battle have less to do with fear of the enemy than they have to do with fear that they behaved badly under stress? And add that to our civilian fears of people who have insulted us is not so much fear of our insulters as it is fear that we'll collapse again under their bullying.

Cocktail Snacks

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Yesterday afternoon in the exclusive Sky Club atop the Pan Am Building in New York City, the Herring Council gave a Herring Around the World tasting party. Leonard Chase, president of the council, explained that since the days of antiquity, herring has been one of mankind's major foods. As he was talking, a waiter passed a tray of hot Russian Herring Potato Balls. Terrific! Try them at your next party. Mr. Chase was right, herring has appetite fascination.

In the sky-high room overlooking the cosmopolitan sweeps of the city, we tasted Hawaiian Herring Dip, Japanese Sushi Herring, Polish Herring Pirogi and an Italian Herring Dip for raw vegetables. There was herring in sour cream, also the tender pink schmaltz herring and a French puff paste filled with cheese and topped with herring and sour cream. Any one of these dishes would make welcome cocktail snacks any place in the gourmet world.

Russian Herring Potato Balls
(24 balls)

1 envelope instant mashed potatoes
1 cup water
½ cup milk
2 eggs, well beaten
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
Salt and pepper
24 Matjes herring pieces, from jar or can, well drained
Dry bread crumbs
Deep fat or oil

Prepare mashed potatoes according to directions on package. Use only 1 cup water and ½ cup milk. Cool. Beat in eggs and cheese. Add salt and pepper to taste. Shape potatoes into small balls, pressing a piece of Matjes herring into the center of each. Roll balls in bread crumbs. Fry balls, a few at a time, in deep fat or oil (370 degrees) for 2 to 3 minutes, or until lightly browned. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot. Makes 24 balls.

Italian Herring Dip
(about 2½ cups)

½ pound butter
½ cup olive oil
4 garlic cloves, mashed
1 cup finely chopped boned schmaltz herring from jar or can
Chilled bite-size pieces of celery, carrots, cauliflower, green pepper, tomato, string beans, etc.

Melt butter with oil. Add garlic and herring. Cook over very low heat stirring constantly until piping hot. Mixture should be fairly smooth. Keep hot over a warmer and dip vegetables into sauce while hot.

Well, what next in the opulence department! Now, it's a four-door sedan covered on the "outside" with zebra skin. Designer Jacques Kaplan of the Georges Kaplan fur firm created the zebra-covered car for a client who wanted something a little different and Renault delivered an all-white number for the special treatment. Total cost, $2848. Kaplan said he'd also cover cars in mink, sable, chinchilla or leopard, at varying prices.

Proof that the man about town is becoming more of a dandy is shown in the sudden popularity of "The Albert." This sales surge is reported by London's Jewelry Information Center, which explains that "The Albert" is a heavy gold watch chain once worn on Victorian waistcoats. It was named for Prince Albert. Coming back with the chain are fob watches, slimmer however than their Regency counterparts.

Ever add grated cheese — Cheddar or Parmesan — to egg salad sandwiches? Nice for a change!

Chains Leave Bruises

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: Though I usually like what you write, you burned me up with your answer to the mother who had divorced an alcoholic husband after 15 years of hell. Instead of giving her understanding you gave her a kick in the face. I have been married to an alcoholic myself and now live in one room with my two boys whom I support because I got tired of picking up the pieces for a man who didn't care what he broke or what he hurt. . .

ANSWER: The column to which you refer was addressed to a woman whose repeated and agonized experiences of letdown by an alcoholic husband had reinforced her expectation of more let-down by her children. She was terrified that they, too, would become alcoholics and like their father force her to take on the responsibility for their irresponsible actions.

I think that you are brave and good to have refused, like her, to condone your husband's self-destructiveness by hanging around while he went about the business of destroying himself.

It is my view that none of us can live with irresponsible people, alcoholic or otherwise, without developing doubt of human reliability. To live with an unreliable person is to become apprehensive to disaster. The telephone rings—and with sinking hearts, we think, "God of mercy, what disaster now?"

When our unreliable person is late getting home, we foresee car accidents, police trouble, hospital problems. If we are healthy, like you and the mother of the column to which you refer, we refuse to live like this. We refuse to expend all our energies in apprehension. Like you, we say:

"No more of this. I've had it. Whether it makes me good or bad, charitable or uncharitable, I want no more of this."

So far as I am concerned, that's wonderful. Also, so far as I am concerned, it also has to move on.

A noted psychoanalyst once criticized a certain line from the Communist Manifesto which says, "You have nothing to lose but your chains." He said, "Getting rid of the chains is just the beginning. That's what Marx wouldn't see. It's getting free of the marks left by the chains that is the real problem."

You misunderstood me. I was rejoicing at the rejection of chains. I also was warning that chains leave bruises not easily healed.

Opening lead: Queen of ♠

The final contract of three no-trump was reached in almost less time than it takes to tell about it. Holding two aces and a readily establishable suit, West bided his time and then leaped in eagerly for the kill. Whether or not his double was a tipoff to declarer is another question.

West opened the queen of spades, which was taken by South with the king. He reached an immediate count of eight tricks, and hope for the ninth seemed to rest with an end play. With the purpose of embarrassing West, he decided to run the diamond suit.

West realized it would be fatal to part with the queen of clubs and, not wishing to let go more than one establishable spade, discarded the ten of clubs, the deuce of spades, and then two hearts. Now South led the deuce of hearts, West grabbed the ace and returned the jack of spades, establishing the suit and simultaneously driving out dummy's entry for the heart suit. This sent the contract down to defeat.

South's heart play came much too late. It should have been made at declarer's first opportunity. When South wins the opening lead he plays the low heart at once, knowing that West has the ace. West must duck, else declarer will pick up the entire heart suit. The trick is won with the queen, and now as declarer runs the diamond suit West must find one additional discard. He can afford to discard the jack of hearts, but the discard on the fifth diamond is more irksome. If he lets go a spade, retaining the ace and queen of clubs, declarer can score with his king of clubs by playing the ace and another spade, throwing West into the lead. If he throws the queen of clubs, declarer can win the contract by playing a club out of his own hand, establishing the king.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

This Is New?

DEAR ABBY: I have conceived an idea that is so great it frightens me. In this day of renting everything and charging it on credit cards, wouldn't it be wonderful if a man could rent a wife?

Just think of the possibilities? Some men like to hunt and fish, but their wives don't. So a man could rent an out-door type to go hunting and fishing with him. There are men who like nothing better than to eat a home-cooked meal, and then fall asleep watching television. Quiet women who enjoy being alone would qualify for that kind of man. Men who have to attend lots of conventions could rent a "wife" who'd enjoy going with him if he's married to a woman who can always find a million excuses to stay home. I am interested in your opinion, Abby. —"GENIUS"

DEAR GENIUS: Don't try to copyright your idea—it's as old as the "heels" although not advertised as a "rental service." It's never put on a credit card or deducted as a business expense. And if the idea "frightens" you enough to forget it, you'll be lucky.

DEAR ABBY: For heaven's sake, why don't they have a humane society for husbands like they have for dogs and cats? A woman can be prosecuted for starving and neglecting an animal, but what if she treats her husband that way? I know a wife who, for the past few months, has been sending her husband to work without breakfast. And she doesn't pack him a lunch, either, knowing full well there is no place at work, or near there, where he can buy something to eat. When he gets home from work he has to clean up the house, bathe and dress the baby for bed, and do up all the dishes she dirtied during the day. On weekends he has to stay home and do the laundry. My own wife has been packing extra sandwiches in my lunch bucket so I can feed this poor guy. What can be done with a wife like that? —DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Is she sick or lazy? If she's sick, she needs a doctor. If she's just plain lazy and her husband lets her get away with it, he qualifies for help from the humane society. It's for dumb animals.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old girl in the seventh grade. A group of girls from our school stick together during the noon hour. Since we attend a parochial school, sex is a touchy subject. There are nine of us and not one has the heart to ask our mothers about the facts of life. We are afraid if we let on that we are even thinking about it they would die of embarrassment. Abby, would you please tell mothers not to leave the questions up to their kids when they reach this age? If the kids haven't already asked by this time, they are too chicken. Sex is a dirty word to most kids because their parents whisper it and grown-ups shut up about it when we enter a room. Maybe they will see what we mean. Thank you. —TOO CHICKEN

DEAR CHICKEN: By the time most parents get around to asking their children if there is anything they want to know, it's too late. Not all young people mature at the same rate. The time to be told the facts of life is when you become curious about it. So don't foul up your chance to learn the right answers from the proper source by being too chicken to ask.

DEAR ABBY: I just got a letter from my sister telling me that she and her husband are breaking up, and she is coming to the city where I live to get a job. She says she hopes I won't mind letting her and her four kids stay with me until she finds a place of her own. Her children range from 4½ to 11 years old and they all wet the bed! The thought of changing those beds and doing up those sheets every day has sure put me in the dumps. Have you, or any of your readers, any suggestions? —IN THE DUMPS

DEAR IN: Ask your sister to bring as much bed linen as she can and tell her not to forget the rubber sheets. And look into one of those "electric wet-alarms" which so many readers tell me work wonders to help their children break the bed-wetting habit.

'Drunken Meat'

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A friend of ours, Betty Wason, is nationally known for her books on food. One of her special interests is the cooking of Spain, which she has visited several times. She describes Spanish cuisine in general as delicate in seasoning, relying largely on their fine olive oil, lots of fresh parsley and generous use of onion. However, when they do use other seasonings, they choose exotic ones such as cumin, saffron, cinnamon and even bitter chocolate.

Miss Wason gave us these two versions of Spanish pot roast, one called Carne Borracho which means "Drunken Meat" and one from Aragon, thickened with grated bitter chocolate.

Carne Borracho

1½ pounds lean beef for stew, cut in cubes
2 tablespoons Spanish olive oil
1 teaspoon butter
⅛ teaspoon powdered cloves
¼ teaspoon cumin
1 tablespoon minced parsley
¼ cup raisins
6 pimento stuffed olives
1 cup very dry Sherry

Heat olive oil and butter until butter is melted, add beef, brown on all sides. Add salt and spices, parsley, raisins, olives and sherry. Cover, cook gently over lowest heat until meat is tender, 1 to 1½ hours. Add water if liquid cooks away. Serve over bed of hot cooked rice.

Pot Roast Aragonesa
(8 to 10 servings)

3 or 4 pound rump of veal, bottom round of beef, or chuck roast
2 tablespoons flour
1½ teaspoons salt
1 large onion, sliced
2 cloves garlic crushed
2 whole cloves
1 bay leaf or 1 tablespoon minced parsley
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon catsup
2 cups water
½ ounce bitter chocolate, grated

Dust meat with flour which has been mixed with ½ teaspoon of the salt. Brown meat in the hot olive oil in Dutch oven or in casserole which can be used on top of stove. Remove meat, add onions and garlic and cook until yellow; replace meat and add remaining ingredients except chocolate. Cover very tight, simmer 2½ to 3 hours until meat is very tender. Remove meat to platter, add more liquid if necessary to make 2 cups sauce. Taste to see if you think it needs more salt. Add chocolate. Cook until sauce is thickened.

Toastmistress Club to Have Dinner, Contest

The Pikes Peak Toastmistress Club will hold the club level speech contest at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the Chicken Shack. This will be a dinner meeting.

The speaker will be Jane Curtis and Eunice Thiel, first and second place winners of the first preliminary speak-off held on January 7, 1965 and Claryce Kersting and Darlene Knox, first and second place winners of the second preliminary speak-off held on January 21, 1965. The winner of the club contest will compete in the area speech contest to be held here in March.

Each of the speakers are given three words 48 hours in advance of speech time. They are to choose one word as their subject and prepare a 5 to 7 minute speech on same. The speeches are evaluated by three impartial judges. Toastmistress for the evening will be last year's club winner, Lyda Johnson.

For more information and reservations call Mrs. Johnson at 632-3415. Reservations must be made before noon Wednesday.

Bethel 23 to Have Term Dinner, Election

Bethel 23 of the International Order of Job's Daughters will hold a term dinner followed by an election meeting Monday in the Masonic Temple. Dinner will be served at 5:30 p.m. and the meeting will start at 7:30 p.m.

The officers will pay a final tribute to their honored queen, Pat Sanders, on the final meeting of her term.

Jaycee Wives Will Elect New Officers

The Colorado Springs Jaycee Wives will meet at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday at the Dawn Restaurant, 815 W.Colorado Ave.

The election of officers will be held at this time. After the election and awarding of a door prize the evening will be spent playing bridge.

TO WED IN AFA CHAPEL — Lt. Col. and Mrs. Stanley L. Rabe, 1932 Meyers Ave. announce the engagement of their daughter Julia Johanna, to Cadet 1/c Richard C. Oliver of the U. S. Air Force Academy. Cadet Oliver is the son of Mr. Raymond Oliver, Sacramento, Calif. and Mrs. Audrey B. Souza, Sutter Creek, Calif. Miss Rabe was graduated with the class of 1963 of Wasson High School and is employed by Penrose Hospital. Cadet Oliver was graduated with the Class of 1961 from Amador County High School in Sutter Creek, and will graduate with the Class of 1965 from the United States Air Force Academy in June. The wedding date is set for June 10 in the AFA Chapel.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

What would you do if you had musty closets? I never seem to get rid of this odor. PLEASE, tell me what to do. I have that . . . —Closeted Feeling!

The first thing I would do is remove all the clothes and either wash them, dry clean them or sun 'em . . . Then spray or wash the closet down with a disinfectant and let it dry thoroughly, leaving the doors OPEN. If you have a fan, use it for a few hours and let it blow in the closet.

Next I would bore some holes in the top AND bottom of the door This allows for circulation. Hot air rises. Remember? Also cool air needs to get in. The holes at the top and bottom are for this. They DO NOT look bad! In fact they add to the decor Bore five or ten holes. They're cute.

If you have the kind of closet doors that have panels, remove the panels at the top AND bottom. (Real easy . . . go look.) Thumb tack porous place mats, such as cane or bamboo, on the inside of the door. (Bambo match stick curtains can also be cut up with your scissors). Paint to match your decor. Wonderful.

And hereafter never, NEVER, put a garment in your closet if it is damp from perspiration.

Many people turn their suit coats wrongside out the minute they take them off, and then put them on a coat hanger and leave them hanging on a door OVERNIGHT before they EVER put them in the closet.

As a LAST resort, if you find you can't follow any of these suggestions, the only thing I can think of is to open the door of your closet each morning and close it each evening. At least the poor closet will get SOME cirulcation —Heloise

P.S. Have you ever tried putting a few bars of sweet-smelling soap on the floor of your closet for a few days? Such a heavenly scent!

Dear Heloise:
When I'm going to a meeting where there will be many coats —checked — many of them similar in cut and color — I take an envelope addressed to myself (from a recent letter, perhaps) and put it in my coat pocket. Never a lost coat. . . —A Reader

I think the idea of putting a cookie sheet on the bottom of your refrigerator freezer is a good idea . . so that you can pull it out to see what you have on hand.

However, I have found that a dish drainer is even better as it will be raised from the bottom of the freezer so it will not stick. —Mrs. A. Kraus

Dear Heloise:
I get different colored sponges for bathing and showering for each member of my family. They can be rinsed and squeezed after each bath and they dry quickly and we have no damp wash-clothes in the bathroom. —Agnes Maddy

Dear Heloise:

Did you know that if you add a little food coloring to mashed potatoes children will go hog wild over them?

I usually make my potaotes pink or yellow, then add a dot of butter on the top .The children think colored mashed potatoes are a treat.

I also cut sandwiches in quarters and the children think they are not getting very much, so they ask for more, more, and more. —Ann

About that awful job of wiping down the shower walls and glass door. . .

My husband bought a small squeege, such as window washers use. After each member of the family has taken a shower he wipes the surface of the shower in several easy swipes. Mrs. Ronald H. Drews

Dear Gals:
Here's a hot one I ran across by accident last night:

I can't stand to throw anything away and sometimes save a good piece of foil by rinsing it off and putting it back in the oven to use again.

Naturally, it is crinkly after using and washing.

I put some canned hot rolls on this crinkly UNGREASED foil and you should have seen how beautiful the bottom of my rolls were! Also will work on biscuits!

Oil saved.
Try it. Heloise

Republican Women Will Hear Talk on Medicare

"Medicare" will be the topic of discussion when Dr. Jack I. Paap speaks to the Republican Women's Roundtable at 9:45 a.m. Monday, Feb. 22, in the downstairs meeting room of the Northern National Bank, 220 E. Fillmore St.

Dr. Paap, who practices general medicine and surgery in Colorado Springs, will speak concerning the Johnson administration's controversial medicare legislation, which is opposed by the American Medical Association. The public is invited to attend.

Dr. Paap attended the University of Nebraska as an undergraduate and the University of Nebraska Medical School. He interned at Pierce County Hospital in Tacoma, Wash., and served two years in the U. S. Air Force. He moved to Colorado Springs in 1959.

He is a member of the Scottish Rite, the Colorado Springs Executive Association, El Paso County Medical Society, and is president of the Pikes Peak Academy of General Practice. Dr. Paap is married and has three children.

The importance of this program necessitates the earlier meeting time at 9:45 a.m., according to Mrs. Roy Long, roundtable president.

Following Dr. Paap, Mrs. Harrie Hart, second vice president, will present a brief session of political education regarding precinct committee work, and Mrs. Don La Mora, first vice president, will summarize current events.

Also on the meeting agenda will be a discussion of a proposed membership coffee which the Roundtable expects to have in March.

DR. JACK I. PAAP

The special committee in charge of arrangements for the coffee is headed by Mrs. Roger Thornton. Other members of the committee include Mrs. Joe A. Siegel, Mrs. B. E. Black, Mrs. Victor Laushine, Mrs. Sam Turner and Mrs. Long.

Cook's Tour

The farmers' cooperative that markets 85 per cent of the world's cranberries has a line of new products in test markets and plans for still more likely make the traditional holiday berry popular for any meal, any time.

Those in test markets include:

Frozen prebaked cranberry nut bread, with a pleasantly tart flavor, good toasted or plain; cranberry-apple juice in 1 quart 14 ounce cans, a beautiful clear red color and also refreshingly tart.

Two jellies in 10-ounce jars and six preserves, in 12-ounce jars, each combining cranberries with one other favorite American fruit or berry. The jellies use apples and grapes. The preserves use blackberries, red raspberries, strawberries, peaches, apricots or oranges, the latter for orange marmalade, made with sweet oranges instead of the Seville, or bitter, oranges ordinarily used.

A gelatin-type molded salad that contains cranberries, other fruit and nuts in a glass-design mold stores on the panty shelf until shortly before serving time. Lewis said that 30 to 45 minutes in a refrigerator or half that time in a freezer will jell the salad.

One pint bottles of concentrated cranberry juice cocktail reconstitute to 1½ quarts each also are in test markets, and a frozen concentrate is being developed.

Lewis said that other items in the research and development stage include cranberry ice cream and a 1-ounce plastic portion pack for cranberry sauce, both for the institutional market, and a frozen cake-like dessert called cranberry crunch for the consumer market.

Two other new products are for dieters. They are low calorie whole berry cranberry sauce and low calorie cranberry juice cocktail, both made with artificial sweetener. The sauce is labeled to show its carbohydrate, protein, fat, sweetener and calorie content.

Cranberry-Nut Bread

Sift 2¼ cups of all purpose flour with 2 teaspoons of baking power, ½ teaspoon of baking soda, ¾ teaspoon of salt and ¾ cup of sugar. Add ¾ cup of chopped nuts, ½ cup of raisins, 1 egg, beaten, 1 (14-ounce) jar of cranberry-orange relish and 2 tablespoons of shortening, melted.

Mix only until ingredients are blended. Spoon into a greased 9-by-5-by-2-inch loaf pan Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven from 1 hour to 1 hour 10 minutes, or until a straw or cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes before removing from the pan to rack. Cool well before slicing.

Place wire cake racks over sheets of paper when using them to cool cookies. The paper will catch any crumbs.

RCI Group Sets Open Meeting Here Wednesday

The El Paso County Chapter for Retarded Children, Inc. will meet at 8 p.m.., Wednesday, in the library of the First Congregational Church.

Dr. John Carson,, program chairman, has announced that Clinton C. Smith of the Retarded Children's Center of Denver, will show two films. One will show a summer camp in 1964 for the retarded in Colorado, conducted by Mrs. Bess Bell of the Center and at which he was assistant director; the other is a movie of a Christmas program at the Retarded Children's Center. He will also have information on recreation, scouting, and camping.

Although working at the Center, Smith is also studying at Regis College toward a degree in Special Education, as well as doing a great deal of volunteer work in the field of retardation. He is scoutmaster of a troop at Ridge State Home and Training School, has done volunteer work for the Red Cross at the school, and conducts weekend tours there. He was elected vice president of the Denver Association for Retarded Children two times.

Army Private Boosts Knowledge on Duty

PFC Michael Kyle of the 267th Signal Company, Ft. Carson, is increasing his knowledge of his civilian field while on Army active duty.

Kyle was a telephone pole lineman for the Blue Mountain Telephone Co. in eastern Oregon when he was notified to report by his draft board. At Ft. Carson he drives a five - ton truck and trailer, a skill which he says will be useful when he returns to Blue Mountain.

He has been notified that the company, which is one of the most up-to-date independents, lost more than $200,000 in equipment in the recent floods in the Northwest.

Kyle is a 1959 graduate of Spray, Ore., High School and attended Portland State College for two years. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Kyle, 27490 Sunrise Lane, Hillsboro, Ore.

Heating Bill Trimmed by Use of Energy From Sun

Homeowner Harry Thomason of Washington, D.C. has trimmed his heat bill to $18.90 for three consecutive years.

Thomason, a builder of solar homes, used solar energy to heat his house for an average of $6.30 a year.

In a first person account in February "Popular Mechanics," Thomason says this expenditure was necessary only after a long period of sunless winter days, when an auxiliary oil heater was put in use.

Now with his third solar-heat home abuilding, Thomason reports that his design has taken an architecturally aesthetic turn, with the basic element of the heating system — a 940-square foot "heat collector" — incorporated in the architectural design of the house. A large indoor swimming pool, heated by the solar system, is an integral part of the building.

"As yet, we have no figures on this one," says Thomason, "but we have high hopes for spectacular results."

While the architectural plans of the three Thomason homes vary, the basic solar heating system is the same — water continually circulated over the roof through corrugated glass-covered valleys, warmed by the sun's rays, and stored in a heat bin. Warm air from the latter is then circulated throughout the house. A reflector is used to boost the solar rays' warming effect.

Equipment for the system, says Thomason, cost about $2,000.

Thomason says he agrees with top solar energy authorities who forecast a dramatic increase in solar heated homes; one published report puts the number of such systems in residential dwellings at some 13 million units within the next decade.

"The estimate may be high," says solar home builder Thomason. But he adds that, with the ratification of currently proposed legislation which calls for the establishment of a federal solar energy commission, "this could well become a reality."

Library Adds Wide Variety To Bookshelves

Books ranging from Picasso to Al Capp are among the new acquisitions of the Pikes Peak Regional District Library. The complete list of new additions is as follows:

"The Gathering of Zion," by Wallace Stegner. Documents the great Mormon trek from Nauvoo to Salt Lake City in 1846-47, and the steady migration that followed it out the Platte Valley and across the mountains for the next quarter century.

"Vol. I: The TVA Years, 1939-45, Vol. II: The Atomic Energy Years, 1945-50;" by David E. Lilienthal. These journals give us a unique and fascinating view of both public and private experience. The author occupied two key government posts, head of TVA during the late 1930's and early 1940's and chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission from 1946 to 1950.

"Life With Picasso," by Francoise Gilot. A candid, humorous, and intelligent memoir — a memoir in which, for the first time, Picasso emerges from behind the screen of myth, legend, and world adulation that has all but obscured him as a living man.

"Blood on the Midnight Sun," by Hans Christian Adamson. By focusing on a number of stirring and significant events, the authors of this book have recreated the suspense and high drama of the five nightmarish years of the German Occupation of Norway.

"Rest of the Story," by Sheila Graham. Covering the years 1940 to the present, the author tells what happens when the big love in a young woman's life is over but the need to go on living, loving and achieving remains.

"I Pass," by Y. A. Tittle. Autobiography of the man considered the greatest all-around quarterback in football history.

"The Holmes - Einstein Letters," by James Bishop Peabody. This is the record of an extraordinary friendship which lasted until 1935. During this time Oliver Wendell Holmes was an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court while Lewis Einstein was an American diplomat in European capitals.

"My Favorite Things," by Dorothy Rodgers. A personal guide to decorating and entertaining by the wife of Richard Rodgers.

"Making Mosaics," by E. Arvois. Each project is described in clear and easily-followed language, giving the exact procedures for making practical and decorative objects of lasting beauty, while photographs and diagrams illustrate the steps to be followed.

"From Dogpatch to Slobbovia," by Al Capp. The Yokums, the Kigmies, General Bullmoose, Evil - Eye Fleegle, and even Joe Btfsplk are all here in seven zany incidents.

"Best in Twentieth Century Architecture," Georges Bernier, Editor. Here with a wealth of striking photographs — many in color — is the highly readable story of contemporary architecture: its early creators, present masters, techniques and possibilities.

"How to Shoot," by Larry Koller. A complete guide to the use of sporting firearms — rifles, shotguns, and handguns — on the range and in the field.

"New Scale Model Railroading," by Leslie T. White. In this comprehensive guide, Leslie White, master model builder, clearly tells how to build and operate a model pike that will be realistic in every way.

"Clear For Action — 1898-1964," by Foster Hailey. Covers every battle of importance, every new development in ships, submarines, tactics, and armament; the remarkable photographic narrative includes many pictures published for the first time in America.

"A Guide to National Defense," by Patrick W. Powers. To fil the need for a practical guide to the organization and operations of the increasingly complicated U. S. national defense system, the author has compiled this comprehensive and detailed handbook on every aspect of the subject.

"Espionage & Counter Espionage," by Arch Whitehouse. The author demonstrates that the need for accurate and timely information concerning the enemy and his targets is greater today than ever before.

"Now Nation's Negotiate," by Fred C. Ikle. This book deals with negotiation as a science in itself. The author sweeps away many cliches about the conduct of diplomacy and makes a fresh analysis of the forces that shape the end results.

"Shaping Educational Policy," by James Bryant Conant. A plea for a concerted national effort to resolve current educational problems.

"The Heart of Man," by Erich Fromm. In this companion volume to his continuing best-seller, "The Art of Loving," Dr. Fromm examines those forces in man which show that love of death is pathological while love of life is normal.

"No Language But a Cry," by Bert Kruger Smith. The author describes the symptoms of emotional disturbance as they appear from early childhood through adolescence. She explains how to watch for them, their possible causes, and when and where to seek professional help.

"Plato's Republic," by R. C Cross. Intended for the use of those both with and without a classical education, the book singles out the major philosophical topics of the "Republic" and offers a general philosophical discussion of them.

Epileptic's Problems Top Meeting Agenda

Educational problems relameeting of the Colorado Epilepsy Association, at 8 p.m., Tuesday, at the United Fund Building, 1375 Delaware Street, Denver.

Featured speaker will be Henry Blanchard, Executive Director of the Epilepsy Association of America, a national organization with which the Colorado group recently affiliated.

"Policies, Counseling, and Placement of the Epileptic Child" will be discussed by Dr. John M. Lampe, Assistant Director of Health Services for the Denver Public Schools and Ted White, a supervisor in the Special Education Division of the Denver schools.

Rule of Law Is Subject For CC Lecture Wednesday

Dr. Erich H. Markel, executive vice president of the Max Kade Foundation, Inc., of New York, will speak at Colorado College Wednesday.

Dr. Markel will talk about "The Rule of Law" at 8:15 p.m. in the Olin Lecture Hall. The all-college lecture will be open to the public without charge.

The foundation executive will be here for ceremonies dedicating the Max Kade House at Colorado College. The Max Kade House is a residence hall for women where only German is spoken. It is one of two language houses at the independent liberal arts college.

Dr. Markel is a lawyer with professional training both in Europe and the United States. He holds three degrees in law universities.

Before he assumed the duties of vice president and director of the foundation, he served as a professor of law, as legal consultant to the U. S. Department of Justice in Washington, and as assistant state attorney and assistant judge in Nuernberg, Germany.

Dr. Markel attended the Law Schools of the University of Vienna, Karls University of Prague and Friderico-Alexandrina University of Erlangen, Germany, as well as Georgetown University and George Washington University School of Law in Washington, D.C.

He is concerned with problems of comparative jurisprudence, international law, and legal history.

As a professor of law, at several universities in the United States, he taught constitutional law, international law, business law, real and personal property, creditor's rights, and future interests.

In 1963, the Albert Ludwig University of Freiburg, Germany, honored Dr. Markel as a scholar and teacher and for promoting — as vice president of Max Kade Foundation—the exchange of scholars between the United States and Germany, by conferring upon him the title of Senator, honoris causa, — unusual for a man of his age.

In 1959 he was named executive vice president of Max Kade Foundation, Inc.

Women Drivers Said Better in Italy

ROME, Italy (AP) — In the opinion of Italian woman drivers, their male counterparts are "ill-mannered, presumptuous, nonchivalrous and disobedient of the traffic laws."

That description was delivered Friday by female speakers in a forum conducted by the Italian Automobile Club.

Storm - Hunter Planes in State To Study Water

One of the U.S. Weather Bureau's famed hurricane hunter-planes has been flown to Colorado — not to delve into our infamous dust storms as some might suspect, but to play an important role in a study involving Colorado's water resource program.

Brought to Colorado by the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation which is supporting several weather modification projects in the mountain states, the plane will be based at Stapleton International Airport for the next two weeks. Because it is heavily equipped with special instrumentation used in hurricane research, it is ideally suited for gathering the data on natural atmospheric processes over mountains, needed for the BR projects.

Directing the airborne research is a scientist who is a familiar summer passenger on the plane. Dr. Herbert Riehl, head of the Colorado State University Department of Atmospheric Science and an international authority on hurricanes, has been aboard the DC-6 on her hurricane hunting flights over the Caribbean and was instrumental in bringing the plane to Denver for the central Rockies study. Accompanying Dr. Riehl on the flights over the mountains will be the USWB director of flight facilities, Howard Mason and associate director, William S. Callahan.

"Our objective," Dr. Riehl explains, "is to explore the atmospheric processes which occur naturally over the mountains. We are particularly interested in learning more of the role that mountains play in establishing precipitation patterns and how widespread these patterns are." Riehl added that the study is being made in conjunction with the water resource program in Colorado in an effort to gather information essential to weather modification attempts.

The CSU scientist said that the plane would be flown in prescribed patterns over western Colorado, eastern Utah, ern Wyoming. During flight, in-northern New Mexico and south-struments will measure temperatures of air and clouds, amounts of ice nuclei, height and composition of clouds (water or ice), extent of precipitation in an area and other atmospheric conditions.

The flight study will be coordinated with the CSU Atmospheric Science Field Facility which is stationed during the winter months on Chalk Mountain near Leadville. Under the direction of Lewis O. Grant, associate meteorologist at CSU, the field facility includes numerous mobile laboratories, radar, power plants and other equipment which are being used in cloud physics measurements and experiments.

Extensive land - based observations over all of western Colorado will also be made in conjunction with the flight study.

Accountants Plan Hewlett-Packard Company Tour

The February meeting of the Colorado Springs-Pueblo Chapter of the National Association of Accountants will include a tour of the Hewlett-Packard plant in Colorado Springs Tuesday, with dinner at the Moor's restaurant. The Hewlett-Packard plant tour will be directed by Robert Grimeds, manager of the plant and himself a member of the Accountants Chapter.

The program will consist of a complete guided tour throughout the plant, with departmental personnel explaining to the visiting accountants, the function the individual departments play in helping to turn out the finished products the plant manufactures.

The plant tour will immediately follow the dinner meeting. Social hour will be from 6:30 to 7 p.m., with the dinner following. A brief business meeting will follow, whereupon members and guests will go by auto to the Hewlett-Packard plant.

All accountants in and around the Colorado Springs-Pueblo area are invited to attend the NAA monthly meetings, which are held the third Tuesday of each month. Guests are always cordially invited and, if qualified, may join the chapter. Next month's meeting will be rotated to Pueblo. Leo Smentowski, local director of membership, will be glad to make reservations for Tuesday's meeting, and will answer any questions pertaining to the NAA group. He may be contacted by calling 473-1362 or 633-6871.

Pikes Peak Region Yesterdays

By DORA FOSTER

Two little brown birds twittering in the scrub oaks just outside my windows yesterday morning told me that they knew St. Valentines Day was soon to be celebrated and that they had better decide on this years nest-building.

Even though St. Valentine has been dead for 1,659 years today marks his annual celebration. St. Valentine, it is said, was beheaded on Feb. 14, in the year of 306 A.D. and that may be the reason why so many youths and maidens lose their heads — and their hearts — on this sentimental day of days.

At any rate St Valentine Day is still observed with the pretty custom of sending out love messages and this we all know can never be overdone since it is always good to hear or read the old, old story, "I love you."

Valentine Day at Cheyenne school when I was a child was filled with thrills. A day or so before that auspicious afternoon a shoe box had been prepared by cutting a wide slit in its cover and then the box placed on teacher's desk. Into that receptacle was to be slipped secretly all the love messages that we had made or bought from the stores down town. And along with those little bits of lace and paper and ribbon went another kind of messages, the comics usually placed by the boys or the girls who had a grievance against some other pupil or the teacher.

My sisters and I were hampered or rather limited in our choice of the so-called comics, as our parents insisted on looking over our choice of valentines before they were to be carried to school and slipped into the shoe box.

Then on the hour when the box was to be opened all books were slid into the desks for the remainder of the day and of the afternoon was given over to the fun.

Usually one of the older and more responsible pupils or the teacher was chosen to open the well-filled "post-office" and we went up to the front of the room when our name was called out to receive our valentine.

Such rustling of paper, such shouts of glee or derision, such secret concealing of love messages, until the shoe box no longer gave out any more missives, and then if teacher was a wise one the dismissal bell was quite in order since everyone just must see what Katie or Nora or George or Bert got. If there were any touching little verses of affection, they were either proudly displayed to all rivals or else were neatly tucked under a blue checked gingham apron to be show only to a favored few.

"I got 10 this year," might be told Mother as soon as the home door had been opened, since the 10 or 12 or 15 valentines were a measure of our popularity among our school mates.

Because it is so much easier to remember the happy thoughts that went along with such days we sisters cannot recall any comics that disturbed our peace of mind so I can't quote any of them to you now. One little message that was sent to sister, from a young neighbor lad had on it a picture of a small boy peeking around a garden wall at a pretty little girl who was walking by and with this picture was this verse:

"All good boys love their sisters.
So good I have grown,
I love other boy's sisters
As well as my own."

Another sister still has her first valentine, one that was sent to her when she was five years old. It is a beautiful one, that holds within its wealth of colored roses and violets a little boy and girl who remain hidden till a little paper flap is pulled when the couple come out from the blossoms and stand on a pedestal an inch or so in front of the blossoms. A very unusual valentine for long ago. The seven-year-old boy who presented that treasure came from a ranch home on Bear Creek.

She tells me that she remembers her last valentine also. It was a large pink celulloid scroll inscribed with all that makes a valentine worth while. Its sender who at the time was attending high school in Colorado Springs, passed away recently, Charles Morse, a popular physician of Alamosa, Colo.

Will McGlashin, a curly-haired young man, whose ready smile and keen wit made me like to be near when he came calling on my older sisters, sent them both a couple of valentines one year and then because of his impatience to see if they had gotten them, came the next evening to see if the mail had arrived. "No," the girls told him, "We have no valentines." "Well, you will get some," he told them confidently, so the girls had no trouble in guessing whom the valentines were to be from. The mail in those days came to lock boxes down in the Colorado Springs' post office and was often several days in reaching the homes. I found one of those elaborate cards in the family Bible the other day, where it has been since the spring that sister died. Feb. 14, 1884. It is a double card with a creamy silk fringe around the edges, pansies on one side, the other side roses. The side bearing the roses holds this verse: through life unchilled, unmoved; To feel that we adore to same that first in youth we loved; To feel that we adore tor such refined excess, That though the heart would break with more, We could not live with less; This is love, 'tis like mine; All for you my Valentine."

I shall put that card back into the old Bible, as it seems to belong to the long ago. It was probably placed there by my mother's hands.

One day several years ago, I found in looking over one of our empty rented houses, (I said empty as it was during our dear depression days) I found a beautiful valentine that had evidently been left behind unintentionally by some "tenants that leave without warning." The valentine was in a box (as too fragile to be unprotected), and was made in the shape of a huge heart, at least 10 inches across. It was composed of blue satin, trimmed with real lace and the verse was sentimental enough for any lovelorn maid in all the land. I carried this treasure home and after enjoying it for a season decided that it was too beautiful to be wasted on me, so sent it secretly next Valentine day to a brown-eyed neighbor maiden of 15 summers who had no steady beau but who was quite willing to find one.

That evening the younger sisters of brown - eyes came to my home to report that "sister had gotten a beauty. Come up and see it." So we went and admired it satisfactorily, as both the maiden and her mother were pleased, no, delighted that some unknown youth had sent it. I kept my secret and was heartened by the sparkle that came into the brown eyes whenever she spoke of her valentine. I believe a youth who had been too bashful to call on her, was encouraged by her more friendly attitude as that summer they were seen together often, and were later engaged but alas for my story, the romance was broken off by either the mother of the girl or the interference of another maid who finally got the boy. But no matter, I now since can report that both the supposed sender of the valentine and the little lady who received it are today happily married, each one having found a mate for themselves. I am sure the blue satin valentine has been long forgotten.

So if St. Valentine has for the past several centuries inspired the sending of messages and gifts, I for one am heartily in favor of remembering that gentleman and will say "Long live St. Valentine."

H.L. Hunt Writes

Nearly every American engages in some activities such as stamp or coin collecting aside from his regular vocation which gives him or her a deep satisfaction and helps to make them well rounded persons.

Many Americans these days are making patriotism their hobby and finding it the most rewarding hobby of all.

The other necessary tasks to which they devote time are only for the purpose of enabling them to continue to eat, wear clothing and discharge their social obligations. With many, patriotism is a parttime diversion. Hobby patriots are highly effective in the continuing fight to save liberty; they cannot be commended too highly.

Some like to match wits with the enemies of freedom and get great pleasure from their effort. Thy keep alight the spirit of "I believe". We have deep need to belive in our work, our neighbors, our country, our God.

A grain of faith is stronger than a mountain of doubt. We must have the faith to put first things first — God, country, home, Church and freedom. We need the spirit to enlist others in the cause. The high stakes make the contest more fascinating, the stakes being nothing less than our lives as free people.

The opposition will try to offset our facts with duplicity, slyness and slickness. If we persevere, it will not be long before we can hold our own. The truth is with us. The love of freedom that is born in the hearts of Americans is working for us.

Six Counties Eligible For More Federal Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six more Colorado counties, hit by heavy snowfall, have been made eligible under a federal government program providing surplus livestock feed at reduced rates for farmers.

Rep. Frank E. Evans, D-Colo. said the counties are Alamosa, Conejos, Costilla, Custer, Rio Grande and Saguache, all in south central Colorado. Similar designations were given 17 other counties earlier.

Widefield High Windup

LUCY PERKINS

Widefield won the first place trophy in the first Will Rogers League Speech Contest which was held at Air Academy High School on January 30. The students who attended were sponsored by Mr. French. There were six divisions in the contract; dramatic interpretation, humorous interpretation, oratory interpretation, original oratory, poetry, and debate.

The students who received superior or excellent rating in their division were Toni Young (superior), dramatic interpretation; Charles Ammen (superior), Cande Korbelik (excellent), and Jim Brown (excellent), humorous interpretation; David Manning (superior), oratory interpretation; Sam Larsen (excellent) and Dan Dailey (excellent), original oratory; Vicki Wilkowski (superior), poetry; and Pete Meese(superior), and Sam Larsen (excellent) in debate.

The other students who participated in the contest were Beth Whittle, Margo Luedecke, Dick Stevenson, Linda Smedsrud, Mike Miller, Carol Luedecke, Pat Richards, and David Larsen.

On January 16, two weeks before the WRL contest, Widefield was one of the participants in the Wasson Invitational Speech Contest. Miss Czarnecki sponsored the group of students. All the students came out with an overall excellent rating.

In debate WHS was represented by Sam Larsen and Pete Meese on one team, and David Larsen and Starr Coakley on another. The subject of the debates was "Resolved: That nuclear weapons should be controlled by an international organizaton." This subject is a national topic for high school debate teams.

Cande Korbelik represented the school in oral interpretation which consisted of humorous literature, dramatic literature, and poetry. For Cande's humorous literature, she did a scene from "Arsenic and Old Face and for her dramatic literature she did a portion from "Anne Frank" and for her poetry, she recited "The Congo" by Vachel Lindsay.

Widefield will participate in two more speech contests this month. The first one is the Golden Anniversary Colorado State Speech League Contest on February 13, and the second one is the Colorado College Invitational Speech Contest on February 20.

Coach Don Hansen's hockey team talied two goals in the final period but to no avail as the Gladiators were defeated by the Fountain Valley Danes, 5-2.

Both goals were scored by Venton McPhearson. The first goal came at 6:57 in the third period with an assist from sophomore Phil Lockhart. At 7:18 McPhearson scored the second goal unassisted on a penalty shot. The shot came on a tripping penalty which occurred on the open ice.

Byron Brian, the Gladiator goalie, had 13 saves for the evening while the Dane goalie had six. The only Widefield penalty in the game was called against Brian for tripping at 12:10 in the third period. Pete Spiers served the penalty time for the goalie Brian. The regular Gladiator goalie, Steve King will be out for the remaining two games of the season due to illness.

Palmer: Widefield suffered its worst defeat of the season losing to the Palmer Terrors, 12-0. This game marked the third time that Widefield and Palmer have clashed. Palmer took the other two encounters by scores of 11-0 and 8-1.

Widefield's cagemen have completed their first round of WRL play with one victory and three defeats. The Gladiators three losses were close games losing two encounters by one Widefield dropped a non-league game to Thornton to round out the schedule since league play began.

Widefield opened league play against the Kadets of Air Academy, January 15. In a hotly contested game the Kadets turned down the Glads 61-60.

In a non-league encounter January 16, Widefield lost to their northern foe, [illegible]. The leading scorer for the Glads was Dick Stevenson with 12 points.

The counselors recently released the list of names of students making the Honor Roll. The same method of determining the Honor Roll was used this nine weeks as was used last quarter. It required that the student must carry at least three academic subjects and have a 3.0 average or above. An A in an academic subject, and a C in an academic subject, will average out to a B.

The Widefield High School Future Teachers of America Club traveled to Colorado State College in Greely to attend the annual Future Teachers of America convention on January 29, 1965. Sponsored by Mr. Peterson, the group arrived on campus at 8:30 a.m. on Friday. Following morning registration after their arrival, they were served coffee and doughnuts. The group then went to Frazier Hall where they listened to a lecture given by Dr. Grimes about the expansion and building of a new Greeley school system. The rest of the morning was spent listening to four senior college students participate in a panel dicussion concerning student government, social life academics, job opportunities after graduation, and the teaching career.

Club memebers from the various high schools all over the state of Colorado who attended the convention were taken on a tour of the campus which ended at McGowen Hall where all of the groups convened at 1:30 p.m. for lunch. At 2:30 p.m., they left Greeley for Security.

Club members attending from Widefield were: Sheryl Sinnes, president; Lindo Robb, vice president; Linda Smedsrud, secretary; Carol Leudicke, treasurer; Linda Reed, parliamentarian; Cynthia Mar, historian; Cynthia Proal; and Sharon Bigelow.

Club president, Sheryl Sinnes, was reported to have said that the trip was a worthwhile and enjoyable experience, and that they learned a great deal about the teaching profession and campus life.

Cost Reduction Conference Set For Monitors

Twenty-six Cost Reduction monitors from the Air Defense Command air divisions plus representatives from the Air Force Academy and Air Force Accounting and Finance Center, Denver, will take part in ADC's first Command-wide Cost Reduction Conference.

Cost reduction monitors from the Academy and Finance Center are attending as guests at the conference being hosted by Brig. Gen. Thomas Ford, deputy chief of staff, ADC Materiel.

The two-day conference is part of the Command's expanded program to save money through procurement and logistics management which will reduce operating costs without degrading operational effectiveness.

The conferees will discuss the current status and map out future plans for the ADC Cost Reduction Program. It will also serve to indoctrinate the experts in the revised reporting procedures.

ADC reported to Air Force a Cost Reduction Program savings of more than $51.9 million for the first half of the 1965 Fiscal Year.

Mr. Walter Zenthoefer, the Command Cost Reduction Monitor, is the project officer for the conference which also will be attended by more than 35 ADC headquarters personnel.

Local residents attending the conference will be: Mr. J. E. Zipp and Mrs. E. L. Karroll, Air Force Accounting and Finance Center; Lt. Col. C. M. Floyd, MSgt. H. H. Brown and W. Braxton Carter, 414th Fighter Group, Oxnard AFB, Calif.

3 Germans Ski to Freedom in West

HOF, Germany (AP)—Three East German youths have skied to the West across the Iron Curtain border, West German border police reported Friday.

All three profited from four feet of snow and skied over the heavily fortified border without incident, police said. The refugees took off their skis only while negotiating barbed wire fences.

'Victory Will Be Ours,' Red Chief Says

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin boasted today that Communist forces are strong enough "to stop the aggression in Viet Nam" and said, "Victory will be ours."

He made the claim during a reception in Pyongyang, the capital of Communist North Korea. The official news agency Tass quoted his remarks.

Kosygin recalled that he had pledged Soviet military aid to Communist North Viet Nam during a stop in Hanoi earlier this week.

"Turning to the situation in Viet Nam, the head of the Soviet delegation said that both sides had reached agreement to stop the aggression in Viet Nam," Tass said. "Our forces, he stressed are superior to the forces of imperialism. Victory will be ours.

Looking at Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

© 1964: By the Chicago Tribune

HOLLYWOOD — Marcello Mastroianni, named "world's favorite actor" at the Hollywood Foreign Press association dinner Tuesday night, needed an interpreter. He doesn't understand English, but gets his message over to the women loud and clear. Before the show, he was hustled off to Grauman's Chinese theater for an old Hollywood tribal ceremony. In a block of wet cement (almost as big as the one devoted to the Marx brothers), he wrote his name and left his hands and feet imprinted. Tourists, four deep, were roped off, but when he finished signing the moist concrete, he passed down his line of admirers, shaking hands with his left, autographing with his right, and smoking a cigaret at the same time. . . The language was no barrier. He flashed his smile at one fan, and as she almost expired, a fellow standing alongside said, "Give this girl an aspirin." Another beauty, not burdened with inhibitions, leaned over the rope and kissed the star on the cheek. And what could he do? He was signing with his right, shaking with his left, and puffing away on that king-sized ciggie. . . . A 3-year-old pushed his own stroller behind the crowd (they don't know how close they came to being maimed). After a few near misses he grew bored and wailed, "Mommy, when can we leave?" At the end of the line was a teen-ager doing her homework. She elbowed thru and shoved a book titled "Goals in Spelling" over the red velvet ropes to be autographed. An appropriate writing for a guy who signs himself "Mastroianni."

I got the right family but the wrong girl when I wrote that Gomer Pyle was going steady with Danny Thomas' daughter, Marlo. Papa Danny himself called to tell me his daughter, Theresa, was delighted with the item but didn't like being confused with her sister. If everybody in the United States doesn't see "Cinderella" on TV Feb. 22, it won't be because it's had no publicity. They've even brought out a cookbook offering such items as beef-at-the-ball, godmother's steak, fairy - tale fillets, chicken spectacular, and happy ending pie. A fellow who saw the 90-minute musical tells me the second it's off the air, Lesley Ann Warren, who plays Cindy, will be the biggest star in show business. She lights up the screen. Lesley turned down Dick Rodgers' new musical.

Ed Ames gave up $100,000 worth of engagements with his singing brothers to become an actor, and is now playing an Indian in "Daniel Boone." That's turning actor the hard way, but Ed's a happy man doing what he likes. And if you like good masculine singers get his new record, "Try to Remember." Katharine Bard, Mrs. Martin Manulis in private life, plays the wife of a Hollywood film producer in "Inside Daisy Clover." Tony Perkins is wanted for the Jack Lemmon part in the musical version of "Some Like It Hot."

J. Carrol Naish will be off to Munich soon for a picture. He and his wife, Gladys, who met in "Shanghai Gesture" on Broadway, celebrated their 36th anniversary this week. They've had five grandchildren in the last seven years. Their only complaint is that the kids live in La Jolla instead of next door . . Kitty Carlisle had starred in many musical comedies when she married the late Moss Hart. But when asked to sing in Boston recently, she was terrified. She needn't have been. They loved her. Now she's been asked to do "The King and I" in summer stock, and if I know Kitty she'll say yes . . . Mrs. Sam Bronston just arrived in New York to await the birth of her baby — due in six weeks. She had permission from her physician to travel from Madrid, but was almost as nervous as the air line hostess who looked after her. Sam will be back in New York by Tuesday.

Woman Charged With Bayoneting Hubby to Death

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—A former Aurora, Colo., woman, 29-year-old Mrs. Evelyn Mae Simmons, has been charged with murder in the fatal stabbing of her husband Monday night at suburban Hurst.

Officers said the husband, James L. Simmons, 32, a former employe of the Navaho Trucking Co. in Denver, was killed by a thrust from a 17-inch bayonet. They quoted Mrs. Simmons as saying she stabbed him after a family argument.

"I stabbed him—I killed him, I guess," she told Hurst Police Chief Joe Watson.

Simmons, owner of a delivery service, was dead on arrival at a hospital with a stab wound of the heart.

Friends of the Simmons in Aurora said he had left his Denver job about a year and a half ago to set up a trucking or delivery company of his own.

Mrs. Simmons told officers she did not remember what happened after going to the kitchen to get the weapon until police found her as she sat holding Simmons' head on her lap.

Her husband had been drinking Monday and he "often beat me," Watson quoted her as saying.

Friends said both Simmons' were graduates of Aurora High School and had made their home in Aurora and North Denver from about 1953 until they moved to Hurst.

Three Natural Area Tracts Set in State

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dedication of 16 small "natural area" tracts of public land in six western states to research was announced today. Three are in Colorado.

Secretary of Interior Stewart L. Udall said the natural areas will be valuable chiefly as "outdoor laboratories" in many fields of scientific study, including forestry, geology and ecology.

"For this reason, they should be preserved and protected from disposal, or other non-conforming uses," Udall said. "Some were selected for their natural phenomena or undistrubed native growth — others to safeguard rare species."

Active sand dunes on 671 acres in Jackson County, Colo.

Udall acted under authority of a 1952 executive order, which delegated to the secretary of the Interior the Presidents authority to preserve public lands in the public interest. The order will not affect leasing under the mineral leasing laws, Udall said.

CU Gets Set Of Military History Books

The library of the Colorado Springs Center of the University of Colorado has received a set of books valued at $275 from the U. S. Army military history division in Washington.

The set, "A History of the U. S. Army in World War II," consists of about 70 books, according to Col. Arthur T. Milberg, professor of military science at CU in Boulder.

Milberg said the books were sent at the request of the Colorado Springs chapter of the Association of the U. S. Army (AUSA) in Colorado Springs.

Milberg said the AUSA chapter would donate the books, to be included in the history library at the Colorado Springs Center. He said they would be valuable to the many students of military history in the Colorado Springs area and to the various military installations in and around Colorado Springs.

The Army also has supplied other books to the library, Milberg said.

He said the latest set contains a detailed analysis of the U. S. Army in every phase of World War II.

Public Service Strike Is Ended in Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — Public services have been restored in Bermuda as sympathy strikers ended walkouts against the Bermuda Electric Light Co.

Negro and white troops were demobilized Friday as the popular vacation island returned to near normal following labor unrest including clashes with police that swept the colony, Britain's oldest.

Transport, stevedore and other service groups supported the strike against the power company that began Jan. 19 in an effort by the Bermuda Industrial Union to organize the utility.

TAX BENEFIT

MONTPELIER, Vt.(UPI)—The Vermont treasury is reaping the benefits of the lack of snowfall in the state's ski areas last month.

The state Luquor Control Board reported Friday that liquor sales jumped 70 per cent over a comparable period in 1963. That meant a tax windfall of $221,000.

The state attributed the increase in consumption in part to would-be skiers who hit the bars instead of the slopes.

CU Archeology Team Brings Home 1,000 Pounds of Stone Artifacts

A four - man team of scientists from the University of Colorado returned this week from the banks of the Nile River following a successful third year of archaeological salvage operations.

Prof. Gordon Hewes, director of the expedition, said the project was successful, although the archaeologists did not experience the "tremendous good fortune" they had in previous seasons when they uncovered ancient human remains.

Hewes was accompanied on the trip by Asst. Prof. Peter Robinson, CU museum curator; Thomas Higel, Boulder graduate student in anthropology, and Dr. Roy Carlson, associate curator of the Museum.

The archaeologists spent two months searching for prehistoric remnants on the soon-to-be-flooded banks of the Nile on an 80 - mile stretch of river bank 20 to 100 miles south of the village of Wadi Halfa in the Republic of Sudan.

The area of the river is the second cataract, known as Batn El Hagar, or Belly of Stones.

The expedition was in the Sudan during and after a stormy revolution, but their location, 450 miles north of the capital of Khartoum, kept them out of shooting range. Hewes said they paid close attention to the radio news, however, to be sure they would remain out of danger.

Although they kept their ears tuned to the radio, they managed to keep their eyes successfully searching the ground.

"When we finish analyzing the artifacts," Hewes said, "we will have filled in part of the picture of human life in the period between 50,000 and 3,000 B.C."

He said that even before analysis it was possible to trace roughly the progress of man in that period by noting the constant refinement of the stone tools from massive objects to comparatively delicate instruments.

The archaeologists also found fossils of a few mollusk shells and animal bones which can be tested to determine their age. The dates can then be related to the tools and added to the fantastically complicated jigsaw puzzle which may eventually tell a fairly comprehensive story of prehistoric man in that area.

In the two months of searching and digging, the expedition discovered 150 prehistoric sites, including about 50 which contained significantly large deposits of stone implements. Six of these were excavated with the help of a native crew.

The nature of many of the finds indicated that, although now there is virtually no yearly rainfall, the area at one time had a moist climate.

The CU anthropologists' work on the Upper Nile was scheduled to end last spring after two seasons, but the success of the expeditions encouraged the Sudanese government and the National Science Foundation to continue for at least one year. NSF awarded the CU group $53,800 for this year's expedition.

For the first two years, CU conducted archaeological operations near the town of Wadi Halfa, attempting to salvage knowledge before the area is flooded by the backwaters of the completed Aswan High Dam.

This year's expedition worked 20 to 100 miles further up the river — areas which will not be affected by the dam for some time.

2,000 Years From Now, Thy May Dig Up Radios

A new, and possibly important element — the transistor radio — has popped up on the international political scene, according to Prof. Gordon Hewes, University of Colorado anthropologist.

Hewes recently returned from an archaeloogical expedition in the Republic of Sudan in North Africa, where he noticed the phenomenon.

"Everywhere you go," he said, "you see natives listening intently to the radio, usually to some political presentation." There is some music and entertainment on the radio in that part of the world, but mostly the progrmas are political harangues from Moscow and Peking.

"Radio is the only form of entertainment these people have, and they spend all of their free time listening to it. Therefore, I think in many respects these illiterate people are more aware of world affairs than are Americans," he said.

Almost any barefoot native who can't read or write can tell you all about Indonesia, Malaysia and Sukarno," Hewes said. He noted that this might present a problem in the future, because formerly most of the politically oriented and active individuals in the underdeveloped nations were college students.

In the near future, he said, we may find activists and rioters who have no political background aside from ideologically slanted commentary.

He said the United States and Great Britain broadcast in North Africa, but most of the programs come from Russia and Red China.

Hewes and his expedition — Peter Robinson and Roy Carlson of the CU Museum staff and graduate student Thomas Higel — arrived in the Sudan in October on the eve of a revolution. Immediately following their arrival, they left the stormy capital of Khartoum for the comparative safety of the desert 450 miles to the north.

They were still concerned for their safety, however, and paid close attention to radio reports. This is when they noticed the natives were doing the same thing.

"It's interesting," Hewes said, "that these persons earn less than $200 a year in equivalent buying power, but still manage to spend $30 and more for a radio."

Unique Facility To Be Featured In AFA Seminar

A one-of-a-kind scientific facility, built by personnel of a highly unique research laboratory, will be the subject of the third in the series of technical seminars sponsored by the Air Force Academy Department of Electrical Engineering.

The seminar covering the new low density shock tube facility of the Frank J. Seiler Research Laboratory is open to the public.

The program will be at 3:30 p.m.. in the Electrical Engineering conference room, 6H26, Fairchild Hall.

Two Seiler Lab research associates, Capt. Douglas S. Johnson and 1st Lt. Charles F. Stebbins, will discuss the technology and characteristics of the low density shock tube now in the final stages of construction.

The tube is similar to one at the California Institute of Technology but is the largest facility of its kind in the world.

Equally as unusual is the Lab which is constructing the tube. The Seiler Lab, named for the late Col. Frank J. Seiler, an Air Force research pioneer, is a function of the Office of Aerospace Research (OAR).

OAR supports a world wide program of research in universities, non-profit institutions, and industry.

The Lab was established at the Academy to both perform basic research for the Air Force and provide an environment capable of fostering an active and imaginative research program among cadets and faculty.

NEW TWIST

TAICHUNG, Formosa (UPI)—A Catholic mayor here has given a new twist to the old Chinese custom of offering homage to the gods before taking public office.

Mayor Cho I-Nga of the Phithou district near here went to a Catholic church to honor God and receive a blessing from a priest instead of going to a temple.

METHODISTS IN CUBA

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—The Methodist Church in Cuba still has 8,744 members despite the large number of refugees who have come to this country.

Bishop James W. Henley, who has episcopal responsibility for Methodist work in Cuba, said the report came from a district superintendent at the recent annual Cuba Conference.

Bishop Henely had visited Cuba twice in the last four years but was unable to get his papers cleared in time to attend the conference.

The report showed a budget of $131,280 was adopted for the new church year and that eight new pastors, including three women, were admitted into full ministerial status.

CHEMISTRY OF FAITH

NEW YORK (AP)—A chemist who rose from cheese - making to head of research in that field for a national firm, Swift and Company, has been named as associate director of evangelism for the Luteran Church in America. He is George W. McDonald, 54, who spent 14 years in milk chemistry before switching to full-time work in the chemistry of faith.

Legion Official Says Hospital Turns Away Vets

DENVER (AP) — An American Legion official said the Veterans Administration Hospital in Denver turned down 24 patients who applied for admission Friday.

George H. Astler, command of the Leyden - Chiles-Wickersham Post No. 1 said the Denver VA institution is "unable to take care of patients for whom the Grand Junction Veterans Hospital was built."

Astler made his statement after Dr. Paul M. Ireland, director of the Denver VA hospital, said the institution could handle new patients "with our eyes closed." Ireland said closing of the Grand Junction facility "from a logical position, is the only thing that should be done." The government plans to close Grand Junction's VA Hospital May 1.

A statement issued late Friday by Astler said:

"As of this morning, the American Legion was unable to procure admittance for the following patients: Four neuro-psychiatric, eight medical and 12 surgical. While the Denver hospital lists vacancies, these are limited by classification, and if the patients for which the Grand Junction hospital was built do not come under the classification open in Denver, they would have to remain at home or perhaps on top of one of our mountain passes.

"Right now a veteran is being forced from the Denver Veterans Administration Hospital on the ground that technically he should be in a nursing home. We recommend the Veterans Administration be required to prove its ability to handle patients without the beds at Grand Junction."

THE FAMILY LAWYER

A well - known lawyer recently received a phone call from an indignant woman. She was not a regular client of his, but had consulted him about a minor legal problem many years previously. She began the conversation this way:

"I have been waiting for you to call. You must have read about my son's accident in the newspapers. Two weeks have gone by and we still haven't heard from you. What is the matter? Don't you think we have a good case?"

To her, such an inquiry seemed natural. For, after all, wasn't that the way a lawyer was supposed to get business — by going after it?

But that is not the way at all. The lawyer who seeks out an accident victim violates professional ethics. In some states he is committing a crime. Everywhere, he is risking his standing as a member of the bar. The offense: "ambulance chasing."

That ugly phrase generally refers to the solicitation of personal injury cases by some unethical lawyers — or, more commonly, by professional chasers who front for them.

The typical chaser does not actually chase ambulances. But, alerted by paid tipsters (ambulance drivers, hospital employeees, policemen), he visits the victim as fast as he can after the accident. Armed with glib promises, newspaper clippings, and photostats of settlement checks, the chaser sings the praises of the lawyer he works for. His object is to get the victim's name on the dotted line of a retainer form, hiring that lawyer to handle the case.

To complicate matters, the injured man may also be besieged by an insurance adjuster, representing the other party and seeking a quick settlement.

Shun them both, If you should have an accident, ask your own family lawyer for guidance. If you have no family lawyer, pick one on the recommendation of an adviser you trust or a friend you respect. Or use the Lawyer Referal Service, maintained in most large communities by the local bar association.

Either of these alternatives make more sense than signing up with a chaser. The lawyer who is unethical toward his profession is likely to be just as unethical toward his clients.
